The School Year an informal view	4

A yearbook's purpose is to tie the year together into a book of classes, activities and memories. The 1971-72 book is accomplishing this in a new, informal way. As many formal pictures as possible have been eliminated to create a more realistic overall view of school life through candid shots. Special effects, informal copy, and quotes have been incorporated to form a book that presents a year as everyone remembers it.

School was back in session for another whole year with a differentness that soon turned to sameness.

What's that noise? Sounds like an air raid! No it sounds like someone is on the P.A. system squeezing the air through the top of a balloon. Only very, very loudly!

We soon got used to our new "bell" system — after it was turned down about fifty decibles.

The traditional deans of boys and girls were replaced by one Dean of Students who was helped by four para-professionals. They were in charge of the attendance record, watching washrooms and checking hall passes.

Why should I go down there I didn't do nothin, I'm a good girl. Man have you ever seen so many people?

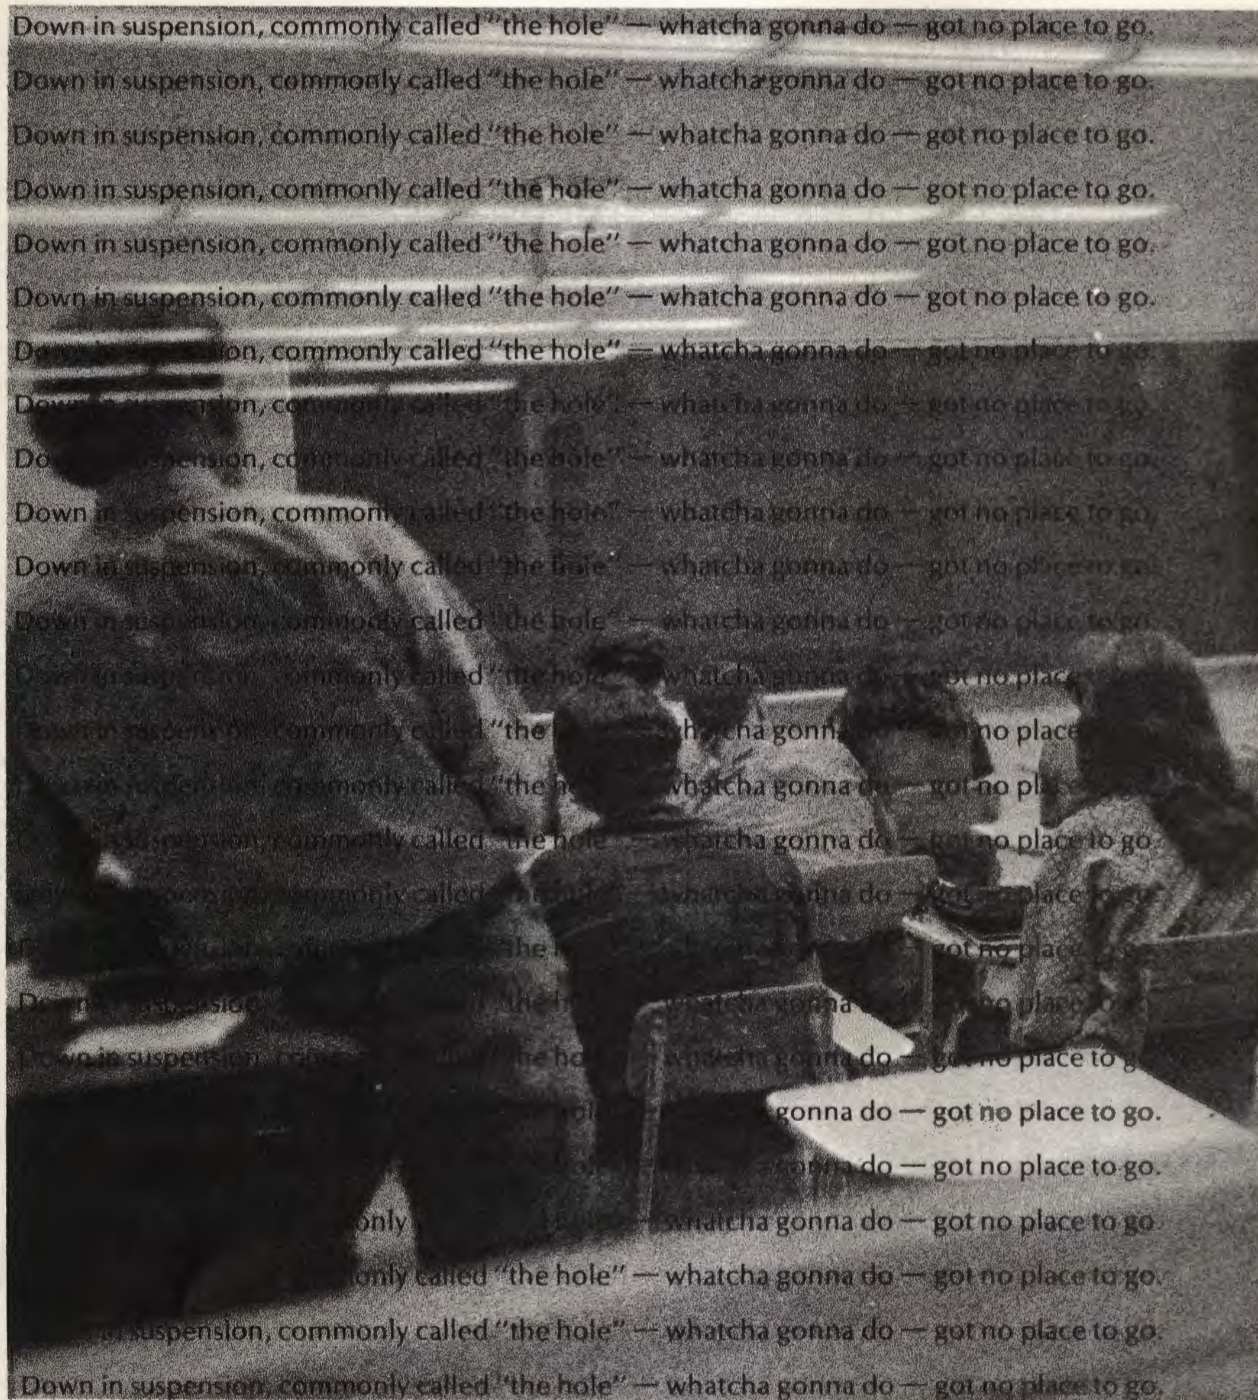

This was the five minute homeroom when anyone with an hour unaccounted for was herded into the office to explain why!?! It finally got so crowded that they moved the whole thing right into the auditorium. Here again the para-professionals were kept busy checking names off, asking questions, giving out passes and deciding who was sincere and who wasn't.

