Laying the Foundation

Pardon Our Dust

The football field that we used to know is transformed into a new addition that we have yet to experience.

The construction workers begin to build one of the twenty-eight rooms of the new addition.

The new eight lane track and concession stand sit just across the street from where the old track used to be.

Students at West Chicago started school a little later than usual this year. After the referendum of 1997 failed, students were able to persuade adults about the new addition, and thus the 1998 referendum succeeded, bringing students a new addition to the school. PLUS renovations to the main building. According to the head of the business department, James Mast, the three year long project would cost roughly 2 million dollars, money well worth it in the long run. The new addition, which was set to be finished by August '99, just in time for the new school year, included twenty eight new rooms, all equipped with TV monitors and access to the internet. The new football field and track would be equipped with brand new, state of the art high school bleachers, scoreboard, and press box, and the baseball field was moved to Pioneer Park. Construction was under way for more parking spaces at Kerr McGowan and more were to be added around the new addition. Three new tennis courts were to be built right behind Lincoln school, next to the four original courts which remained untouched. What had been the back of the school was to become the second front of the school where the buses would be picking up and dropping off students. New heating and cooling vents were to be worked on and new electrical systems were to be wired in the existing building. Although the seniors of the school would not be able to experience the renovation, they took with them the wonderful memories they experienced during their four years in the main building.

Working For Progress

After a hard day of float building, Chris Hendricks, Alex Corson, Amy Allison, Cathy Wilken, Sara Stevens, Mitch Strohm, Lesley Leary, and Shannon Sterne take a break and smile.

Phil Roberts does an excellent job serving food at his local job at Wyndemere Retirement Community.

What's the funniest thing that happened to you this year?

"Nishil Patel meant to squat and farted really loud at soccer practice one day. It was so loud that Julio looked over and he was about twenty feet away." -Gabe Cruz

Taking a moment away from her job, Jodi Ebert models a pair of shoes.

WEST CHICAGO WORLDWIDE

West Chicago High School has gone international. Recently, exchange student studies have become popular. Students from other countries, as well as the U.S., travel abroad to learn about the culture, language, and education. This year West Chicago had the privilege of having Lauren Belding represent our school in Germany. She got involved in an exchange program hosted by the German government called the Congress-Bundestag Scholarship. This program allows high school students to study in Germany for a school year. The credits Lauren earned there count towards graduation upon her return to West Chicago. Was it fun? She seemed to think so. In her first letter she wrote, "Germany is so great ... I hope that I will be able to pick up some things. School should be a blast, as well as all other things here!"

West Chicago was also proud to host three foreign students. Two students, Lev Burov and Mikhail Shemyakin, came over from Russia to study and possibly live in America. One major difference Mikhail noticed was, "People in America drive cars, while in Russia almost everyone uses public buses." Another student, Julie Vinatier, came to study in America for a year from France. She thought of WeGo as, "Pretty cool. You don't have a lot of homework, teachers are cool, and there are some really funny teenagers. I like all the people who pierce everywhere."

FROM: Brive-La-Gaillarde, France

SCHOOL NAME: Bossuet

FAVORITE BAND: U2

FUNNIEST EXPERIENCE: All of the stupid questions that people keep asking me. Yes, (In France) we have TV. Yes, we have video games. Yes, we have indoor plumbing. Yes, the leaves fall down. Yes, we are driving on the right side of the road. And YES, French girls do shave!

Lauren Belding

CURRENTLY STAYING: Siegen, Germany

SCHOOL NAME: Gymnasium

FAVORITE BAND: The Cure

CRAZIEST EXPERIENCE: I was alone doing homework during 5th hour because everyone else was in Latin or French. The room had an overhead window that let the light in. There were some kids with their teacher on the roof installing solar panels and this boy sat down on the window thing and it suddenly came crashing down three meters. It hit the floor right before my eyes. It was so freaky but I think he was all right.

Lev A Burov

FAVORITE BAND: Sublime

IMPRESSION OF WEGO: The school is big, nice, and you can participate in sports. There are (also) many nice people here.

It's hard to find a way to go to the extreme on the Prairie Path!

Generation X-treme

ear, danger, pain, and the glamour of being in the spotlight when craziness is at its peak. Thrill-seeking was on the rise, and our pop-culture had inflated to be a dangerous one. Aggressive bikers tore up courses with only a bike between them and the asphalt, and snowboarders caught air in half pipes seconds from their fate of a safe landing or a mouth full of snow. This new way of living on the edge fired up great publicity for these limitless artists creating shows such as MTV's "Sports and Music Festival" where in-line skaters collaborated with music performed for an exhilarating show, and ESPN's "Winter X Games" where skiers twined through the air as if they would never land. The fed was even picked up by Hollywood, which produced such films as "Snowriders," "Aspen Extreme," and everyone's old school favorite, "Rad."

As these gutsy sports were noticed in the lime-light, more of us searched for that stomach sinking, heart pounding feeling. Whether it was skating, surfing, skydiving, bungee jumping, paint balling, snowboarding, cliff jumping, river rafting, biking, or any other radical sport, that unnerving feeling became addictive. Your adrenaline started racing, your brain cleared, your muscles tensed, and you plunged right in, experiencing the ultimate rush, and then you were crazy enough to do it again.

Flying over the wake of a boat, Toby Siefert, a wakeboard jockey, (center) got his thrills in the water. Balance was crucial during this stunt. If he didn't land with the precision and ease that is achieved almost unconsciously by a pro like him, Toby could have been thrown bouncing over the aqua like a skipping stone.

As this extremity became a more of a lifestyle, we saw clothing styles specially designed for these sports and hobbies. Evidence was proudly displayed of this adrenaline-high generation throughout our hallways on the very athletes that shaped it. "Pipe" tagged Incos skaters wore for mobility, or the trendy lines of North Face jackets worn by snowriders to ward the biting cold were a few of the many name brands that evolved around that daredevil way of life.

Skills that these extremists got didn't come naturally. Most of them had years of practice and bruises to make what looked like the impossible become a reality. So don't go home and try to be an Evil Kenievil. Whichever way you decide to get your kicks, please do it safely and live in the days that will be known for the insanity of excitement.

A biker since seventh grade, Mike Bolt anxiously awaited the gun shot signaling the start of the Downers Grove Criterion. This six mile 115 minute race sped past spectator at 20mph as it twisted through the local downtown streets. Mike's boss had offered to sponsor $50 entrance fee of this 1,000 participant race, landing Mike in his first official competition. He didn't consciously practice for the race, but he did ride all summer, and traveled 500 miles across scenic Pennsylvania. Finishing second to last, Mike had a lot to be proud of and said that he would do it again.

This Generation Was On An Adrenaline-High

These three aggressive skaters, Kyle Smith (left), Jason Aramboro (middle), and Adam Berry (right), all feel the thrill of a dangerous sport. While Kyle and Adam concentrated on balancing their weight grinding rails, Jason flew through the air, defying gravity as we know it. Skating is banned in a lot of places, so many go where the cops aren't, said Julio Gomez, a skater since October of his sophomore year, and most of the time they skate in prohibited parking lots despite the posted signs.

In What Do You Believe?

We saw it broadcast on every news channel, it was the topic of many discussions, there were countless articles about it on the internet, and it caused a shock wave of devastation that rolled across America. A small prayer circle was worshipping in a high school's commons, the students' songs and prayers a whisper under the commotion of weekend gossip between friends as they entered the school. Blending in with the environment, the circle was indistinguishable from the other groups of students gathered around tables playing cards or doing last minute homework ... until thundering gunshots singled out the prayer circle, leaving three students dead and five wounded. This plot was a reality in December of '97 at a high school in West Paduchah, K.Y. Ironically, instead of youth groups being banned from schools, this tragedy brought out many students who wanted to start youth groups in memory of the incident. Student-led religious groups, which had been quickly growing already, became as common as pep club or student council in the daily life of public schools. The Equal Access Act of 1984 granted freedom to students, stating that student-led religious clubs that are not linked to the curriculum and do not interfere with the school's operation are allowed in federally funded secondary schools. This freedom was a powerful tool for many students to use in spreading the word of their chosen belief.

At W.C.C.H.S., Christian groups such as Campus Life, The Cause, Shine, OMEGA, and The Salteens sprouted up due to student interest. Of course, Christianity was not the only faith represented by students in our school. Jewish, Buddhist, Muslim, Hindu, and Mormon religions are a few of the many faiths that students follow. On Sept. 16, '98 these religions came together in harmony at the Lincoln annex flag pole and pole across the nation. "See you at the pole" was a world-wide event (28 countries are involved) where students gather annually on one particular morning to pray, sing, and meditate for 45 minutes. About forty students and faculty were seen at the pole in the '98 observance.

So what about the students who don't attend youth groups? No one could assume that this great number of students didn't have a faith, but after passing out surveys asking students their opinions regarding religious groups, only 6 out of 100 came back. 4 of those students were involved in youth groups and 2 had the courage to stand out from this majority. Their responses questioned the strictness of religious groups hold, and they suggested being in a youth group is like being brain washed. Bob Garkow said that he likes his youth group Shine because it is a place for him to be free. In contrast, Karen Tuege said that she isn't involved in youth groups because they never really interested her enough to go. According to the Oct. '98 issue of Teen Magazine, brawls have broken out in other schools across the U.S. between followers of religious groups and fans of bands such as Marilyn Manson. When talking with Jason Lowe the Youth for Christ Ministry Coordinator of the area and the Campus Life director for West Chicago, he described youth groups as non-threatening, and said that tension among kids is normal and it doesn't surprise him. "I think that people get the most upset about Christianity because it is the truth," said Lowe.

The discussions of religion's place don't only happen in the hallways. Nearly every year students in government class write a bill to separate church and state. This is a lucky subject among many students and leads to many heated debates. In the Fall, '98 sessions, HB-5 wanted to prevent religious groups from forming in public schools, thus eliminating the peer pressure students might feel to join. This bill also stated that religious groups make other students feel inferior and insecure about their religious beliefs. The bill used the first amendment to try and support the idea. Samir Patel agreed with this bill. "If you want to pray in school you should really consider going to a religious school," said Patel. In the other corner, Sarah Blank didn't understand how the first amendment could support this bill because in the first amendment it states that Americans have the right to peaceably assemble and that is exactly what religious groups do. There will always be two sides to subjects that have so much diversity. While the practice of religion hadn't yet brought about any huge controversy in West Chicago, it was evidenced every day in our halls, classrooms, and community.

- Jaime Puchalski

Jeff Tilson, a student leader of Omega, is the guitarist in the worship band his youth group started. In the past few years this band has doubled the group's attendance. "I have stopped being friends with people who don't have a desire for God. I want to live with friends that encourage me, talk to me, and pray with me," said Tilson.