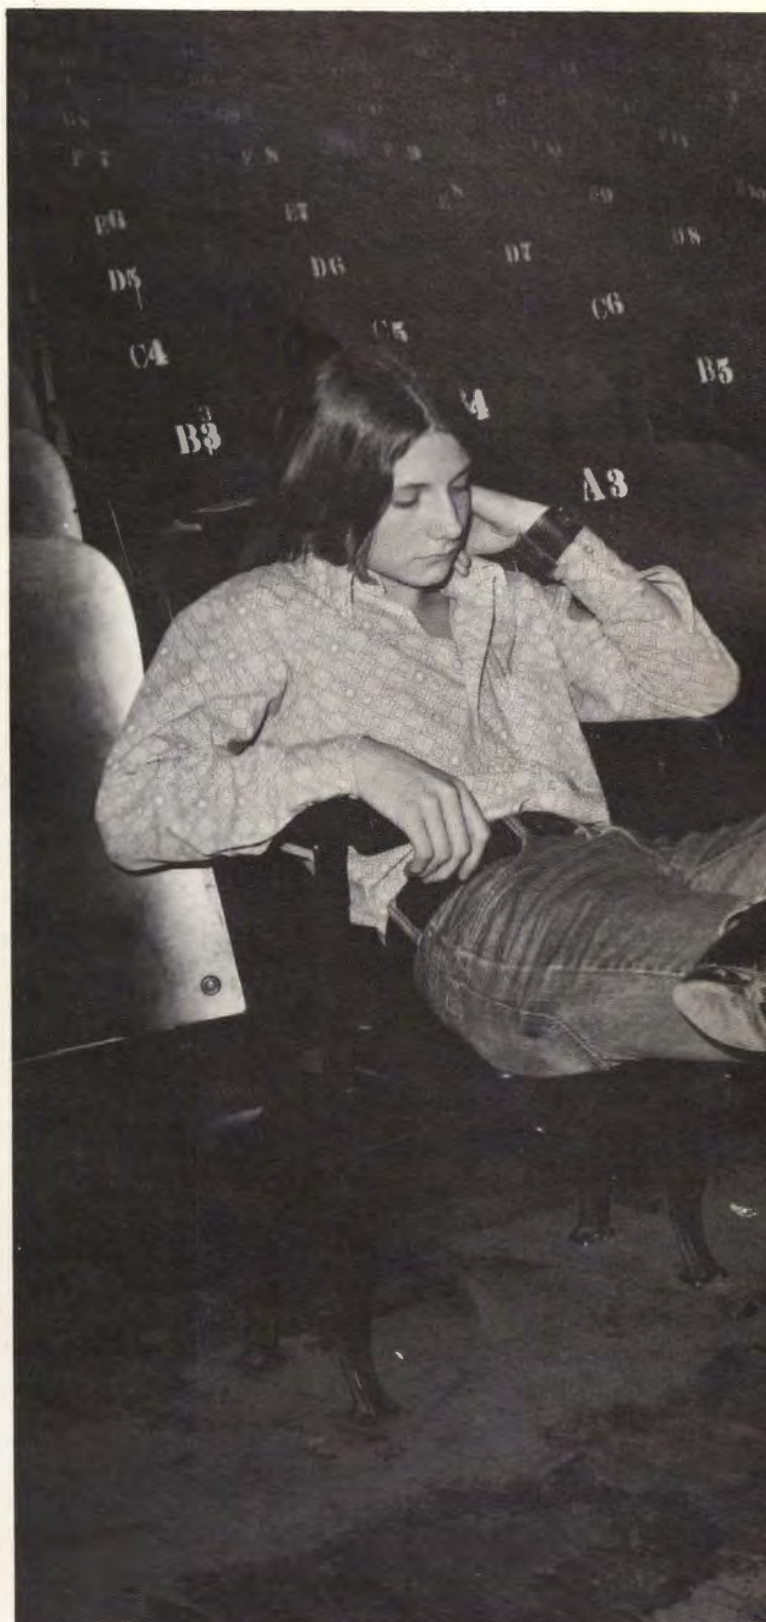

Homeroom took a lot of getting used to. Its main purpose was to make attendance taking easier and get the daily announcements read to the students so they could hear them. In some cases it worked quite well and in others it didn't work at all. It all depended on the teacher and the students in a particular homeroom.

A lot of controversy rose when after school detention study hall was replaced by in-school suspension. Depending on how long students ditched or forgot their I.D.'s or how much trouble they got into, they were put into a small room with a para-professional for one hour, three days or longer. They could leave only between classes and for lunch.

The students who had always served detentions before didn't like the change — while the remainder of students agreed with the majority of teachers on its effectiveness.

Offices were remodeled; the teachers' mail boxes were moved into the school office leaving room for a Pupil Personnel Office next to the familiar attendance office.

Why isn't it called the Student Personnel Office?

The library was remodeled to make it much more functional, like a college library. All the books were stacked into the back with only one way in and out. The check out desk was placed nearby.

Too many books were being stolen and not enough work was being accomplished.

Tables were placed within the area for students using the library books with the rest left for studying or class reservations.

alk study hall, new last year, continued this year along with quiet study hall. It was again held in the cafeteria, only this year candy and pop machines were brought for those who got hungry. Talking, playing cards and even some studying were accomplished there. Quiet study hall was held in room 156. Approximately 50% of the students free each hour spent their time in talk study hall. Another 45% worked in the library, while the remaining few went to quiet study hall.

Open campus during lunch was kept, allowing students to walk around the track or sit at picnic tables put out on the front and back lawns. However, eating lunch was restricted to the cafeteria. With the first signs of spring one could see students here and there; lying under a tree, hunched on the bleachers and talking on the picnic tables.

Assemblies were finally optional! Students could either go to the cafeteria (under teacher supervision) or go to the assemblies. Of course, there were always students finding new routes of escape from both areas.

You know since pep-assemblies are optional no one will come. Yeah, then who are all these people?

For some assemblies, such as the gymnastics performance, student interest was high and the gym was filled to capacity.

W hat's this? Eighteen semester-English courses to pick from?

Through this change, juniors and seniors were given a wider choice in their English course selection for this year. Poetry and song, and journalism were courses added.

Art courses were all on a semester basis, each one dealing with one area of creativity. For instance if a student were clay-crazed, he would take a specific course, ceramics. Also, a new course added was Arts and Crafts which introduced leather working and macrame.

*What in the world is that thing?
That is a belt, not a thing!*

Bio-Chemistry was introduced this year as an extension of biology and chemistry and had special appeal to students interested in nursing, medicine or home economics.

Horticulture was expanded to be a more complete course and there are hopes of some year having a greenhouse.

Applied Math, introduced this year, teaches students how to solve problems they might encounter at a practical, every-day-use level.

NGHOMECOMINGH

Homecoming was held very early this year, but high spirits, along with curiosity, ambition and excitement, resulted in a successful week from beginning to end. Student Council, with help from different clubs and classes, had events lined up for each day of the week.

Monday and Tuesday, the students had competition on their mind, with T-shirt day and locker decoration and poster day, all won by the sophomore class. The victorious sophomores were each given a smile button for their super school spirit!

Anyone for a Catmeal? Wednesday, the annual pep breakfast was held in the high school cafeteria. Yawning, half-asleep students and faculty members began going through the line as early as 7:00 A.M. One ticket entitled you to two donuts and a choice of orange juice, coffee, or milk. Half the school turned out to watch the tricycle race which was held on the track that same afternoon. Vickie Stirber peddled to victory for the senior class. Dan Jeffery rode for the juniors, Christie Dieter, for the sophomores, and Don Deutsch peddled for the freshmen.

Thursday halls were invaded by villains, princesses and dwarfs. The dress for the day was in conjunction with the homecoming theme "Walt Disney Characters." Representing the senior class, Evie Smith, dressed as Peter Pan, was selected as best dressed. At 3:00, Thursday afternoon, the coronation of the queen was held in the Bishop gym with Randy Gibson as master of ceremonies. This year students voted for homecoming king from pictures of ten candidates' fists. Out of the five finalists, Jim Urban, Maury Toledo, Bill Fawell, Tony Reyes, and Gary Fitzenreider, Maury Toledo was declared king. After Maury received his crown, Ann Carey was announced homecoming queen 1971 before a large audience of curious and excited students, faculty, and family members. Ann's court included Kim Atkinson, Diane Berans, Ann Higgins, and Cindy Klingman.

Thursday night the traditional snake dance and bonfire were held. The snake dance began on the high school track. Led by the cheerleaders, students, falling and laughing, ran through the dark to the Main and Washington Street intersection for a pep rally. The snake dance then proceeded back to the high school, where the bonfire constructed by the junior class was set afire before the onlookers.

The most enthusiastic pep assembly of the season was held in the Bishop gym on Friday at 12:00. The assembly included a pep talk by Coach Paul Unruh, skits presented by the junior and sophomore classes and a routine by the Kittenettes. Following the assembly was the Bug Race, held on Joliet Street. The large crowd once again saw the class of 72 take the VW Trophy for the third consecutive year. One of their winning ingredients was Merna Hook who pushed all 3 years. "Lot's of luck next year to all you losers!"

The traditional homecoming parade followed the race. Queen, Ann Carey, and king, Maury Toledo, led the long line of entries including, pom pon girls, marching band and cheerleaders. The parade also included the winning junior float "Hook'em," the second place senior float, "Been a Long Time Comin'," and third place sophomore float, "Orange Crush."

The homecoming dance, "Wish Upon a Star," was held Saturday, October 2, from 8:00 to 11:00 in the cafeteria. The decorations included sketches of Bambi, Tinkerbell, Mickey Mouse, Goofey, Dumbo and other Walt Disney characters, all made by Mr. Wayne Atkinson. Couples danced to the slow-paced, romantic music by the Sportsmen. The wonderland atmosphere created a perfect evening for all.

COMING HOME COM

Friday was a good night for the Wildkits, beating the Sycamore Spartans 36 to 0. Most of the touchdown work was performed by Fernando Pineda, scoring three touchdowns. Rick Thielking, Tom Truitt and Kirk Anderson were the other outstanding players of the night. The game was exciting and set a good pace for the varsity players.

At the kick off of the Varsity game, everyone who had purchased a helium-filled balloon released it, filling the sky with blue and white dots. The balloons were sold by GRA with the assistance of the cheerleaders.

It has now been 19 years since West Chicago has beaten Sycamore, but each year it gets harder for the Spartans and soon it will be Wildcats beating Sycamore 19 years in a row.

Even though the Spartans had a 14-0 lead going into the second quarter, the Cats didn't give up. They worked the ball down to the six yard-line to give Scott Dierking a chance to score, which he did, and the score was then 14-6. But shortly before the half the Spartans scored again. It wasn't until the fourth quarter, when We-Go got its second and the last TD of the night, to make the final score 30-12. Joe Hitzman attempted eleven passes, completing five. Randy Gibson and Bill Fawell carried a good share of the load also.

At half time of the Varsity game the queen and her court were introduced to a capacity crowd. The band played a few Walt Disney songs and the pom pon girls performed to add to the half time presentation.

Half-times, Contests, Programs Fill Band's Agenda

Imagination and hard work were the key to the band's successful marching season. With only a week between games to prepare music and formations, the band, with the guidance of Mr. Sargent, showed unusual stamina and optimism. Their experimenting with kneeling at the Homecoming half time show was successful. After that, they were off to Northwestern to play with 6,000 other music students at half time for the Wildcat-Syracuse game. After homecoming and Northwestern Day, the hectic pace relaxed and the band was able to enjoy the last few games, ending the season by celebrating a Concert Band night at the Big Banjo.

The excitement of marching season died down and the music students got down to their serious studying. They prepared for a recital that involved small groups of woodwinds and brass. On December 16, they toured the local grade schools, giving a Christmas concert. They spent the remaining months practicing solos and ensembles for competition in a state-wide contest to gain points for our school's rating among the other schools. For a number of years, the band has brought home first prize and a respect from the larger schools in the state.

(Opposite page) Band Director Mr. Sargent watches the festivities at Northwestern Band Day. First chair flutest Becky Neumann performs at the Winter Concert as student Terry Schultz directs the Concert Band. (This page) Northwestern Band Day gave band members a chance to see a college football game and participate at half-time. For Laurie Silvernail being in the band has its lighter moments. (Below) Highlighting the Homecoming half-time show were the well-executed formations and entertaining music of the Marching Band.

Improved Cats Have Good Year — Take Third Place

The West Chicago Wildcats had an outstanding season which was both impressive on the field and on paper. A total of twenty-nine records were made by the team and individual members. Two of the many records set by Scott Dierking were most yards gained (133 yards) and most points made (156) in one season. Joe Hitzemann set records in most passing yards (491) per season and most passes completed (46). Randy Gibson also set a record for the most two point PAT with 8.

On defense, leading tacklers were Rick Lukens, Captain Amaury Toledo, and Captain Bill Fawell.

West Chicago also had four all conference players: Mark Beutke, Scott Dierking, Ken Fry, and Rick Lukens. Amaury Toledo who received honorable mention also received the "Most Valuable" award from the team.

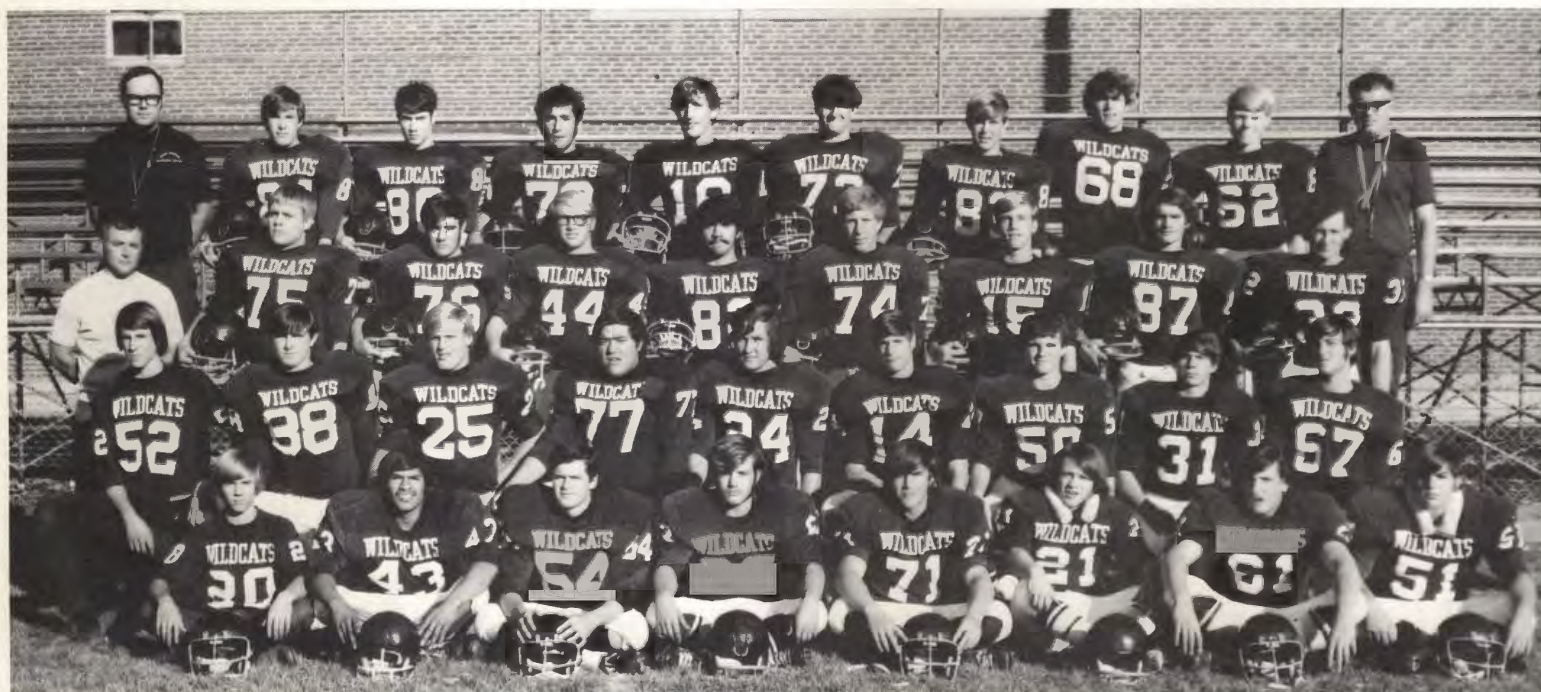

The year ended with a 6-2 record. We-Go was only defeated by Sycamore and Geneva.