"Youth Group Encourages me to keep on track with school, friends, dating, and God."
-Dave Pande
Salteens @ St. Andrew Lutheran

God hungry students of Omega sing soulfully along with the band at the West Chicago Bible Church. Bessy Czernik, Teresa Visser, Nate Kalish, Michelle Brady, and Andy Sinetos are a few of the forty students regularly involved with his high-energy youth group.

Bessy Czernik, Janine Barajas, and Corinne Mackniskas socialize after a uplifting Wednesday night session with Omega. Students are encouraged to bring friends, and nearly all the people that attend this youth group are from W.C.C.H.S.

Justin Kallars, covered in the tarp, holds the bottle steady while his teammate concentrates on pouring the water accurately into the bottle. Games and activities before worship are like ice-breakers to get everyone loosened up and comfortable.

During a game at Shine, Ryan Dorn races to pour water in a gatoraid bottle balancing on his brave teammate's chest. Waiting in line, Bryan Kelsey, Peter Milauskas, and Greg Wheaton anticipate their turns in the friendly competition to fill the bottle first.

Ashley Link isn't prepared with a rain hat as she gets surprised with a splash of water in the face. Shine, a youth group through Evangel Baptist Church, is described by students as having amazing unity under the body of Christ.

"I think the WWJD trademark has turned into another commercial Jesus product. It doesn't give people an idea of who Jesus really is or what he is about."
- Justin Birchard
The Cause @ First Baptist Church of Wheaton

"Part of being a Christian is to share the good news of Jesus Christ with as many people as possible."
- Rachel Baker
Shine @ Evangel Baptist in Wheaton

Catching people with the human net they made by holding hands and running around, students of Omega play a game similar to Red Rover. Games are usually followed by worship and then Bible study. A majority of students say that their favorite part of youth group is worship.

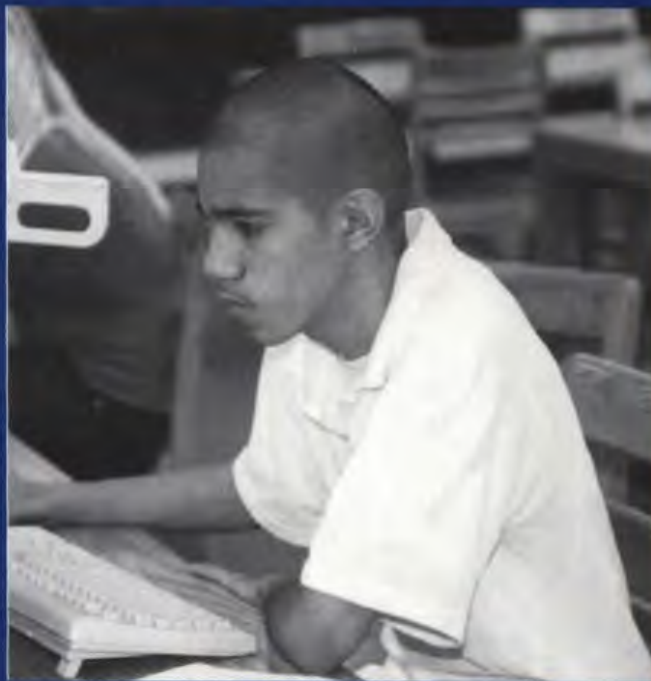

Heather Hendricks and Ryan Fuoss, part of the human net, are determined to capture their opponents. As well as fun and games, Omega does a lot of intense worship. Some goals this youth group has for it's students are to mainly turn their world upside down for Christ and to reach out to others with the comfort of God.

Trying to create a loving and accepting environment, Bart Visser, Becky Watson and Ed Bruenning (class of '98) interact in the unifying game.

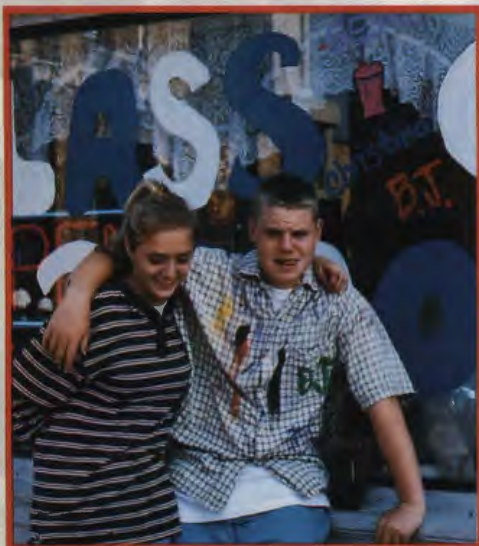

"I am not in youth group because I am not very religious. There is absolutely no outside influence on where my beliefs come from. I say, think, and do what I want."

Building the Infrastructure

Class of 2000

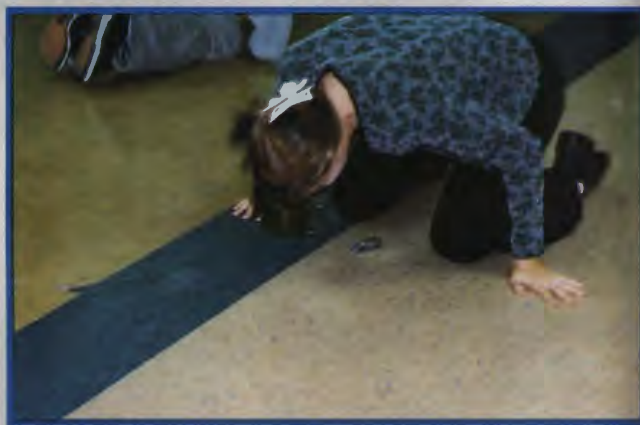

Brian Jones and Crystal Adams dance joyfully in front of the St. Vincent DePaul Thrift Store, hoping their artistic talent pays off to win the window painting contest. "It was very interesting and allowed me to show my friends my creative skills in painting. I think I did a great job at showing off some school spirit, but I never thought the art would turn out this great," said Brian Jones.

Molly Saul, Abigail Brown, Melissa Acker, Maggie McPike, Kerry Herbert, Autumn Planek, Kim Ellis, Jeremy Schmidt, Rachel Baker, and Cassandra Mitchell. The seniors work hard, making sure that their Gilligan's Island window has a good chance of winning, which it does. "We all teamed up together and showed our school and athletes our big spirit," Maggie McPike said.

The class of 2002 has some fun on their Brady Bunch float as they cruise down Joliet Street. The Brady kids sing the all time classic theme song as some dreamy guys and groovy chicks look on.

Lindsay Castiglia helps lead the sophomores to victory in the Test 'Nots Push. The game consists of a little matchbox car that students had to get across the finish line by using their nose. Castiglia exclaimed, "I fell so stupid, but at least we won!"

Alex Corson sure is having fun helping build the sophomore float. It kept everyone who helped busy all week, but was worth it when the Taxi float was named the best one in the parade.

All the hours of practicing pay off as Anthony Castiglia, Andre Garcia, and Jeff Callahan are supported by their fellow cheerleaders. They performed their routine perfectly, but Callahan worried, "I sure hope Chris Weston wasn't looking up my skirt!"

Franchesca Smith, Nathaniel Stonequist, Pamela Lopez, Leena Patel, Chris Wiemold, and (sitting) Jessica Loftus clown around as they set up for the parade. They threw candy to the crowd as they walked what seemed like forever, but Smith said, "It was a great clown experience."

We-Go Through the Tubes" turned back the clock of entertainment, celebrating shows such as the Brady Bunch, which was the Freshman Theme; Taxi, the sophomore theme; Happy Days, the junior theme; and Gilligan's Island, the senior theme. Kicking off homecoming week, the traditional window painting contest on Main St. in downtown West Chicago commenced the battle of the classes on Saturday, September 26, 1998. Painters, Magdalena Orta and Brandon Lanners, made their artistic efforts stand out on the Peer Listeners' window. "It was fun! I didn't know what I was going to paint, but it turned out good at the end," said Lanners. Also working hard on the Thespian's window were Lisa Amett, Heidi Fuoss, and Melissa Birch. They painted a vibrant collage of the previous year's performances. "All our hard work paid off after won first place in the clubs category," said Amett. Seniors adorned windows of the True Value hardware store with a colorful scene from Gilligan's Island, earning them first place early on, but tougher competition awaited the class in the festive week to come. Float Building also began on Saturday, continuing rivalry between the classes until Friday, when the judges decided which float contained the most pizzazz.

During the week, morning games were played, giving each class an opportunity to earn points in the brutal battle. Ready, set, hop! Contestants of the Brady Bunch potato sack race were ready to take off Monday morning. An all girls junior team consisting of Angie Miorro, Claudia Gentile, Ashley Arlington, and Aubrey Ham tried to beat the senior stallions, Jeff Stogis paired with Jeff Powell, the sophomore studs, Brain Alegard, Adam Fritz, and Kyle Hempel, and the freshmen's finest, Mike Smith and Tom Armstrong. In the final dash victory was achieved by the girls. "I love this game! This is the best school ever!" said Mike Smith. Games such as the shake drinking contest and the limbo competition likewise received rave reviews from the players. "The limbo contest was the most attended event, and the best ranked by the students," said Maggie McPike. Towards the middle of the week seniors tried to hit the school with an unexpected tee-peeing on Tuesday night. Despite their efforts to be stealthy, seniors were caught by passing officers. Still, they didn't give up. The officers had to call police liaison officer Tony Quarto, and Assistant Principal John Highland. Seniors then negotiated with them, ending up tee-peeing one tree in spite of the school's resent banning of the spirited activity.

The Homecoming court: Anthony Castiglia with Rachel Baker, Cathal Walsh and Abby Brown, Jeff Callahan with Maggie McPike, Mike Chapin with Molly Saul, and Kevin Rugaard with Collette Taylor wait in anticipation as the 1998 Homecoming King and Queen are about to be announced at the pep assembly.

Queen Rachel Baker and King Cathal Walsh

The next morning students came to the roller paper decorated school dress and up as characters from their classes' theme TV shows. Concluding the week, Friday was packed with a slew of activities, hall decorating, the pep assembly, the food fest, and the parade created a day bringing everyone together to celebrate before the big football game. The junior class earned first place in hall decorating by placing balloons all over their halls. Seniors wore Hawaiian necklaces showing a different kind of spirit for the hall decorating contest. During the pep assembly Ms. Daneels, Mrs. Lamins, and Mr. Kellner voted on which class was the loudest. It was a close call, but the sophomore class came in first. Victory E. Wildcat ran around the gym stirring up the crowd, the cheerleaders and poms performed to their best, fall sports team captains announced their goals, and the tug of war contest showed the real strength of each class. "The funniest things that I saw during homecoming week was someone pulling the wildcat's tail, and the guy cheerleaders," said Kimberly Flowni. Food fest filled everyone's stomach. Students enjoyed hot off the grill hamburgers and hot dogs. Crepes were served by the French Club, tostadas by the International Club, and snow cones by the cheerleaders. Finalizing the week, the parade went on in spite of the rainy weather. Homecoming week '98 was a big success.

A New Way Of Living

Francisco Ramirez anxiously gets his things to go home after a long day of school.

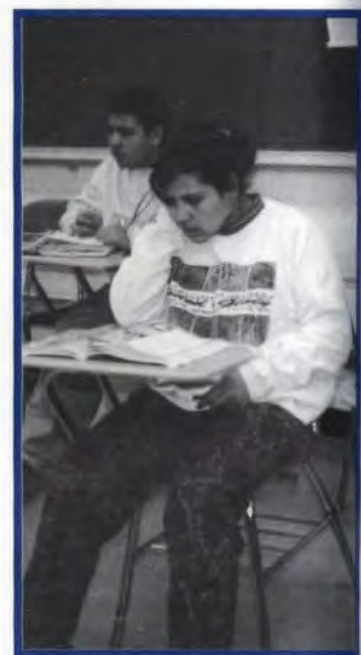

New immigrants come to this country every year in search of new life. Many of them come to work and make money. But while they're here, their kids are going to school and learning a lot of new things, and many of them come to the West Chicago High School. There are a couple of obstacles an immigrant has to overcome. The most obvious is speaking English; another one is adjusting to a new educational system.

New immigrants' main goal is to learn to speak English. Many of them have achieved speaking it through a lot of practice, and many of them are still learning. But one thing is for sure, it isn't easy to learn a new language and a new culture from one day to the next. Many say English is the hardest language to learn. There are vowels that can be pronounced in many different ways. There are words that can be spelled different ways but sound exactly the same and mean different things.

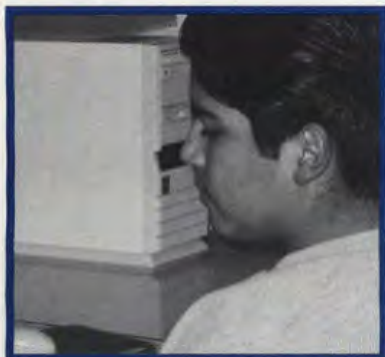

Then there's adjusting to a new educational system. For example, in Mexico the teachers are the ones that change classrooms, not the students. It's also customary for the students to invite their teachers over for dinner to show gratitude and appreciation towards them. A difference in the American school system is that everything around here is kind of hectic. Everybody has his or her own thing going on. In Mexico, since the schools are small, everybody knows each other.

It takes a lot practice and time to learn a new language and adjust to a new school system, but if you put your mind to it you can succeed and do anything.

-Andre Garcia

The 1998 Homecoming celebration fell on the weekend of October 3. Since WeGo was under construction, the football team didn't have a home stadium to play at. The traditional schedule that WeGo usually follows was not at all the schedule used this year. The big football game was on Friday night instead of on Saturday afternoon. Our football team battled Naperville North on that rainy Friday night, and despite the rain and distance from the home field, WeGo Supporters and alumni still showed up in great numbers to cheer WeGo on. Even though the schedule was changed, students still anticipated the dance on Saturday night.

After a rough, competitive week, students showed up on Saturday night in style and ready to have a good time. When asked what he did to get ready for the dance, Sean Morris said, "I really didn't have to do much; I looked in the mirror and saw myself and thought, 'Wow! I am a stud!'" Kim Ellis said, "This was the best dance yet. I jumped from group to group socializing with everyone!" Everyone agreed that the music was basically the same as every other dance. Music from the Grease soundtrack, especially popular after the recent re-release of the blockbuster movie, was featured at the dance, along with the Electric Slide, so students were not surprised when they heard those songs. It was a great night to add to a collection of a great high school memories.

WORKS IN PROGRESS

Challenge '99 Volume 53

High school is filled with memories that will never be forgotten. West Chicago High School is a place we all came to know very well. We shared good times, bad times, new experiences, and friendships to last a lifetime. With the changes that have taken place, West Chicago will never be quite the same as when we knew it. The changes that had already taken place by the '98-'99 school year affected many of the students at West Chicago. Some of them for the better, and some for worse. Missy Hahn said, "Because of the parking problem due to the construction, I got to school everyday before zero hour, and most of the time I still had to park at Kerr McGee." Addie Shreeram said "I am glad that the school is getting enlarged, but it is too bad that I won't be here for it." Not everybody looked at the negative side of the work that was in progress at West Chicago. Some students looked forward to the improvements in the school, and some were amused with the chaos that the construction brought. Justin Yalbert laughingly said, "It didn't affect me too much, but I had fun laughing at all of the people who drove around in the mornings looking for a place to park."

While some people were working to change the school, others were working to change themselves. When asked, "If you could change anything about yourself, what would it be?" Nicole Sullivan replied, "Nothing. People today have to stop being so critical of themselves and just have fun without worries." We also asked some students, "What does works in progress mean to you?" Danfelle Davis said, "To me works in progress means working toward your goals for the future." Kael Powers said, "Works in progress for me is getting used to the freedom in high school as well as all of the responsibilities." Works are always in progress at West Chicago High School, whether they be additions and renovations to the building or to the people within. So, dive into each day with adventure and leave behind your fears. No need to worry, change is good, from beginning to end!

What is Freshman Year? Is it the end of our youth and innocence, the beginning of responsibility and work, and the time of our lives when we are thrown into an inferno of upperclassmen who try to taunt and scare us with their chanting of "FRESHMAN!"? Or is it the dawning of a new life of freedom and equality where we no longer have things done for us, but we learn how to do things we always wanted to know? We believed it was the latter, and with this sense of understanding came a sense of pride and achievement that was unmatched anywhere in this world. We felt this way then, but we hadn't always felt this way. When our class of 2002 came to this school, most of us were intimidated by the chanting and rumors, we were scared of our teachers because we had been falsely warned that they were a lot more strict, harsh, and full of discipline than they really were. Before we had time to consider these problems of ours, we had to learn our way through a huge building full of the faces of the upperclassmen.

men. We were afraid our lifestyles would be set aside and we would have to find a new way to live our lives. These were all unnecessary worries. Our class was able to find our niche in almost no time. We quickly gained equality in our new home. We learned how to play the game fully, from rules to rights, from student to teacher, from peer to peer. We were the beginners, but we earned the right to be above freshmen next year, thanks to our peers' friendship, our teachers' knowledge, and our school spirit to motivate us through it all.

DRAWING UP THE

September

I remember the time,
When September was mine,
And the world lay spinning at my feet.

Life's fulfillment was all,
Laid simply to my call-
Where my dreams and wishes came complete.

Now October is here,
With November so near-
All my views and feelings rearranged.

For the lesson that's taught,
Too priceless to be bought-
Is that life, like the seasons, will change.

I remember a time,
When September was mine-
As December's wind blows cold through my soul.

The things I'd wish to erase,
And lifetimes to change-
As I walk through my seasons alone.

Fall

The boys' soccer team had it's share of disappointments but learned a lot for the '99-'00 season. The Wildcats were a young team undergoing changes and a rebuilding process that looked to be complete and set to go for next season. The season of struggles ended with an overall record of 6 and 10 and 3, with a conference record of 1 and 5 and 1. Their previous year was a major success in which the cats won a sectional championship but only six of those starters returned. Four of whom were seniors so the team hoped to start fresh, but young Juniors were overmatched throughout the year. Eight seniors overall returned to varsity, but injuries had plagued the team throughout the year. Two of the starting seniors were out a good part of the season, as well as a few juniors being affected from injury. 1999 looked to be bright for the now experienced seniors to be and the upcoming juniors which finished 11-3-5.

Mike Streams cocks up to throw a bomb down line.

The varsity Co-Captains were Kevin Rugaard, Joe Leli, Alberto Perez and Dave Boyle. The varsity team was coached by Robert "Bruno" Owens and assistant Steve Brugmann. Most Improved Player was Eric Chorobik, Best Offensive player was Dave Boyle, while Best Defense went to Neil Fuchs and Best Overall player was Alberto Perez who was also given All-Conference. The Coach's Award was given to Andy Spalo.

A Learning Experience

This season the volleyball team had to deal with the loss of some key players. Coach Hasty said they, "had to play more together as a team and rely on other people." Although they struggled in conference, they learned a lesson in teamwork. Setting was definitely a strong point. Melissa Acker received honorable mention for her setting, and Chrissy Dabbert was awarded MVP. Most Improved went to Natalia Sienkowiec, and the Coach's award was given to Jeanette Arroyo. This year the team hoped to repeat it's regional title. After they won the first game of regionals, it seemed possible. Even though they lost the next match, Hasty was really happy with the team because they worked together and never gave up. She said, "the juniors really stepped up. They are a great group of student athletes and are very coachable." This tough season was a learning experience for everyone on the team.

The Road Warriors

Andre Garcia looks for an open path.

Let go of my leg, please!

As the West Chicago football team spent their whole season on the road, their unity became admirably strong. Their schedule of all away games was due do the construction turning our old football field into a sandbox. The players took this all and turned it into a challenge. It's always tougher to prepare mentally for an away game but they were ready for it. At game time, the players came out very confident. Win or loss, good or bad, they kept their heads up and played harder. Everyone wanted to get in there and play no matter what the score was. They didn't just play the game, they felt it. Their anger and pain were easily seen when they knew they could have done better. Their power and pride were readily visible when they made a great play. They put their whole heart in and gave one hundred and ten percent. Leading the team was MVP Brian Raymond. Receiving All-Conference 1st team was Mike Schneider. The most improved player was John Malone. Tim Harwood was given the Wildcat Award, and Mike Chapin the Randy Jacobs Award. Off the field, the team was like a family. They all got along and stuck up for each other. The night before the Glenbard North game, over half the team shaved their heads. Wednesdays were pride days when the players were all in football t-shirts. On Thursdays, the coaches awarded t-shirts to outstanding players in practice, defense, and special teams. All the players walked around in their t-shirts, proud to be a part of the family. They got together on Thursday nights before a game at someone's house for their weekly Thursday night dinner. Our team was slowly building and earning more respect. They were becoming a much stronger team and were starting to challenge the DVC. Coach Stone said they were "starting to see the corner" and they'd soon be turning it all around.

Swingin' On The Courts And Greens

While trying to overcome a low turnout and loss of players from last year, both the tennis and golf teams did their best this season. Girls' golf had only enough players for a varsity team. Most members didn't have a lot of experience and still tried their best throughout the season. Boys' golf also suffered losses from last year's team and looked to experienced players to pull the weight and lead the team. Boys' golf looked to captains Jeff Belokin and Jeff Powell, while girls golf looked toward seniors Ellen McLoughlin and Molly Saul. Even with a small number of players on the teams this year, the golf teams definitely achieved their goals. The boys placed in the top five at DVC, and the girls won more games than last year. Looking to Amanda Hallock and Theresa Visser, the girls' tennis team won a lot more games this year than the team did last year. Freshman Kim-Pha Chau and Vanessa Gullien became the MVPs of the year for tennis, while Jeff Powell, Molly Saul and Christy Palombi received their MVP awards for golf. Both golf and tennis did a terrific job this year and truly deserve their recognition of being great teams for our school.