The whole team did an excellent job in helping the Cats to an exciting season. Next year the Cats will again follow their motto and be strong, be strong . . .

Wildkits Roar Loud in Little Seven Conference

Coach Gil DeMay's Wildkits almost achieved another first in sophomore football. In the first game, the Kits proved they were good but how good remained to be seen. The opponents kept falling one by one until that eventual meeting with Geneva. The first half ended 6-6. Then the Kits received a big blow when their fine defensive back Kirk Anderson was injured and left the game. The Kits were overpowered in the second half and the game ended as a 26-6 defeat for West Chicago.

The Kits came back like true champs, winning their last two games easily, and secured second place in conference. The offensive and defensive teams performed equally well. Outstanding on defense were Terry Olson, Steve Lillie, Mark Metaxas, Kirk Anderson, Dave Spoden and Russ Whitaker. Leading the team in offense were Rick Thielking, Kirk Anderson, Tom Truitt and Fernie Pineda.

Coach Gil DeMay and Coach Gary Lunak did a fine job of bringing the team along this year. Thirty-six boys were awarded letters this year indicating the depth this team had.

The Freshman team won first place in their division and had an overall record of six wins, two losses and one tie. They were defeated by Wheaton North and Wheaton Central.

The team consisted of fifty outstanding players which enabled them to reach the goal of first place.

Rabbit Chasers Didn't Catch Anything This Season

VARSITY CROSS COUNTRY

With a win-loss record of 2-12, it's obvious Varsity cross country was not in its prime this year. Coach Netzel attributed their downfall to "key injuries — twisted ankles and the flu bug. Also three of the top ten runners didn't come out at the beginning of the season, and later two of the top four quit. Those remaining, including lead runners Joe Strock and Mike Hanes, ran very well but there were so few of them it didn't work out."

The Frosh-Soph team ran a little better with a 5-6 win-loss record and one tie. Leading runners were Dean Frederickson, Ed Skudlarek and Tom Gravenites.

What makes someone run seven to fifteen miles a day when he could be doing something else?

Ozzie Evans, the most improved runner on the Frosh-Soph team said he went out for cross country because he wanted to do something he could excel in to help the school. What Tom Gravenites gained from cross country was "getting in shape and earning a letter." Coach Netzel went a little further saying he thought the guys had learned to discipline themselves in finishing what they had started.

Most improved Varsity runner Terry Connelly commented about cross country, "When you run in a park or golf course it strikes you how vast the land is, how long and high the hill is, how hard stone and concrete are, how sharp an acorn is. In a group you miss this, but if you either zip ahead or drop back and the spectators leave you alone, you can feel nature around you. It's refreshing."

In Uganda, students do not usually work at part-time jobs. But Charlie finds time to work in the school cafeteria and to also work part-time at Alton's Drugs.

Charles Acato Ongom came to We-go from Lira, Uganda. He arrived in August and will return next July, after celebrating an American Fourth of July. He is staying with the Joseph Butler family, coming here with the help of the local AFS chapter and Student Council. He found our school quite different from his former — a private boys school, with ten classes a day, school all year round, and boarding there.

Charlie likes most of our American traditions — such as jeans and jean boots. However, he doesn't like anything chocolate, and he misses eating a lot of fruit and a grain cereal called Kwon. Before Charlie came to the U.S., he imagined that there would be cowboys and Indians riding around on horses. His best experiences were seeing our first snowfall and lions and tigers for the first time at Brookfield Zoo.

Before he returns to Uganda for his last year of high school, Charlie would like to see California and slums in Chicago. He hopes to return to the U.S. for college and would like to become a teacher.

Cowboys and Indians?

Student Council on Firmer Ground

Student Council started rather shakily this year, but managed to pick up as the year progressed. They sponsored dances and movies — such as Cool Hand Luke and A Man Called Horse. Lollipops were sold for next year's foreign exchange student. The waste cans were decorated and a suggestion box was put up.

Then on Jan. 13, 1972, the Executive Board met and voted to impeach 10 members whom they felt were not fulfilling their representative duties. A special election was held and new members were elected. Meetings were cut to one every two weeks, and the constitution was revised. Committees on grades and the curriculum were formed. As a result, Student Council has been able to accomplish more and function more like an effective body.

Languages Unite

Something new happened this year concerning the French, German, Latin and Spanish clubs! All four clubs have been combined into one large Foreign Language Club. President of the new-formed club was Gini Marziani, Vice-President Terri Zimmerman, Secretary Pat Nelson, Treasurer Marilyn Morales. Each meeting began with a look into each of the four separate languages. For instance one meeting began with everyone learning how to say "good-morning" in each language. This change was made for two reasons. Mrs. McGawn explained, "We feel that the foreign languages all have something in common. Each group is trying to learn about a foreign culture and they should have some idea of what happens in the other clubs. Also the clubs individually did not have enough strength and show of interest. Together they are getting more experience with languages." Within the large club each language still has its own club, officers and treasury. Activities were planned by the Language Club officers and teachers for the whole club. Such activities included Language Night, Christmas Party, Mardi Gras and the spring picnic. These activities were well planned and brought wonderful results.

Language Night was planned with the general theme of a travel agency and each country was toured by a typical tourist couple. Preparation for Language Night started in May, 1971 and was finalized during the summer by a chosen committee. The skits were hilarious and the evening ended with the traditional food served in the cafeteria by each language.

The December Christmas Party, held at Mrs. Jenks house, began with the clubs dividing up and going caroling while the French IV,V class practiced the skit they had written. After the carolers returned, the skit was performed. Refreshments had been supplied by Latin and German students and a Santa Claus Piñata was the Spanish contribution to the night's success.

A Mardi Gras was planned for February with costumes being a must. Skits were again performed by the French and Latin clubs. Refreshments were brought by all four clubs. Cash prizes were given for the best of four categories of costumes.

The last event of the year for the Language Club was their spring picnic.

Besides the events planned for the Foreign Language Club, each club held its own special events. They conducted private meetings and fund raising activities. Some of the separately planned events included a banquet, a private party and a theater trip.

The merging of the language clubs has proven to be a benefit to each individual club. Participation and enjoyment was woven throughout the year for a more rewarding and unified knowledge of French, German, Latin and Spanish.

Experiencing the Reality of Work

I.R.O. and C.W.T. are job programs which enable students to escape the confines of the school classroom for a few hours each day to experience a different kind of learning situation in the reality outside — in the industries and businesses of West Chicago and surrounding towns.