Running Down

The West Chicago cross country teams had contrasting seasons. The girls, despite numerous injuries, were able to pull through. The Frosh/Soph girls had some success in a few invitationals. They took second place at the Crystal Lake and Benet Invites thanks to outstanding efforts by freshmen Meghan Young, Jessica Strock, and MVP Erin Kirby. The Varsity girls often placed in the middle half, the team lead by Junior Rachel Altergott and Michelle Lasky. The girls put forth an outstanding effort throughout the season. Overall, each runner showed improvement, and that's the key to cross country. As a team they accomplished the goal to establish themselves as the MVP.

The boys' varsity team had a successful season. They placed on top in every meet they competed in. Amazingly, they scored a perfect score at the Belvedere Invite, some of the best in cross country. In the DVC, they took second, only one point behind Naperville Central. Juniors Tim Keller and Rich Belcher, and Seniors Dan Young and Wes Skidgel finished high enough at the DVC to be put on the first all-conference team. The guys went on to win a tough regional and advanced to sectionals. At sectionals, the team competed hard and took one of the five slots to state. In Peoria, where the state meet was held, the guys' team dug down deep and finished with seventh place in state, the best ever in the history of West Chicago cross country. Dan Young finished 31st, Tim Keller 34th, Wes Skidgel 38th, Bart Visser 70th, and Rich Belcher 112th. Finally, the 1998 dream season came to an end. All the teams found success through hard work and dedication that would certainly carry over into future seasons.

Making Progress In

The Lady Wildcat swimmers and divers had an excellent season of hard work and improvement. The team took fifth place at DVC and third place at Sectionals. There were a few swimmers who stood out, such as Tracey Drzal who took first place at DVC for the five-hundred freestyle. At awards night, Danielle Lureau received MVP while Jennifer Cwaik received MVP. The special honor of Rookie of the Year went to Heather Prochnow. There were two swimmers who received All-Conference Honorable Mention; Tracey Drzal and Abby Grant. Katy Coffman, Danielle Lureau, and Stephanie Shalek received All-Conference Honorable Mention. "Although our season didn't reflect the hard work we put in, I'm still really proud of all of us," said Katy Coffman, a Lady Wildcat swimmer.

As for the divers, almost all of them achieved personal bests at DVC. Katalin Larm and Emily Mueller represented West Chicago at Sectionals and placed tenth and eleventh. The divers worked hard throughout the season and look forward to stronger seasons to come.

Fall Play

Y2K? Not Quite Yet ...

This year's fall play, The Desk Set, starred senior Jessica Inch as Bunny Watson and senior Jon Fraser as Richard Sumner. A 1950's movie starring Katherine Hepburn and Spencer Tracy was based on the play. This 50's romantic comedy portrayed four liberated women fighting to keep their office jobs (seniors Lisa Arnett, Heidi Fuoss, and Jessica Inch, and freshman Copper Tuma). Meanwhile, the boss' nephew (Richard Sumner, played by Fraser) tried to prove that computers were the new-age "brain." Junior Beau Brown played Abe Cutler, Bunny's "beau." When Richard entered the picture, she discovered she was not so sure of her love for Abe. Besides causing Bunny to reevaluate her feelings, he tried to challenge her brain power, using Emmarac, a new, advanced computer. The play's director, Mary Hafertepe, was very pleased with the production and thought it went extremely well. She stressed that all were very complimentary in their responses to the show and enjoyed the spirit of the second act where the cast had a lot of fun. This act was set during a Christmas party where a congo line, led by senior Michael Petrik, aroused an enthusiastic reaction from the audience. Hafertepe said, "Everyone knew that the main goal was to put on the best show they could." And that's exactly what they did.

-Katie Saul and Meredith Moore

Beau Brown grins as Jessica Inch lays one on him.

Lisa Mendez almost has a nervous breakdown as Emmarac breaks down.

We Are One Voice!

This year's choirs proclaimed their love for music, communicating that choir is not about what one can do individually, but about how they all sound and interact as a group. This year's choir cabinet consisted of Cheryl Pruett as President, Pat Scullion as V.P., Abby Brown as Secretary, and Annalisa Walker as Treasurer. Madrigals, jazz, choir, girls' ensemble, and guys' ensemble were among extra-curricular groups. Concert choir went to the Sears' Tower to perform and also to the U of Illinois to be adjudicated. The intermediate girls' choir went to Elgin H.S. to sing with girls their age. Guys' ensemble went to Wheaton Warrenville South to see the University of Michigan's top mens' choir perform. Cheryl Pruett, leader of girls' ensemble, said "It has been so much fun being a part of Girls' Ensemble this year. Because it was a student directed group and the first to do this, each girl had to step up and become a leader. It will only get better in the future, and I can't wait to hear them next year!" Members of concert choir had a chance to go to the Millikin University Vocal Festival and to the Fox Valley Music Festival at Neuqua Valley H.S. In March, all choir members had the opportunity to compete in the Solo & Ensemble Contest at Hinsdale South H.S. where Wego came out with 36 superior ratings. At the Six Flags Music Festival, concert choir ended up winning first place with superior ratings. Intermediate choir won first place with excellent ratings, and beginning choir won second place. Miss Smith commented that "It has been an incredibly busy year with much activity, but each concert and extracurricular activity has brought about great growth in each of the choirs' overall musicianship and character! Each choir has developed its own unique personality and it has been fun to see it come out in the music they sing."

Jake Reiner carefully carves out the bottom part of his clay container in Mr. Rumberger's ceramics class.

Rosa Robedello looks through one of her books to try and explain to her friends about a problem.

Dan Delort chats with his teacher, Mrs. Costello, about the next fun activity they will do.

Shannon Seil looks over the shirt she's sewn in her class and checks it to make sure it came out all right.

Students spend some social time in the cafeteria before they are dismissed back to class.

5:45 a.m.: the alarm went off and another day had begun. Students rushed to their classes, preparing to spend the next seven hours learning. After school was just around the corner, filled with sweaty practices, club meetings, demanding jobs, and late-night studies. Lilli Szanranski said, "I had the hardest time trying to fit my overwhelming schedule into 24 hours."

The largest part of a young adult's life is preparing for the future. Robyn Leary stated, "I like the opportunities you get by being exposed to things that you can't learn on your own." There are others who would prefer to be somewhere else. Joe Mitchell yawned and exclaimed, "I had trouble just staying awake in class." He was among many other tired students who would've rather been asleep.

The second hand on the clock stretched towards the three and the final bell echoed through the halls; 3:15 at last. Students hurried to their club meetings, practices, or home. Homework was still left to be done and projects needed to be started. Time flew as the students finished their work.

Soon it was 11:00 p.m., time to hit the pillow. After all, it was a long but satisfying day. Then a ring shattered the silence: 5:45. A new day had begun yet again.

Bands And Hangouts

All high school students have had nights when they had no plans and ended up sitting around, wondering what to do. Some went out and made trouble for themselves, while others spent quality time with their friends. For those who always felt that the only option they had was to engage in illegal or potentially dangerous activities, there was an alternative. The coffee shops that had become so popular in the past few years were a great place to hang out. First of all, they were an option that got people out of their houses, and they were also a quiet place to get up close and personal with whomever they deemed worthy. The most popular coffee house was probably Starbucks. (I mean really, how many of you don't recognize the name?) Other shops that sprang up in recent years included Caribou Coffee, where you could sit by the fire and enjoy your coffee; Borders, where you could shop for books and music and then drop in for a "drop" of Joe; and Gloria Jean's, the coffee accessory spot. In downtown Winfield, there was a quaint little coffee/ice cream/candy/gift shop, with a real homey feeling to it called T.J.'s Sweets and Coffee Emporium. Just this past summer, West Chicago acquired a coffee shop called The Sanctuary in downtown West Chicago, which even featured open mike nights. All high school students like to have fun, but we all had different ideas of what "fun" is. No one's idea is necessarily right or wrong, but one tends to think that his or her options are lacking, limited or boring. That's where coffee shops come in. They could even be described as a Java refuge.

Coffee shops are great places for bands to get started. They offer bands chances to play in front of crowds and have their music heard. "I play for the audience," said Bob Martin of the hardcore punk band Denied Self. "I hope to entertain and get a message across to them."

West Chicago, Illinois does have a music scene. At first glance, however, this may not be apparent. If you dig deeper into the heart of the high school, you will find the underground and the bands that dwell there. Their music is not "mainstream." They play the music they like and not the music that everyone else likes. "If I just keep on rockin' with attitude, talent doesn't matter," said Nate Kalesh. It's this excitement about their music that makes them something you should check out.

The school offered a few opportunities for these bands to bring their music to their peers. Events like the variety show, All Night Long, and even the Mr. Wildcat contest, were some of these opportunities. Bands such as Black Circle, Filthy Rhythm Pilgrim, the Flaming Jorges, the Poo Bears (R.I.P.), and Hip-hop group The Number Runners, all played at these events.

As for the Hip-hop scene, Joe Leli said, "Hip-hop has been making an impact at We-Go. It's well represented throughout the neighborhoods and through the high school. It's only getting stronger and gaining more popularity throughout the town each day."

In the years to come, if you are looking for something fresh and original in your music, check out some of the high school bands. From death metal to punk, ska to hardcore, the students at our high school offer a wide variety of music for your listening pleasure.

The first hockey club of West Chicago Community High School was inaugurated this year. They spent their season getting to know each other and celebrating their many victories. They ended the season with a great record while Derek Dipietro received MVP. When asked if the season was a fulfilling one, Marc Doerr replied, "Yes, we accomplished many of our goals and each learned how to be team players. For the very first time in the history of WCCHS, we congratulate our hockey club for making us proud."

The Man in the Glass

When you get what you want in your struggle for self and the world makes you king for a day, just go to the mirror and look at yourself and see what that man has to say.

For it isn't your father or mother or wife whose judgment upon you must pass.
 The fellow whose verdict counts most in your life is the one staring back from the glass.

You may be like Jack Horner and chisel a plum and think you're a wonderful guy.
 But the man in the glass says you're only a bum
 if you can't look him straight in the eye.

He's the fellow to please — never mind all the rest,
 for he's with you clear to the end.
 And you've passed your most dangerous, difficult test
 if the man in the glass is your friend.

You may fool the whole world down the pathway of years and get pats on the back as you pass.
 But your final reward will be heartache and tears
 if you've cheated the man in the glass.

Fire The Rock

North's Grace brought the score to a tie. Then, senior, Jeanette "Jay" Arroyo delivered a basket that closed the first overtime with another tie. The Lady Wildcats finished off the second overtime with a win. The second win was against Naperville North. The WeGo team's defense came through to prevent a loss. A three-point last minute play from the Huskies failed, leaving the Lady Cats with their second conference victory.