C.W.T. (Cooperative Work Training) is a segment of the Basic Skills program at the school. Students in the Basic Skills program in their freshman and sophomore years generally get into C.W.T. in their junior and senior years. The program includes a work-related class, worth one credit, and also a paying job worth one credit toward graduation.

The I.R.O. (Interrelated Occupations) program is based upon the special career-oriented interests of the student. In most cases the I.R.O. student picks a job which relates in some way to his or her particular career choice. The I.R.O. class meets one period every morning where activities range from discussing job problems to learning income tax procedure. As in C.W.T., the I.R.O. student is graded, gets a total of two credits from the program and is paid the going rate for his work.

Ron Meyers, in I.R.O., is a machine operator at Modern Hydraulics.

Alex Ortiz, in the C.W.T. program, shovels chemicals with the supervision of Mr. David Smith, a foreman at American Potash.

"How the Heck Do You Find the Midpoint?"

The student to student help that the math tutor provides is one solution to the "math-is-impossible" syndrome that plagues many of the freshmen taking general math.

Tutors often sit in on the lecture the teacher gives to the whole general math section during the first half of the period (5A) so they know what is going on. The tutor actually goes to work during the second half of the period (5C) when he is in his classroom answering questions about the lecture material or the assigned homework.

Each tutor is in charge of fifteen students and is under the supervision of one of the three general math teachers. The tutor also takes attendance and keeps his students' homework and test records.

How does Arlene Budreski feel about being a math tutor?: "I'm just doing it to help these kids. Kids can relate easier to me because I'm closer to their age. They hate me, but they respect me."

A Student But Not a Student

Duties of the P.E. Leader: (Top) Mike Hanes officiating, Amy Henrickson spotting, (Bottom) Gary Dau refereeing, and Diane Budreski grading tests.

The P.E. leader puts himself or herself in a unique situation in that he is neither equal to the teacher nor on quite the same level as the students he is leading.

Along with such duties as leading exercises, demonstrating skills, helping students acquire skills, refereeing games, spotting stunts, and assisting teachers with hauling equipment, there is another more intuitive leader duty: "To teach respect for discipline, but not act as disciplinarian."

When sophomores, the potential P.E. leaders apply to be in the leader program. In their junior year, those accepted in the program go into a training class; the girls' class is called the Junior Cadet class. In the training class the leaders learn how to teach skills, how to referee correctly, and other basic fundamentals of being a leader.

The 46 leaders (18 girls and 28 boys) don't have to be the most physically adept people to be successful leaders. Rather they must be able and willing to help the students in a manner which both commands respect and, at the same time, encourages the student to want to improve himself.

To Function For Others

AIDES

The aides probably don't realize just how appreciated their work is. All of the supervisors expressed their feelings with no hesitation. In commenting on their own specific aides, the replies actually reflected the general feelings about all of the student aides:

Oh! They're indispensable. Mrs. Root (Cook)

This place wouldn't run without them. Mr. Chambers (A.V. Supervisor)

Put it this way, it would be one heck of a burden if we didn't have them. Mr.

Schmidt (Director of Student Services)

All this brings into question the whole purpose and usefulness of aides. Just what is it that aides do? What do they get out of it? Why do they do it?

In some cases the aide work is related to special interests or future careers. Nurse's aides usually have an interest in nursing. They learn basic first aid which they can apply during the nurse's absence in emergency situations. The paper work, such as health records and files, shows the aides another aspect of nursing.

The work for the office and guidance department is good secretarial practice. Office aides run errands, file records, stuff envelopes, and run the mimeograph machine. Guidance aides answer the phone, file guidance records, show new students around and take care of the college schedule board and guidance bulletin board.

Some audio-visual aides do secretarial-type work too, such as typing, ordering films and materials, and answering the phone. Other A.V. work is operating, delivering, and fixing equipment. People interested in electronics get experience from the repair work.

The cooks never have any trouble getting students to work in the cafeteria. The functioning of the cafeteria is very much dependent on the student work, which is either working the cash registers or serving food. The cafeteria aides receive a free lunch which is really earned because the jobs are done with the cooperation necessary to make the "help" truly helpful.

There were relatively few hall monitors, library aides and science aides this year. It takes regular attendance at the jobs for them to be effective and the students who did work at them were useful. Science aides do things which range from aiding biology classes with dissections to mixing solutions for chemistry classes. Library aides mainly check out and shelve books. Hall monitors check hall passes, direct school visitors, make sure lockers are closed, and pick up papers in the hall.

The jobs aides do are basic. Regular aide work is needed for effective functioning of many departments of the school. Students who are working as aides give up some of their time everyday serving the school in a positive and constructive way.

Under the direction of Mrs. Macey and student director Jim Kenton, a new and different type of play was presented this fall. It forced the audience to search for a meaning in a seemingly absurd plot.

Madame Rosepettle tried to isolate herself and her son Jonathan from corruption in the world. She succeeded until Rosalie came. Rosalie was not the sweet and innocent girl that Jonathan had thought her to be. Instead she pursued a sick and destructive way of life. Soon Jonathan found himself caught between the fantasy world of his mother and the realistic world of Rosalie. In the end he breaks away from both by killing Rosalie and destroying everything his mother had made for him.

Cindy Benolken said this play was meant to be "a warning: telling us to realize the insane, destructive, distorted aspects of our existence."

Some found Oh Dad . . . was an exciting challenge. Others, puzzled by the deeper meaning, were frustrated.

Choirs Mix Contemporary with Traditional Songs

Seventy students make up A Capella Choir. A Capella also consists of two smaller select groups, Madrigals and Songsters. The choir has a rigorous schedule to follow throughout the year. On the average they spend two months preparing for each of their concerts. The year is started off with the Veterans Day assembly which is held every year in conjunction with the Orchestra. Christmas is next and the Girls Choir joined A Capella for Christmas Vespers Dec. 19. After that they put in many hours of serious study preparing to compete with the other schools in a state-wide contest. This year, along with the band and orchestra, they did so well that Mr. Benner, Mr. Sargent, and Mr. Haney decided to take all three groups to organizationals, which meant that they would be judged as a group instead of individually as was previously done. During this time they were also preparing for Baccalaureate and the Fox Valley music festival to which only a select group from the Choir, Band, and Orchestra went.

The Girls Choir and Freshmen Choir each gave three concerts preparing them for their future participation in A Capella.

Varsity Wildcats Surprise League!

Winning four of their last five conference games, our Varsity Basketball team finished in a tie for third in the Little Seven Conference. Paced by Bob Muilenburg, Aivars Baumanis, Tom Farrell, Greg Hoffman, Mark Huber and Ken Fry the team played exciting ball all season.

Greg Hoffman, sophomore center, broke the old record of 274 points (set in 1964 by Reuben Macias) by scoring 288 points. This is the most points scored by any sophomore on the varsity level.

Two seniors were selected by their teammates for special honors. Bob Muilenburg was voted "Most Valuable" and Tom Farrell was voted "Most Improved."

The overall season record was 8 wins and 15 losses. Coach Kyger is "anxiously awaiting next years season." With the return of three Varsity lettermen, Aivars Baumanis, Greg Hoffman, and Ken Fry, things could be very interesting for We-Go fans.

Wildkits Started Slowly But Improvement Followed

The Frosh-Soph Basketball team ended the season tied for fifth place in the Little Seven Conference. Although the team had a slow beginning, they bounced back and won five of their last nine games. The leading scorer this year was Kirk Anderson, a guard, who totaled 231 points. The overall point averages were also impressive. Anderson again lead in this division with a 10.5 average. Dave Nickelson and Dave Hoppe followed closely behind with 9.0 and 8.9 averages.