The Sophomore Girls' team also experienced great success. Their team finished a conference champions in the DVC. With a sophomores and one freshman, the team roughed the season out and managed to defeat some talented teams. One bizarre win came from an overtime game against Naperville North. By the end of the game, there were only three girls on the court for North. The rest had fouled out, and with ten seconds left in the overtime, another North player fouled out.

The future looks bright for the Girls' basketball team. The young team from last year will come back with more experience and power behind them. Sophomore MVP, Beth Brinn exclaimed, "I can't wait until next year. It's gonna be good!"

Despite the West Chicago Girls' Varsity Basketball 6-29 record, the season was still successful. It was a year of rebuilding and gaining experience. The team worked hard, learning through their mistakes. The team had only two varsity returners with playing time under their belts. That left three sophomores, two juniors, and two seniors with little or no previous varsity time.

The WeGo team was able to capture two conference wins. The first was an exciting double overtime win against Wheaton North. A three-point basket at the buzzer by Wheaton is for work. Wrestling takes strength, speed, agility, and flexibility, and you have to work hard to make it to the top.

is for respect. Wrestling has started to earn more respect around the school and the numbers are going up.

is for endurance. Six minutes may not seem like much, but when you come off the mat you are dead tired.

is for skill. There are hundreds of different moves you can throw on your opponent, but you need the skill to throw in the move and think quickly.

is for our teacher appreciation night where every wrestler invited his favorite teacher to come watch him wrestle.

is for leaders. Captains this year were Ben Stevens, Pete Serrato (Most Improved Wrestler), and Luis Aguado (Most Valuable Wrestler).

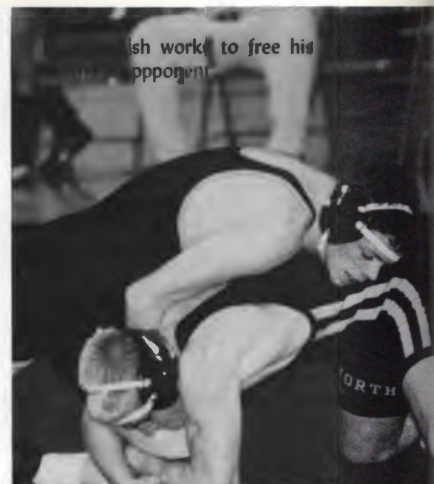

is for intensity. Dave DuBose came in everyday full of intensity and heart. That earned him the Coaches' Award.

is for our new coaches, Head Coach Pat Manning and Freshman Coach Josh Chambers. Manning was a great addition to our program and we were lucky to have him.

is for guts. Wrestling is an individual sport and it takes guts to go out on a mat, all alone, with nobody to blame but yourself.

Swimming

The Wildcat swimming team blazed through the '98-'99 season with 1st place trophies and 1st place medals in their trail. When they heard the phrase, "Have no mercy," they took it to every letter. With sophomores Joe Lureau and Joe Hamlin leading the pack, they taught the ropes to the rookies. Joe Lureau gave it his best and made it to state. "Swimming was really fun this year," said Joe Lureau. With half the team consisting of freshmen, Coach Chris Hall had high expectations for each one of them. As days went by, each swimmer shaved seconds off their best times. The future looked very bright for the team. "The swim team was great this year," said Kurt Fenner. Even though they were very serious about swimming, they enjoyed making new friends too. They changed the sport of swimming into a fun time that they enjoyed doing with their friends instead of a serious, strict sport. "Swimming is fun and competitive," said Steve VanderNaalt. He added, "Swimming has made me a wild man." Joe Lureau received MVP for all his hard work. In sectionals he got 2nd in the 200 IM and 100 breaststroke. Kevin McCarthy earned MIP when he brought his best times as low as they go. Henry Somers was Rookie of the Year. He showed that he had spirit and strength. Cheering Away From Home

Once again, the cheerleaders did an outstanding job in cheering on the West Chicago Wildcats. To prepare for the season, the cheerleaders attended UCA camp at Northern Illinois University in DeKalb, IL. There, they learned new cheers, dances, and mounts, got to know one another, and, best of all, had a lot of fun. "We had initiation from the seniors. We got led around the hotel with blindfolds on and we got thrown in the showers," said Amy Arroyo, a sophomore cheerleader. The cheerleaders showed excellent support this year, especially due to the fact that we didn't have a football or a soccer field. They were willing to travel for every single game to support their team. The Wildcat cheerleaders had a great year showing hard work and dedication throughout the season.

The cheerleaders weren't the only ones showing their support. The athletic trainers, Janet Drenth, Matt Shane, and Amanda Hallock were there for the athletes just as much as the cheerleaders were. When an athlete was injured, the athletic trainers were there in a flash. Like the cheerleaders, they were also willing to travel for every game. The athletic trainers showed great support throughout the season.

Chances Are

This year's winter play, Makin' It, made it big. It was a show about high school life, something we could all relate to. The director, Mary Hafertepe, said that the play was "well received by the student audience." All the basic stereotypes were shown in the play: nerds, jocks, cheerleaders, bullies, burnouts, and "nice" kids. An adult that Miss H. spoke to said that she liked to see kids being kids for once. Hunter Dunbar (Beau Brown) whose cool-guy image was covering up the fact that like his mom, Sybil (Leah Bjorklund), he took pills to keep himself "up" and hide from the world. Brooke Benedict (Lisa Arnett) pretended to be someone she wasn't just to fit in, there, winning Hunter. Scott Barrows, the jocks' favorite victim (Justin Kallas) was a nice kid who just wanted to be liked for who he was. Later, Brooke realized that Hunter was a jerk and Scott was the guy for her. Nice guy Karl Swanson (Carl Volk), whose only outlet was football, poured out his stories of an abusive father. Quiet Libby (Sara Knox), who became Karl's object of affection, learned that it's O.K. to be different. Sara said that she "loved the experience of playing a shy girl." Monica (Ann Outcalt) and Jen (Katie Gauldin), two "unpopular" girls, talked about their bad luck with guys. The snobby cheerleader Barb (Meredith Moore) reminisced about her childhood horror stories of being the fat kid, while her best friend Sharon (Rachel Baker) shared her secret of throwing up in the bathroom to stay thin. Andy Sinetos played the school bully and said "Shoving that kid in the locker made me feel really big, like a man." Principal Carnelli (Chris Radousky) wanted to help kids live up to their potential. "It made me see from a teacher's point of view. Just because a teacher yells at you, doesn't mean they don't care about you," Lisa Mendez said about playing the reprimanding P.E. teacher. Lilli Szafranski stated her feelings about her role in the play by saying, "It was surprisingly easy for me to play a burnout and I connected with real burnouts." Buzzard (Jeff Stogis) and the rest of the outcasts won the game of value in the end, having left Hunter with no one but his pills. The whole point of this play is that it doesn't matter what happened to you in high school, who you hung out with, or even how "popular" you were... everyone will "make it" in his or her own way.

Scott (Kallas) looks forlorn as he and Libby (Knox) pine over their crushes.

Howie (Tony Palombi) plays with his calculator as the other kids point and laugh at his expense.

"I found it really hard to play a dork because I don't know what this is like."

-Beau Brown

"It was entertaining and we could relate it to our high school lives."

-Christie Palombi

Karl (Carl Volk) and Libby (Sara Knox) gaze into each other's eyes and share a special moment.

Scott (Justin Kallas) winces as his mom (Laura Gilbert) and little sister Corly (Amy Aiello) give him a patronizing pat on the head.

Brooke (Lisa Arnett) and Jen (Katie Gaudlin) argue about how important high school really is.

The band gave great performances this year. The band's themes were Phantom of the Opera, Christmas, and big band (Sinatra). When asked why she joined band, Mercedes Koch responded, "My mom played the flute when she was in college and I wanted to be just like her when I was little." Most of the students have become very dedicated over the years that they've been involved in band, and you can tell because they have such a high confidence level in, not only in themselves but in their peers. This year, the band participated in IHSA's Solo/Ensemble Contest. Receiving a Division One rating were Jessica Inch and Katie Vogan for their flute solos, Bryan Jones for a baritone solo, Jesse Askin for a Trumpet solo, and Mercedes Koch and Katie Vogan for a Flute duet. Receiving Division Two ratings were Corrine Duffy and Jessica Weiss for a Bassoon duet, and Chris Buckles and Keith Halsall for their Trumpet duet. Also, in April, the band (along with the orchestra and choir) participated in the Six Flags Music in the Park Music Festival. Concert Band placed second with a superior rating, Jazz band received first place with a superior rating. The Jazz band also received the Judges Choice Award for Best Jazz Band. Last, the Parade Band received a first place, excellent rating. They also received the Outstanding Marching Award and the Judges Choice Award for Best Parade Band! "Band is the best! There are so many new people to meet and many things to do. We go on trips and play at basketball and football games. Mr. Guter is the best and band camp is so much fun! I can't emphasize how much fun band is!" said Malissa Kane. If you ever want to try something new, go out for band!

The orchestra had an awesome year!! In sitting in on a concert, I realized that they don't get as much credit and recognition as they deserve! Becky Gary agreed. "I wish people would appreciate us more. We get no recognition because we're so small of a group." The orchestra had two main themes this year for concerts, America and pop music. Some of the students competed in the Illinois State High School Association Solo Ensemble Contest and received awards. Dan Godoy received a perfect score on his Cello solo. Ami Godoy received a superior rating on her Violin solo. Ami also teamed up with Michelle Brady and they received a superior rating together! Gaining an excellent rating were Josh Swanner and Trevor Vraney with their Violin solos. Josh and Trevor also teamed up to perform a Violin duet and received an excellent rating! The Orchestra also participated in the Six Flags Music in the Park Music Festival. Performing at their best, they received first place with an excellent rating. Congratulations orchestra!

Working Together To Make A Difference

Many clubs and organizations in our school show great teamwork every year. Some work on awareness, such as SADD and Clown Team, while others try to help by doing community service like WeGo Cares and Key Club.

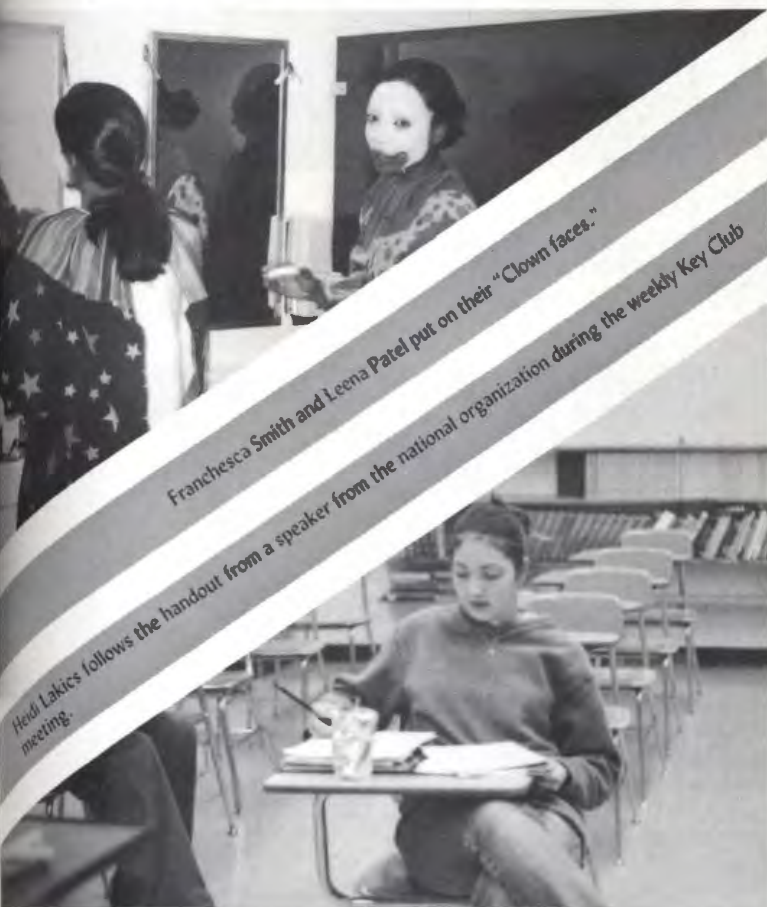

SADD worked to prevent driving drunk. The members did a window painting during Homecoming and had a presentation before Prom where people gave testimony on personal experiences with driving drunk. Two parents who lost children in drunk driving related accidents and a man who was drunk and killed a child walking on the side of the road spoke to the student body. SADD advisor Ms. Bluestone-Miller said, "SADD has been a program here since 1984-1985. People are usually inspired to be in SADD when someone they know or are related to is killed by a drunk driver." SADD usually does posters, announcements, Homecoming float, "D" Day, and a mock DUI accident and arrest. These are all done to raise awareness.

Clown Team worked hard during the first semester to prepare for the second semester. Members rehearsed scenes that they would perform when they went to junior highs and elementary schools. In the first semester, Clowns were involved in the Homecoming parade and tried to raise awareness about not using drugs or alcohol. In the second semester, Clowns performed skits for young kids about ways to avoid using drugs and alcohol and painted the faces of the kids later on.

WeGo Cares was very active in the '97-'98 year in passing the referendum. This year the club focused on fundraising for the community. They did coffee sales during the mornings before Christmas. After the club raised money, the members donated $100.00 to a single mother in the school who had come to the advisor saying she couldn't afford anything for Christmas for her children. The club also bought toys for toddlers at that time.

Key Club wanted to help others and the community. Key Club is a national high school level organization and works with local Kiwanis groups. Kiwanis members help those that can't help themselves. The club raised money for burn victims, had a fundraiser during Homecoming week which allowed students to dump mashed potatoes and gravy on favorite teachers, sold suckers, and had a couple of parties. Key Club also did a fish fry with the Kiwanis group in April. Anyone can be a member and participation is up to the individual. Anyone interested in helping out the community any time at all is welcome.

This year's Literary Magazine was entitled "Mind's Eye." Together, the staff members put together a great magazine. It consisted of a variety of poems, short stories, and drawings. This year the number of staff grew, so their work was a little easier than in previous. "This year went more smoothly because we had more submissions and more people choosing them and typing them out," said Christina Droho.

The Wildcat Chronicle had a lot of success this year. They captured everybody's attention through their outrageous horoscopes and daring movie reviews. They had many responses in "Letters to the Editor." They did a great job in keeping us informed about how the sports teams were doing and all of the upcoming events. Their journalistic creativity really kept this year going.

The Challenge staff worked hard this year to meet their deadlines, but unfortunately somewhere harder than others. Julietta Favela said, "It's hard to pick the pictures you want and to figure out where to put them." But the best part about this year's yearbook was the cover. Early in the year there was a contest for the design of the '99 yearbook cover. The winner received $50 in cash and a free '99 yearbook. The winner was announced during the homecoming assembly, and it turned out to be senior Jaime Puchalski. As you can see, the cover looks incredible. All in all, the yearbook staff had a great year.

I T ALL COMES

SPRING SONG

The air was full of sun and birds,
The fresh air sparkled clearly.
Remembrance wakened in my heart
And I knew I loved her dearly.
The fallows and leafless trees
And all my spirit tingled.
My earliest thought of love, and Spring's
First puff of perfume mingled.
In my still heart the thoughts awoke,
Came lone by lone together-
Say, birds and Sun and Spring, is Love
A mere affair of weather?

D.J. Byrd, a.k.a Eric Daniels, was the techno music player that tuned students into the Winter Informal theme of "Searching for a Sweetheart" on February fifth. As usual, the dance was attended by students who wore their casual clothing. The break dancers we rated the best by majority of all winter informal dancers.

Students wore their most elegant clothing to turnabout On March 12. The tradition of the girls asking the guys was found to be exciting to many. Alex Vergara agreed: "I didn't like the girl paying for me because I'm an old fashioned kind of guy, but what can I say, it's turnabout."

Goin' For The Goals

The Lady Wildcat team had a struggling season this year. They practiced hard, but could not compete with the experience of other teams in the Dupage Valley Conference. West Chicago ended their season with a record of 4-16-2. "I know our record would be completely turned around if we made at least 15% of the shots we took. These girls played well, all they needed was to get the ball in there," said Coach Julio DelReal. Three girls who got all conference honorable mention were Kristy Reser, Jackie Prena, and Stefanie Prena. The Coach's Award went to the goalie, Nicole Medina, MIP went to Katie Coffman, and Stefanie Prena also received MVP. The Junior Varsity team did a little better this year towards the end of the season. Coach Antonio DelReal said it was because "attitude and commitment can make you a winner. Make a commitment, be a winner." Coach Robert "Bruno" Owens' team wasn't left behind either. The freshmen practiced hard and did a great job. Good job to all the girls for making an effort and loving the game.

Set It Up

Brad Olsen and Chip Ault set up for the next play. ◆

The 98-99 boys Volleyball team did a great job and made us very proud. When interviewed, Coach Hasty said, "We had the best season in the history of boys volleyball." Our West Chicago Wildcat volleyball team had some intense games. When playing Naperville Central, our Wildcats were down 9-1 and came back 13-15 in the third game! Overall, each volleyball team won more than half their games and each individual accomplished more as the season went on. This year, the boys played hard and succeeded. Congratulations on a great season!

Boys Tennis

Swing, swoosh, bam, bang. These are the noises that come out as the badminton team practices. The racquets clang against the birdie, sending it back over the net. This year's badminton team did wonderfully. The girls practiced harder than ever and worked towards the finals. Linda Xiong went down to state, only the second girl in our school's history to do so. Congratulations to the girl's badminton team! The school's spirit rose as they rose to the top.

The hot sun burned down the neck. Gripping the tennis ball in one hand, the other held his racquet. The sign was given, the ball launched into the air. The racquet smashed the ball over the net and the boy scored another point for his team, the Wildcats. Slowly, the boys came closer to bringing home the trophy. "The players loved every second of the competition," said John Cantarell. As the season went on, the boys got better, and wanted to win 65% of their matches. They did beautifully. Both teams did a great job this season. Congratulations to them all.

This spring brought many different situations for the baseball team. They had to learn to deal with victories along with disappointments. They had a conference record of 5-12, and an overall record of 10-14. Sean Peterson seemed to be the spokesperson for the team in many instances and said, "We should have been second or third in conference." They did, however, achieve several of their goals. With Brian Raymond as MVP,

John Kolodick as MIP, and Sean Peterson making All-Conference, the team did have leaders to look up to. The encouragement of the coaches, Tim Courtney and Kevin Gimre, supported the Wildcats during the rough times, and brought them up even higher when succeeding. Team unity seemed to be important to the team this year, even among the different levels. Players were constantly talking about the upcoming games.

Dan O'Hara gets pumped to catch the ball for a strike out.

The West Chicago softball team had a very successful year. They won the DVC conference championship with a record of 12-2, and this year they won it all by themselves. For the first time ever, the Wildcats won the Regional Championship by defeating Waubonsie Valley 1-0. Head Coach Jim Schaudt said, "I was very confident in this team. We've made it to the Regional Championship the past four years and I knew this would be the team to win it." Also this year, the team entered the Larkin Slugfest, a tournament which they won. Winning this was one of the team's goals, along with winning at least 20 games. They exceeded this goal by actually winning 25. The girls came together and accomplished almost every goal they set out to do. The team had a total of 9 players voted All-Conference and Honorable Mention out of all 8 DVC teams, and this year they also had the Player of the Year, Ana Fernandez. At Sports Awards Night, Angela Valdez was voted Most Improved, Ellen McLoughlin was awarded the Wildcat Award, and Ana Fernandez received the Coach's Award. All the girls worked really hard to pull off a great season.

"1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, SHUT-UP YOUNG, 10!"
- Kristy Shilling & Cathy Wilken

The first major goal for Coach Kelly Kolasa and the girls' track team was numbers. In the past, the team has struggled for members. This season was a little different; the team grew to about 35 girls that were full of potential. During the indoor season, the team worked hard to improve. They were able to defeat some of the larger teams, especially at the Fenton Invite, and they had a chance to really compete in some of the larger meets. In indoor DVC, freshman Meghan Young, clinched the title for the JV mile.

Then the outdoor season began. The coaches struggled to organize the girls' team without a track to practice on. Once a week the team traveled to other schools in the DVC to practice running on a real track instead of street workouts. Despite these obstacles, the girls manage to pull through. "It was a HUGE building year," Kolasa claimed, "There is so much potential for success in the future!" The youth of the team helped provide a base for later years. There were only about seven or eight experienced upperclassmen in a team of about 35. Jocelyn Schineller's hard work paid off. At the sectional meet she qualified in the discuss for the second year with a throw of 122' and for the shot with a throw of 37'1". The next week, at the state meet, Schineller placed fifth in the discuss with a throw of 129'8" and earned all-state honors Meghan Young once again finish first for the JV mile in outdoor DVC. The JV team placed fourth overall. - Michelle Lasky

We Go Runnin'

The boys' track team came out strong this year with a team of about 30 runners. After long practices, tough workouts, and sore muscles, a great team emerged. Junior Tim Keller rightfully earned the MVP award. He had dominated the 3,200 meters, winning multiple races at large meets. At the Geneva Coed Invitational, Keller blew away the competition and finished almost a lap ahead of the second place runner. Keller also secured first place at DVC and second place at the sectional that took place in Elgin. Keller ended up with a school record of 9:15.2 on his last trip to state.

Another team success was achieved by the 4x800 meter team. The four, seniors Bart Visser, West Skidgel, Dan Young, and Jeff Stogis, made a hard to beat relay. At DVC, the team placed second and set a school record of 7:54.4. They qualified for state, but unfortunately, due to illness, they did not make finals.