Faculty Team Challenges Bears, Senior Superstars

On February 27, the Quarterback Club sponsored a basketball game between the celebrated faculty team and members of the Chicago Bears football team to earn money for the new Park District. Although money was lost, those who attended enjoyed seeing some famous names in action — Holman, Gordon, Shy, Concannon and Thomas.

Varsity Club

Any sophomore, junior, or senior who has earned a varsity letter in sports is eligible to join Varsity Club. Varsity Club provides ushers for basketball games and other events, collects money for the TB Association, and sponsors and plays in the Senior-Faculty basketball game every March. This year, both teams of "Senior Superstars" were trounced by the talented faculty team.

The varsity and sophomore wrestling squads ended the season with very impressive dual meet scores. They both opened the season with a victory over St. Francis and the sophomores went on to end with a season record of 10 wins and 2 losses. The sophomores took a third place in conference as well as a second at Hinsdale and third at Naperville. The entire squad was made up of dedicated boys, and wrestling fans are looking forward to seeing what they can do on Varsity.

The varsity squad did well in both dual meets and tournaments with 10 wins and 2 losses for their final dual meet record. Pete Dombrowski, captain along with Randy Gibson and Rick Lukens, started the season late, because of an injured finger. But it had no effect on his abilities as a super grappler and champion. Pete took first at the Elmwood, St. Francis, Hinsdale, Conference, District, and Sectional tournaments, and a second at Morton. Pete's victory in the Sectional championship match qualified him for the State tournament, held in Normal, at Illinois State University, where he took a fourth.

Other super matmen that did outstanding work on the squad were Randy Gibson, Rick Lukens and Dave Spohn, who all took seconds in the District meet and went on to Sectionals but did not qualify for state. The mighty matmen who took firsts in Conference along with Pete, Randy and Dave were Don Deutsch, Tony Cortez, Mike Guiliano and Scott Dierking.

Scott Dierking was our other "superman." Scott took firsts at Elmwood, Morton and Sectionals, with seconds at St. Francis, Hinsdale and Districts. In Scott's final match of the Sectional tournament, he needed to beat Frank Savegnago from Glenbard North, who had beaten Scott twice already this season. Scott beat Savegnago 3-1 and joined Pete for a trip to the State wrestling tournament, where he also took a fourth place.

The Varsity squad honored the school with four trophies this year, which can prove we had a winning team. Pete Dombrowski was selected as the most valuable wrestler of the season and Rick Lukens was most improved. Scott Dierking, Pete Dombrowski, and Dave Spohn were selected as the tri-captains for next year's team.

The Thespians are honorary members of the National Thespian Society. To become a Thespian one must earn at least ten points and must also be in at least two dramatic performances. The point chairman, Senior Barb Fernandes, and Mrs. Macey determine who is eligible. The Thespians had twenty members this year with many more initiated in the spring.

Throughout the year, Thespians had many activities such as a wastebasket sale to raise money, a picnic, and field trips to theaters. They were involved in the all-school plays and presented the One Acts, their most important event of the year. On December 20 at Turner School the Thespians presented two plays, Myron by Senior Peg Young and The Run-away Presents by Judith Martin.

Thespians Promote Dramatics, Present One Acts

Kala Kottcamp, Mike Panzella, Marc Bonem from Diary of Adam and Eve.

Chuck Fiandaca, Diane Barnes, Kevin Lambe, Liese Bender rehearse for Visitor from Forest Hills.

On April 14 the One Acts were presented by the Thespians. The first, Diary of Adam and Eve, which is the first act of Apple Tree, was directed by Senior Barb Fernandes. This play is a comedy of how the world got started, centering on the idea of love between Adam and Eve. Adam sees Eve as the typical female, sensitive, intuitive and illogical. And Eve sees Adam as the typical male, brave and egotistical. They take their respective places in their roles as Adam and Eve.

The second, Hush No One is Listening, directed by Sophomore Rose Iuro, is a play from the theater of the absurd. A middle-aged couple save all their lives to buy a six foot plastic heart which says "Home is where the heart is." Their next-door-neighbor has a young baby who is dying. She cries out for help but they don't hear her. All they hear and see are the materialistic things in life such as the plastic heart.

The third play, The Visitor from Forest Hills, taken from the third act of Plaza Suite, was directed by Senior Peg Young. This play is about the refusal of a girl to get married, not because she doesn't love the groom, but because she's afraid to become like her parents. So she locks herself up in the bathroom refusing to come out. The parents begin fighting about whose fault it is, making their daughter even more obstinate. Finally, the groom comes up and instead of arguing or pleading with her he says two words, "Cool it" and she comes out.

The Bridge Is Built

After existing two years without a school newspaper, We-go has finally emerged with a new paper, The Bridge. The core of the staff established the successful paper by working on it after school, sometimes working until midnight putting the paper to bed. The newspaper staff worked with a handicap of not really functioning as a school newspaper but rather as a club, which meant they had no period in the school day to work on the paper.

The Bridge started out with about 15 staff members, but with each new issue there came a staff decrease. Inactive staff members dropped out until only the working core of the staff remained to continue producing a paper. The student body was made aware of the well-received paper's strained condition when Co-editor Mike Jolls sent out an open letter in February informing students that the paper couldn't continue in its present capacity and more people were needed to work on the staff. With a reorganizational meeting and new additions to the staff, the paper got back to the presses and out to the students for the remainder of the year with realistic hopes for a Bridge in 1973.

A. Well, the title suggests that; the title is The Bridge. It's to form, let's say, an invisible bridge between teachers and students. That is, the teachers can see the students' views and the students can see the teachers' views. That's basically it, and also because the school needs a newspaper.

Q. What is this gap between students and teachers that you're talking about? And how is the newspaper bridging it?

A. I'd say kind of like an untrust. Teachers really don't trust students all of the way and vice versa. If you have two parties against each other, no way are you going to ever get anything accomplished. There has to be some sort of a collaboration in order to have a fair or good education system. The paper's a start; it's not all of the way, but it's part of it.

Q. Is there censorship of the paper by the school?

"Well, the biggest aid would be Mr. Haas."

A. Yeah, we have some restrictions as such. One is that we're not allowed to put public ads in the newspapers. The theory behind this is that the newspaper would become too commercial and the school would become too commercialized. Another is that we're at such point with vocabulary that we can't say 'such and such is' some vulgar term, or something like that because, first of all, that's poor writing in a newspaper and some of the kids may like it but the majority of the kids, I think, are turned off by that sort of a thing. That's true underground and we don't want that. We want to support the school as much as possible really. . . . The advisor, Mr. Haas, has the last say. When the articles are all done, he reads them and says either, "yes or no, change this, or get this word out of here." We usually come to an easy agreement with most things, the two editors — Diana Walker and myself — and Mr. Haas.

Q. What was the biggest aid in getting the paper going?

A. Well, the biggest aid would be Mr. Haas because last year (1970-1971) he wanted to organize a newspaper and he started to. Kids were signing up and everything. When this year (71-72) came around, the school, due to lack of financing, said No Dice, can't have a newspaper. This was sad and he was kind of disheartened about it. But he didn't give up; he formed a Journalism Club — he kind of went around the whole thing — and out of the Journalism Club we're running a newspaper . . . He's set it up; he's shown Diana Walker and me how to do stuff. We're greenhorns; we didn't know what to do. He's been helping us tremendously for every edition.

Q. Is the paper mainly anti-school or pro-school in its philosophies?

A. That all depends. It's neither, really. It's kind of a liberal paper. We're not always going to support the school. We're going to look at both sides, make a decision, and then write our articles about it or our commentaries or editorials on how we think it should be.

Q. How does the staff support the paper?

A. Easy — Since the school can't, we have to. That's why we have to charge (5 cents a copy) for it. Those are the breaks.

Q. What are you going to do with profits?

A. Have a party at the end of the year!

DANCE PRODUCTION

This year Dance Production class was held seventh hour with Mrs. Angela Jakes as director. On February 13, there was a workshop given by Shirley Mordine, a professional dancer. The girls learned new technique and form.

The dancers sponsored a popcorn sale during lunch and raised $60.00.

The production itself was to be given on February 4 and 5, with the cooperation of a group of girls from St. Charles and Aurora East High schools. Due to lack of completion of the dances, the dropping out of both other schools, and other miscellaneous reasons, the production was never given in public, but the dancers were graded on what was completed.

(Right) Lorna Pinkous, team captain, gives a first place performance at the conference meet for prose reading.

The 25 speech team members participate in a highly individualized form of competition. Eleven events make up the competition with some being impromptu and not memorized while others are either memorized or prepared well before being read.

This year the team came in third at the conference meet held from 8:30 A.M. to 3:00 P.M. here at West Chicago on Saturday, February 12. The team members are first evaluated on their individual performances. It is the compilation of individual scores in the various events that determines the school's placing.

The mainly underclass team has the opportunity to do even better in the next several years as it blossoms with its newly experienced members.

SPEECH

GRA: Skill — Teamwork — Friendly Competition

GRA, Girl's Recreation Association, is for all girls attending We-Go High. Offering a year round schedule of inter-class, intramural, and interscholastic sports, it is an active organization. GRA officers President Lisa Miller, Vice-President Pat Wind, Secretary Lynn Dieter, and Treasurer Tara Brown help the advisors plan the events. Pat Wind expressed GRA's aims as "creating a spirit of teamwork and friendly competition; teaching participants the meaning of sportsmanship; furthering the girl's skills and abilities; and giving her more confidence in herself, her abilities, and her goals."

In interscholastic competition, the seven sports offered this year were archery, tennis, field hockey, badminton, volleyball, softball, and track. For many of the teams this was their first or second year in school competition. In tennis Lisa Miller and Pat Wind were voted top doubles in their league.

In many interscholastic events fewer games are played than in similar boys sports. Pat Wind explained that "this is due to lack of many schools having money or facilities for these sports. Also the Illinois High School Association permits only a certain amount of sports days per girls sports."

Along with the various sports events, GRA held three successful playnites. The first one featured get-to-know-your-clubs speeches by representatives of school organizations; the second, a faculty-student volleyball game; the third, a "dunk tank" where students could dunk Mr. Sterner and others at three throws for a quarter.

GRA held a Spring Clean-Up day in April to raise money. Volunteer girl work crews performed clean-up jobs for the public on request from 7 a.m. to 6 p.m. Contributions given for the work totaled over $400.00. The money was used to send a GRA board member to GAA Camp for two weeks during the summer and for Senior College Scholarships. Any senior girl who had a 2.75 or better grade point average for seven semesters, was planning to seek further education, and had been an active member in GRA could apply. Three $100.00 scholarships were given to Sarah Jardine, Maryann Tarbox, and Pat Wind. These scholarships and all other awards were given at the GRA Awards Tea and Senior Honors Night at the end of May. To end the school year the GRA spring picnic was held at Reed-Keppler Park for all girls.

Students' Creativity Shown in Art Exhibit

This year an art show was presented by the Art Department for the first time on April 28th in the high school cafeteria. The display technique was a masterpiece in itself!

Oils, paints, leather, clay and paper mache were all part of the success of the show. The projects of different sizes and shapes were made by the students of art classes and showed the talent and creativity of the students and the opportunity of learning in the field of art. Refreshments were served to the public who attended the exhibit.

Pep Club Sponsors Fan Buses and Talent Show

Pep buses, skits, coronation, and a talent show were some of the jobs performed by Pep Club throughout the year. With "spirit" set as their goal, Pep Club members supported the school in various activities.

This year Pep Club tried an experiment. The ingredients included a bus and a group of enthusiastic wrestling fans going to the State wrestling tournament. The students had an unforgettable day, especially since they missed a day of school.

Pep Club held its annual talent show on May 12. The show consisted of a large variety of acts and blackouts, which presented an enjoyable evening for all, including the performers.

The executive board consisted of President Ann Carey, Vice-President Dawn Davis, Secretary Dotti Cole, and Treasurer Amy Henrikson.

Orchestra Performs

Orchestra was virtually forgotten in the beginning of the year as the major portion of time first hour was spent in marching band practise. When football season eventually ended, the Orchestra was whipped into shape through many rigorous rehearsals, under the skillful hands of Mr. Haney. The first concert of the year was the Veterans' Day Assembly. The concert began with classical music and finished with Simon and Garfunkel's hit Bridge Over Troubled Waters. The assembly was commemoration with a modern touch.

Next on the agenda was the winter concert, presented in conjunction with the Freshman Chorus. All went well and emotions were keyed toward the upcoming State Music Contest. Ensembles and soloists alike practised before, during, and after school in an attempt to earn a Superior Rating which would be rewarded by the familiar blue medal. We-Go musicians gave outstanding performances which placed them first in their district with a total of 202 concert points. Second runner up was a school with a much larger orchestra department, having a total of 189 concert points. The excellence of the musicians was verbalized by one judge when he remarked after hearing a string ensemble, "Holy Cow — you sounded like a stereo record!"

First chair musicians Barb Fernandes, Lisa Miller, Jim McVicar, and Aivars Baumanis perform under Mr. Haney's direction.

Barb Fernandes choreographed for the ten dancers.

"Everyone smile! . . . Scene 4: Quiet backstage! . . . Cindy, you've got to act more drunk at Hernando's . . . Carl, the tree was wobbling in 'Once a Year Day' . . ." This was Student Director Kevin Lambe conducting the critique sessions that filled 45 minutes to 1½ hours after each dress rehearsal in the final week of preparation for the three performances of the musical Pajama Game on March 10, 11, and 12.

Many of the 85 cast members were underclassmen. These freshmen and sophomores gained acting experience for future years.

When questioned about his lead role, Trent Frederickson commented, "I must admit I was very apprehensive about taking on such a role as 'Sid Sorokin', but as the weeks progressed my anxieties vanished. Performing on stage was a very pleasurable and fulfilling experience. I had never realized this until opening night."

The day before the show opened Mrs. Macey discussed some of the quirks that had been problems, one of the more interesting being that of the 'light' pajama bottoms. Costume Chairman Jalene Murphy had to sew four pounds of weights into the waistband of the pajama bottoms so they would fall down when Heinzie exhaled and popped the waist band button exposing his 'lover-boy' undershorts. Mrs. Macey ended, "If you listened closely you could hear them clunk when they hit the floor." Not forgotten, the hearted undershorts were framed for posterity and presented by the Pajama Game cast and crew to Mrs. Macey at the cast party held at the Crawford's house after the Sunday performance.

The orchestra pit provided the essential background music and atmosphere for the production, Pajama Game. Under Mr. Haney's direction they learned the fifteen musical numbers in the three week preparation period. Also instructed by Mr. Haney, the chorus and singers practiced separately with the orchestra. There was no music with the show in the first two weeks of rehearsal. By the fourth week of rehearsals the musical numbers were included in the rehearsals of the show. The performance of the orchestra truly contributed to the musical's success.