The team overall took second place in DV; only Naperville Central finished ahead of them. Next year still looks bright for the still-young team.

Musical

Spring

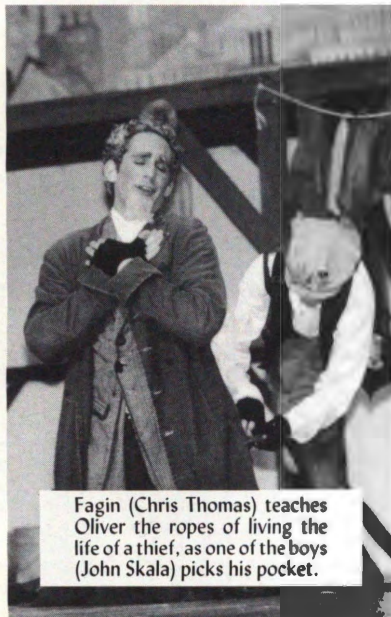

Consider Yourself ... Entertained!

Oliver, the story of an orphan boy who is moved from place to place and is searching for someone to love him, hit it big in Weyrauch Auditorium. This musical was based on a novel by Charles Dickens, Oliver Twist. Sarah Edwards played the part of Oliver and Sara Knox played the female lead, Nancy. Her sidekick Bet was played by Abby Brown and the adult male lead, Fagin, was played by Chris Thomas. Fagin is the orphan's mentor who makes them steal wallets and pocket handkerchiefs. The town beadle Mr. Bumble, who helps Oliver find a home, was played by Frazer. Nancy's boyfriend, Bill Sykes (Carl Volk), appears in the second act and scares everyone half to death. He threatens to hurt Oliver because he thinks that Oliver tells the family that he stayed with about their thieving ways. Nancy tries her best to protect Oliver from becoming what she was made into, but her abusive boyfriend threatens her life. Still, she deceives him and in the end is murdered for her disobedience. The evil Bill does not get away scot free, though. He is seen on the run and shot dead. Oliver is then returned to the Brownlows, who are found to be his real family. Stage director Mary Hafertepe said "I was pleased. The show was strong, and I think the audience enjoyed it." Abby Brown said that "Saturday was the best night." Hafertepe agreed with her, saying that, "I really believe the cast continued to grow and feel the play through performing it. Also, the seniors felt as the last time on the WeGo stage they wanted to do well, and the underclassmen worked hard to give the seniors that success." Lisa Smith was the musical director and led the orchestra.

Bumble (Fraser) grimaces as Widow Corney (Cheryl Pruett) lovingly sits on his lap.

Fagin (Chris Thomas) teaches Oliver the ropes of living the life of a thief, as one of the boys (John Skala) picks his pocket.

Street vendors from "Who Will Buy?" include rose seller Anne Schullo, long song seller Meredith Moore, knife grinder Anders Walker, strawberry seller Elissa Dupree, and milk maid Annalisa Walker.

Kendra Norton's face emulates her morbid character (Mrs. Sowerberry) perfectly, as Katie Saul (little orphan boy) innocently smiles.

Dodger (Ryan Dorn) flirts with Nancy (Knox) in an old-fashioned "gentlemanly way" as the orphan boys make an imaginary carriage.

Mr. and Mrs. Sowerberry (Michael Petrik and Kendra Norton) dance joyfully as they sing "That's Your Funeral."

Hidden Successes

Forensics may be one of the hidden successes of our school, but they definitely deserve more attention. Year long, the team members memorized and practiced different monologues and dialogs that they either picked out from existing pieces or wrote themselves. These students met before and after school to work on the style, pronunciation, and energy in their pieces. This was no small feat and neither was waking up at five a.m. every week for five months. The forensics team wrapped up the year with their annual Verbally Yours, a public performance held in Weyrauch Auditorium. One of the highlights of the night was the theater in the round debut, a small play that involves nine people that work together to create a lively piece.

The members of the dance production tried out for the class in spring of '98 and worked all year long to produce an evening of creativity. The Dance Production was held in January, and featured original dance compositions from the individual members.

Thespians put in a lot of work this past year too. For those that weren't participating in the plethora of plays and activities, they were sure to be found backstage giving a helping hand wherever needed. As a result, the fall and winter plays turned out to be great successes as well as the spring musical.

Heidi Fuoss and Melissa Birch work on the thespians window for homecoming window painting.

A grand closing is made at the performance.

The bouquet

April Love

The evening began with the nursery school kids singing the Hello Song. Then came the reenactment of the proposal from "One year ago today ..." Next the clothing I and II students showed off their gorgeous outfits while Lindsey Andres gave commentary. Finally came the mock wedding. The contemporary life students got their chance to act out a real wedding. The bride, Rosie Perez, looked gorgeous in her white gown and the groom, Johnny Chavez, looked very handsome in his tux. The role of the maid of honor went to Erica Ballines and the best man turned out to be Adam Mertes. After the traditional ceremony all of the bridesmaids, grooms men, and wedding couple started off the dance by dancing to "It's Your Love" by Tim McGraw and Faith Hill. All of the money collected went into a VICA scholarship fund. All in all, the wedding was a success.

FBLA, VICA, And Horticulture Club.

FBLA, VICA, and Horticulture Club had a busy year filled with fun activities and worthwhile experiences.

FBLA (Future Business Leaders of America) accomplished many things, including having thirteen members go to state. As a group, FBLA went caroling at a nursing home in December, miniature golfing in May, bowling in April, and threw a pizza party. They elected new officers in April for the coming year. FBLA also did a great job with the Variety Show that featured creative acts like "Twirlin' Jus 'Cuz" by Jessica Weiss and Jessica Inch, and skilled singing. President Craig Martus stated, "What I like best about FBLA is meeting new people."

VICA (Vocational and Industrial Clubs of America) also went to state in Springfield for their competition. VICA had their annual food drive in December and went bowling for a get together. VICA also received a heart-warming response for their annual blood drive. These activities were all done to help get VICA to state. As Nick Duffy said when asked what he liked about VICA, "Join VICA for fun experiences and for enjoyment."

The Horticulture Club met every day during their second hour Horticulture II and III. To raise money for the program, Horticulture Club looked forward to the annual flower sale. The sale consisted of marigolds, petunias, tomatoes, jade plants, and many more. Horticulture Club also planted flowers for the mock wedding that took place on April 9. The plants were beautiful and colorful. FBLA, VICA, and Horticulture Club deserved a round of applause for the things they accomplished in the '98-'99 year.

While Mr. Paul Junkroski gives directions at the front of the room during VICA meeting, Mrs. Patty Kozlowski has a quick laugh with Heather Fenderson.

As a cold drizzle beats down, FBLA members crowd onto the FBLA float during the homecoming parade.

Only West Chicago can bring such presence to a stage and move the crowd. The annual FBLA variety show was held on February 25, in the Weyrauch Auditorium and was directed by Renee Altman and Allison Brown. With fourteen acts altogether ranging from piano solos by Sara Knox, to a capella singing by Pat Scullion to a vicious performance by Seniors Phil Roberts and Mike Adamo, there was definitely a variety at the show.

A stimulating piano solo by Sara Knox gets the crowd going early on the show.

The rasta-man Jake Reiner plays the bongos for the performance of the song "One."

Morgan Barclay shows off her Mariah Carey-type vocal skills as she makes the crowd "fly away."

Can we find the reason why Pat Scullion has a great a capella singing voice?

And the nomination for best talent goes to says Leslie Shambo and Angie Granados.

Briggs brings some Latino Sabor to the stage with his fingered performance of "Brutalia Cupe."

There are many advantages to knowing more than one language, and one of them is being able to speak and understand somebody else in another country. So we should make an effort to learn what we can.

Trujillo dances to the beat of a French folk song, presented by a Fermilab farm dance instructor and follows her into a snakelike dance.

Jenny Evans, Jerry "Rock" Evans and Lara Gorick show their love for one another.

Four short years ago, we walked in the door of West Chicago Community High School. For many of us it was our first time in this school. Throughout the last four years we have all shared many great experiences with one another. We have seen each other almost every day of these years. We've been around each other on our great, terrible, happy sick days. We've seen each other right after getting new cuts, relationship breakups and makeups, or after just winning or losing that important game. Many of us will miss these feelings, along with Monday morning stories about the previous weekend, and the feeling of freedom on days at 3:15. The four years haven't been easy, but the hard work was worth it. Now we are moving on to another part of life. Even though we won't be here, we will always have the memories of each other and our days of high school.

Anthony Castigla and Kenny Dedic try and be "morning people."

Andrew Merrick and Krista Varble always enjoy spending time together.

Maggie McPike happily instructs senior boys in cheerleading techniques.

Mister Wildcat

The Mr. Wildcat Competition was February 4th, '99. The night began with Jeff Callahan and Nicole Gomez introducing casual wear. In the talent contest Jeff Belokin introduced a "Freshman Remover" for the halls. Joe Leli sang a self-written hip-hop song. Michael Petrik played the guitar while he sang a Matchbox 20 song. Jeff Powell explained "Why chicks don't dig him." Brian Raymond and Josh Wordow did a Blues Brothers dance as Brian's skit. Josh Wordow got Brian Raymond to wrestle him and involved Officer Quarto and Mr. Hein. Cathal Walsh sang Adam Sandler's "Lunch Lady Land" while dressed like an old lady. Dan Young performed a parrot comedy sketch. Next came the formal competition in which the "Wildcats" answered a serious question while dressed in a tux. After the questions the judges announced the winners: Mr. Congeniality was Jeff Belokin, 2nd runner up was Josh Wordow, 1st runner up was Michael Petrik, and Mr. Wildcat went to the one and only Cathal Walsh.

Hard Work Pays Off

This year many new leaders stepped forth to make a difference in their lives and the lives of others as well. Juniors and Seniors became members of the National Honor Society. These students were selected based upon set criteria and by a faculty council. Their leadership, service, character, and scholarship qualities were major factors in the faculty's decisions. NHS students all set aside valuable time to put in service hours, helping the community and school, while still maintaining at least a 3.0 GPA.

Congratulations to the Seniors who earned scholarships and awards at Senior Honors night. Several seniors earned special awards for their academic achievement and services. Dr. Jones claimed, "Over $250,000 was given away in Scholarships." Margaret McPike received the Class of 1981 Scholarship, Sarah Closser received the Bonas Vocational Scholarship, Joseph Swantek received the Tim Landis Memorial Scholarship, and Abigail Brown received the David Wayne Fox, Sr. Scholarship, Liz Ribe, one of the seniors present, recalled a memorable occurrence at the event, "Joe Swantek had to go up and receive an award. He had unzipped his robe part way while he was sitting due to the heat, and as he walked up he had forgotten to rezip it I will never forget that." There were many "to be announced" awards given. This added an element of surprise to the ceremony. The Best Senior Writer was Laura Gilbert, The Outstanding Senior award was given to Rahul Gladwin, and The Society of Women Engineers Awards were given to Molly Saul and Kristina Dauber. - Michelle Lasky

Four long, hard years have gone by. Day by day we came to school and looked forward to one very significant day: commencement. The one goal that all students in high school share is to graduate. Our commencement was held on the sweltering day of June 6, 1999. It was a day that we all held our heads high and accepted those pieces of paper that meant so much more than any test or report card, our diplomas. The commencement address entitled "Opportunity Costs," was given by Ms. Daneels, a favorite teacher to many students. Her words brought tears to many people's eyes because of the reality of what she was saying, and we all began to realize we were now in control. Ms. Daneels explained that this day represented our right of passage into the "Real World," our freedom, and especially the beginning of our adult lives. Commencement was a day filled with emotions that none of us will forget.

As the construction team turned our backyard into a sandbox, Wego students patiently awaited the arrival of a new and better building. Although this created problems for parking and sports, overall the students took the adjustment very well. In a few short years, our school would be overloaded with technology and ready to fit the growing population.

This turned out to be an exciting year for baseball fans as all watched Sammy Sosa and Mark McGuire fight for the home run record. Both passing up the old 61 home run high, they continued to bat it out to see whose name would be in the record books. Sosa hit a mighty 66 home runs, but was beaten by McGuire's big 71. It was a season to remember and their names became known to the whole nation.

This year nine lucky Spanish students took advantage of an opportunity to visit Spain. There they enjoyed the food and experienced the culture. "Zaranja," contributed by Katalin Larm, was part of an inside joke among the students. Many said they'd love to do it again and hoped to stay longer next time.

In 1998, the Serbian police and military forces used excessive force against Kosovo Albanian rebels and civilians. They destroyed villages and drove people from their homes. NATO stepped in to find a resolution to which Serbia would agree. But, despite the efforts of NATO, the humanitarian situation worsened. On January 30, NATO warned Serbia that they would take military action if necessary. On March 24, airstrikes were started. Meanwhile, displaced Kosovo civilians wondered when it would all end.

On April 20, 1999, a terrible tragedy took place in Littleton, Colorado. Two students opened fire in their school, killing 15 people and wounding many others. These two kitchen sink as to why this massacre happened. In sympathy, our school sent a banner in which many students signed.

On April 23rd & 24th, the West Chicago Music Department travelled to Six Flags Great America theme park to participate in the Park Music Festival. Under the direction of Rebecca Keil, the String Orchestra received 1st place. Lisa Smith, the choral director, prepared her students well, bringing home 2nd place for Beginning Choir, 1st place for Intermediate Choir, and 1st place for Concert Choir. James Guter brought home a truckload of awards with his band. The Concert Band took 2nd place. The Jazz Band received 1st place, won the Outstanding Marching Award, and earned the Judges' Choice Award for Best Parade Band. Congratulations everyone!

Running their way down to state, the boys' cross country team took an awesome 7th place. These boys worked hard during the season and the off-season to earn this award. All that time and effort really paid off. Congratulations, boys, you've made your school proud!

Future Wildcat Danny Callahan shocked the Wildcat crowd when he met a local Chevy dealer's challenge by sinking a lay up, a free throw, a 3-pointer, and a half court shot to win a brand new Chevy Cavalier — a car he wouldn't be able to legally drive for three years! While the dealer initially balked, saying Danny had put the half court shot in the wrong basket, as the picture shows, Danny got the car in the end.

For three weeks West Chicago became a tourist attraction to a group of French exchange students. Here they got a taste of American lifestyle and enjoyed the sites and scenes. Some planned to come again and visit other attractions such as Disney World. Mari-bel Benitez confessed that she was the first one to start crying when the French exchange students had to leave.

Jocelyn Schineller was proud to show off her "guns" at State for track. Michelle Lasky said, "Jocelyn worked so hard. She practiced late and worked harder than anyone I know. She earned it." To qualify for State she threw 122ft. for discus and 37ft. 1in. for the shot put. While at State, she threw a 129'8" in discus to grant her 5th place and All State Honors. Jocelyn stated that she thought this was a really great experience for her. Congratulations, Jocelyn!

The departure of superintendent Griff Powell sent the school on a search for just the right person to take his place. After months, the search was finally over when Lee Rieck came in for an interview. Dr. Rieck was perfect for the job. Before this school what he was getting himself into. Welcome to WCCHS, Dr. Rieck.

Teachers Can Learn From Students Too!

Being a high school student is one of the most memorable times of our lives. As we prepare ourselves for games, clubs, and other activities, we may stop and give a teacher our appreciation and thanks, remembering that they are one of the major reasons that we are here today as a committed student of West Chicago Community High School. The faculty is like another set of parents for us at school, always looking out for their students and believing in us with a lot of respect and confidence. This is why we enjoy their company so much.

But what most of us do not realize is how much the teachers depend on us for things. As English teacher Carol Wolf, explains "My students are always keeping me informed of news events and popular games as well as movie stars and other celebrities." Those are some of the more simple things teachers learn from us, but sometimes teachers absorb more important and useful information that they need for the future. For example, a student showed Algebra teacher Stacey McGrath how to evaluate a function directly from a graphing calculator. Surprised? Well, we just may have a little teaching ability inside all of us.

One of the many special teachers at We-Go is Karan Oliver-Tucci. Oliver-Tucci teaches science, but can also teach psychology. This was her third year here at WCCHS and said she "loves it very much." She started teaching right out of college. Oliver-Tucci originally wanted to be involved in veterinary medicine because she enjoyed biology so much. She said, "I love working with teenagers because they are eager to learn, fun to be around, have different personalities, and the school is a unique environment to be in." She did some subbing and said, "I actually really liked it. It was fun." Oliver-Tucci said she participates in We-Go spirit by dressing up for spirit days and going to pep assemblies and such. She thinks her students are great and all her classes are equally good. The students seem to be the same over the years, but she has changed her teaching approach and how she deals with the students. When she first started teaching she was a little nervous, but she adjusted to it and doesn't really find any problems in her classes. "Most of my students respond well to my teaching techniques. I think they can tell I enjoy being here," she said.

If a student excels in her class, Oliver-Tucci will ask him or her if they want to do a research expedition. This gives the students a chance to work in different areas of science. They also gain work experience with science professionals in different parts of the country and sometimes even the world. The experience usually depends on the type of research the student will be doing and the place that is sponsoring the person to go. If a student is interested, Oliver-Tucci will set a student up with an application and try to help him or her find a sponsor. Several students have been interested in pursuing this. Oliver-Tucci herself has done an Earthwatch research expedition. She went to Argentina to study Black-Howlen monkeys. Her grant came from Earthwatch and allowed her to stay down there for part of the summer. Oliver-Tucci said one of the reasons she did it was to see what it would have been like if she had followed through with veterinary medicine. Down there doing her research, Oliver-Tucci "realized how much I love teaching and I was thankful that I went through with it." She thought the trip was neat "being out in the field and studying wild animals in their natural habitat was an amazing experience!"

Another special teacher is Kevin Gimre. He is involved in school activities and coaches baseball and basketball teams. Gimre has been here at WCCHS for 9 years now and enjoys being here because "every day is different." He enjoys working with the other teachers and loves teaching teenagers. Gimre likes to make them smile and laugh. Helping them learn in a fun way is something Gimre strives for. He did not always want to be a teacher. When he was in high school he wanted to be a businessman, but while taking finance and accounting classes he found he didn't like them, so he switched to teaching. Starting out as a substitute at local schools, Gimre found himself teaching a 7th grade physical education class which he "totally hated because they were running around and screaming and totally out of control." His worst experience as a sub took place when he subbed for an auto body shop class for three days. Gimre said, "I obviously wasn't certified for auto body, so we watched race car movies for three days, and whoa, that was fun! But back then I was firmer, stricter, and meaner." Gimre found his place here while subbing because he found the students to be "more polite than others, including Naperville's, Wheaton's, and Batavia's." Gimre tries to participate in the We-Go spirit by attending athletic events, plays and concerts, and by wearing school colors. He admits liking all his students but says he sometimes doesn't like the things some of them do. Gimre likes to think his students respond well to him and would be comfortable talking to him but really has no idea what some of them think. Gimre said he would pull aside a student if he or she showed potential and talk to them, but would never say "When I was your age," because kids don't want to hear about that.

All teachers are special in their own way. They all leave their marks on their students. Susie Zuniga said politely, "Yeah, in his (Patrick Clifford's) class, I didn't sleep, unlike this year," with a laugh. Certain teachers are entertaining and keep their students guessing. Other teachers teach with their own experiences. Take Mrs. Hafertepe, for example. Christine Weisse said, "Today, Mrs. H. was talking about one of the classes she taught when she was teaching at a college and how she taught them how to cite authors in their report." Teachers are great friends and are willing to help students with their problems. Listen to teachers; they have a lot to say.

Dr. Alan Jones, Principal

Teachers depend on us for updates in the social status as we depend on them for education. "I learn from my students constantly. There's nothing more satisfying in teaching than when a student pursues a line of thought I haven't previously considered," stated English teacher/Yearbook Instructor Brad Larson. It is proven that teachers have learned from students in the past and it will continue to go on for the future. I guess it's true as the saying goes, "You will learn something new everyday."

Closing Time

Seasons came and seasons passed. Friendships were made, lost and renewed. Classes began and days rolled into one another. Starting a new year here at WeGo some new things began, such as construction on the school, limitations on off-campus privileges, and parking changes for students. These were all effects of the referendum that was passed the previous year. The girls' sophomore basketball team won the DVC. A new superintendent, Dr. Rubenow, replaced Dr. Powell. Police Liaison Officer Tony Quarto spent his last year here after five years.

Freshmen anticipated a new beginning and seniors couldn't wait for the end. Teachers tried new things each semester to keep students interested, but once spring came with its warm weather, nothing could keep some students focused in the last quarter. Many seniors came down with "senioritis," and it spread to some juniors, sophomores and freshmen. Talk of plans for next year were common in almost all classes for many students.

Many fundraising events took place for numerous clubs. WeGo Cares did bake sales and coffee sales. Horticulture Club had a plant sale. Key Club did a pie-your-favorite-teacher during Homecoming. VICA did candy sales. Thespians had bake sales. Forensics had a car wash.

The year was full of many events by clubs, sports teams and the student body. It looked like as the years rolled by, there were more and more people becoming involved in the activities. School spirit seems to have spread like a virus among the students and the teachers. The year may have ended, but the memories will live on.

EDITOR'S PAGE

This has been my second opportunity to put together a West Chicago High School yearbook. This second year has been just as enjoyable as the first. I never would have thought that I would end up being an editor. This year's staff has done an excellent job working together and because of this, we pulled off a great piece of work. Mr. Larson's support and encouragement was another reason for the great performance of the staff. Goodbye to the yearbook staff, and do as good of a job in the years to come.