The golf team had problems beyond their control at the start of this year's season. The problems? — snow, cold, rain, soggy courses, and all-round bad weather.

Many of the team members practiced in spite of the bad conditions and it paid off for senior players Curt Rohwedel, Bill Hodson, Tom Farrell and Henry Leighton. Junior Steve Butler and sophomore Chuck Allen were other important golfers. According to Coach Swan "freshmen Roger Morgan and John Suppes have real good potential" for the following years.

Tennis Sees Improvement

There's no doubt about it! The Varsity tennis team has improved greatly this year. Coach Kosek was "very pleased with the season" and feels the fact that everyone came back from last year is a large contribution to their improvement. The coach also felt that many of the players as individuals had greatly increased their skill, for example Doug Schmult and Mike Ford. Two sophomores playing on the Varsity team were Doug Ryan and Kirk Anderson and a good team is expected for next year. Doug Ryan was voted most improved and Mike Ford most valuable player of the year.

Varsity: Devoted Few, Frosh-Soph: a Bright Future

The Varsity track team consisted of only eight juniors and seniors, yet they were experienced and dedicated men. Outstanding performers were Scott Dierking, running the 100 and 220 yard dashes; Aivars Baumanis, throwing discus; and Don Voelz, pole vaulting.

At the conference meet, the highlight of the season, the sophomore track team did their best and ended with a second place for their effort. Some of the outstanding trackers on the sophomore team were Gregg Hoffmann (shot put), Dave Hensel (long jump), and the 880 yard relay team which consisted of Tom Truitt, Rene Garcia, Joe Alinaz, and Dave Hensel.

Varsity Batmen District Champs

Frosh-Soph End Season Above .500

The Wildcat's hopes of starting this year's season out right were quickly damped by rain and wet fields. However, in the games that followed the batmen showed great improvement over last year's Squad.

Bob Muilenburg was again the leading pitcher. With strong defensive plays to back him, he was able to throw a no-hitter at Cary-Grove. Muilenburg led the bullpen with an E.R.A. of 1.45.

The Wildcats went to Batavia and became champs in the District Tournament. They took first place by beating Batavia 5-1 and St. Charles 5-4.

The team had two new additions this year, Carol Fisher and Brenda Moylan, who helped the team by being batgirls.

Bob Muilenburg pitcher and Terry Olson third baseman were named to the All-Conference team for their respective positions.

The Frosh-Soph proved to have strength in their bullpen as well as in their hitting. This year's squad had a total of 8 wins and 7 losses. The leading batting average was held by Gary Uteck with .353. Dave Nickelson and Ted Hattula held the best E.R.A. of the pitchers, each having a 1.75. Nickelson also led in the win and loss column with a record of 5-0.

Diana Walker

From Practice . . . to Baccalaureate — Honors . . .

Baccalaureate-Honors Convocation began June 5 at 8:00 p.m. in the Bishop Gymnasium with the Invocation given by Rev. Arthur Benolken. Awards for service to the school and scholarships were presented to the seniors. After A Capella choir sang the "Canticle of Praise" by Beck, Charles Ongom gave his farewell to West Chicago. Thomas Oas was named Valedictorian and Diana Walker, Salutatorian.

June 7, Rev. Charles H. Willey from Moline, Illinois, gave the commencement address, "The Magic of Words." Superintendent Dr. Gerald A. Saimon presented the Class of 1972. Principal Richard Howard read the names of the graduates while Robert Westrom, school board president, presented the diplomas to the 285 graduating seniors. The proud seniors exited to the music of the concert band and received the congratulations and best wishes of their families and friends.

To Graduation 1972

Valedictorian Thom Oas

"Around mid-terms and finals were the only times I ever felt like dropping out. You're up all hours of the night ripping apart your books. But it's worth it because after you're done it's a 'Yea! I've survived' sort of a deal." Valedictorian Thom Oas said he studied a lot but was "Dumbfounded" when he found out he was ranked first in the class. When asked what it felt like to be considered the best in the class, Thom came out with, "Well, it looks really good on a college application."

Thom said that learning is the most important aspect of school since "basically you're here to learn." He feels "If anybody half puts himself out he can learn."

Along with following a college-prep curriculum at school, Thom has worked at the Glen Ellyn MacDonald's where he worked a full 45 hour week for a time. When he worked full time his grades started to drop and he found himself falling asleep in classes ("not because they were boring, but because I couldn't stay awake.") He thinks a job and school can mix if working doesn't cancel out time for school.

Discussing his favorite subject, math, Thom said, "It can be very complicated . . . There's always something new to learn. This year's math has been difficult. Usually if I apply myself I can make myself understand it." Since the high school didn't offer a Calculus course he took Calculus at the College of Dupage besides his regular math course.

Thom will be going to Northwestern University as a math major, at the same time following a pre-med curriculum. He plans to go through that in three years. He hopes to go into medicine but if he can't get into medical school after college, he'll be able to fall back on his mathematical background.

Asked if there was some world figure who was any inspiration to him, Thom thought for a minute and then answered, "Jesus Christ, I guess. There's no political figure. I consider myself a Christian. He had a good way to live and He lived it. If there's anyone I want to pattern my life after it would be Him."

Salutatorian Diana Walker

Salutatorian Diana Walker admitted "No, I never studied a lot." She also said that she didn't work just to try to get in the top 10% of the class. She wasn't working for the grades and said, "Really I think grades are a poor motivation." It was evident that her motivation was just pure learning and understanding as she indicated, "As long as you're learning you're accomplishing something and that's what counts."

Diana has followed a college-prep curriculum but has participated in numerous extra-curricular activities with an attitude that they "make you a more well-rounded person." As courses go, she says that math is probably her favorite: "Most classes don't require a whole lot of work, but math is a challenge."

She thinks some students should have some say about the courses offered at the school. She also feels students should know in advance what teachers will be teaching specific courses. "Students and teachers are human and a personality clash can inhibit a student's learning."

Diana's love for acting surfaced immediately as she related her feelings about it, "I love the theater ... the idea of getting totally into a part, to get myself completely in the situation involved." She gets so totally involved in the characters she plays that she usually sees the other actors not just as high school actors but as the characters they play. Diana was pleased with the improvement in the drama department in the past two years and is glad that more people are getting interested in it. "I think people would be surprised how much they would like it (acting). Even working backstage is fun." Diana plans to major in drama at Southern Illinois University.

Asked if there was some world figure that she admired, Diana said, "One guy I really respected a lot was Gandhi, with his peaceful revolution tactics. Now so many revolutionaries say they are against war or are pacifists, but end up with violence or bombing buildings, which is really inconsistent. Gandhi was always peaceful in getting his point across."

Diana's attitude about participation in different school activities sums up a positive brand of involvement, "Most of the time if I'd really want to do something, I'd do it."

It's not all fun and games up in that little room on the third floor. Headaches go along with all the fun — for instance, worrying about a theme for the book, trying to get creative ideas, wondering whether or not we'll make the deadline, and of course hoping everyone will like it. A yearbook takes time, people who care, luck, more time, work, a good advisor, and more luck. But after it's all done, it's the kids on the staff who get the most out of the book because they've put some of themselves into each page. Then we can all sit back and analyze the book and the year, all the time knowing — that's it! The year of 1972!

Special thanks to staff members Carolyn Connelly, Lise Hager, Marcia Horzich, Kary Kyger, Don Rowan, Donna Taylor, Edie Thompson, and Jan Tredup.
