How do you measure a year?

18 Countries. Flags of all colors from 18 different countries fill the ceiling in Mr. Larson's classroom and represent the diversity of the students at We-Go. "Being a student at such a diverse school has opened my eyes to many new things. I have met so many great people throughout my four years here. I feel that the experiences I have had while here at We-Go will prepare me for the real world. I am extremely proud to say that I am a part of a school as unique as We-Go." said Margaret Polacek.

565 nervous Freshmen roam the halls unsure of where to go... 581 permits go to newly driving Sophomores... 482 Juniors feel tired from numerous sleepless nights stressing over the Junior Research Paper, ACT and PSAT... 451 caps fly through the air as the Seniors celebrate finally reaching the ultimate goal of graduation... 50,162 cups of coffee assist the Faculty in completing another successful year... 1,500 pounds of clay are sculpted each year in order for the artists to express their passion... 6,180 hours of community service are served by the academic clubs in order to improve the community... 1,326 pairs of sneakers are worn down by athletes for the main purpose of becoming the best they can be... Two spotlights shine brightly on the entertainers and bring the stage to life.

The school year consisted of many days starting with Freshman Orientation and ending with Senior Graduation. The Editorial Staff chose to base this edition of Challenge on a theme that counts different elements that add up a year in high school: How do you measure a year? While it seemed like an easy theme, it multiplied into a task more difficult than we first imagined. By counting pairs of sneakers, pounds of clay, and cups of coffee consumed by the Faculty in one year, the Staff attempted to correctly measure 2008-2009 through accurate facts and numbers. The Staff needed to go through locker rooms and attend club meetings searching for each number used within the pages of this book. Millions of tiny details merged together to form a year at Community High School which will stay in the memories of students and faculty for the rest of their lives.

Every student measures a year in a way that is unique, but we all come together to form one school, one community, and most importantly, one family.

"The Wildcat lives in a tree in an unknown forest in Alaska."
-Collin Wiersema

"My favorite time with Victor E. Wildcat was when little kids kept pulling his tail at the first football game."
-Mr. Delcid

"The Wildcat's rival is the giant dust bunny that lives under my bed."
-Allyssa Brinkman

"Since he's our school symbol, it makes the Wildcat significant."
-Mr. Reagan

He has four massive paws, silky fur, and fierce eyes. He's present at every game and pep assembly. He is our beloved mascot, the definition of Wildcat Pride.

Seniors are his best friends while freshmen are just starting to meet him. Football players hit harder for him, cheerleaders scream louder for him, teachers support him, and deans control him. He's the one displayed on our We-Go wear, the one for whom we roar, and the one to whom we devote our time. Who is this character that everyone loves? He is Victor E. Wildcat, the heart of our school spirit.

It's the Wildcat for whom the track team goes the distance and for whom the volleyball team spikes. It's the Wildcat that the alumni come back to see and take pride in. It's the Wildcat that keeps us on the court and field even during our times of defeat. Most of all, he's the one that fills the halls with Wildcat pride. "I feel that the Wildcat represents Wisdom, Innovation, Learning, Diversity, Caring, and Ambition for Tomorrow," said Mr. Garcia.

-Amber Weinmann

"The Wildcat and I are very close. I was him at one point. There's no better pride than actually being the Wildcat."
-Casey Powrozek

"The Wildcat fears no school spirit because without school spirit the Wildcat doesn't exist."
-Dana Williams

"The Wildcat is like Santa Claus! He brings lots of joy and everyone loves to see him."
-Christina Jonas

"The Wildcat's favorite color is midnight blue since it's our school color."
-Alison Miller

"The Wildcat eats all of his fruits, vegetables, and little kids that don't behave well."
-Kristian Mendoza

"I would definitely hang out with the Wildcat because he looks like he'd be a lot of fun."
-Anthony Brinkman

"The Wildcat plays badminton in his spare time, and he's the best one on the team."
-Jacob Wucka

"The one thing I'm going to miss about the Wildcat is the random hugs that he gives to random people."

For the Love of the Wildcat

Led by seniors, the sophomore, junior and senior classes come together to maintain the height of the school's morale.

A group of loyal fans continued to cheer through victory and defeat. They boastfully painted themselves, screamed until they had no voices, and defended their Wildcats until their graduation day. The group was the Squad of 2008. They unified students regardless of grade level, expressed ways to be rambunctious, and sent waves of energy across the stands. This was the dedication of each Squad member.

Over the past years, the atmosphere in the stands went from mingle time to game time. "Now that I can finally be a part of the Squad, mingle time is over. It's about the game and staying pumped," said Megan Gossen.

word "caution," signaled that the Squad was a force with which to be reckoned. "I thought the design would be pretty cool, I just hope people get it," said Molly Cody. Indeed, people got it, and shirts sold.

As silence crept over the crowd, Squad Leader Blaine Flanagan began chants that continued until the spirit was rejuvenated. 'Blue Power,' a chant repeated by Squad members, propelled Jesse Hacker, another Squad Leader, to blow the horn of battle as Flanagan continuously pumped up the fans.

"Being a Squad leader is great. I love going to games, rain or shine, to support our team," said Hacker. Despite bad weather conditions, at every game the Squad stood proud and prepared to cheer on the team. Win or lose, in the stands, there was always a celebration. "The Squad screams till the end because we know our team played their hardest. That alone deserves a celebration," said Sean Tubridy.

Action spoke louder than words. Everyone found that, compared to any other school in the DuPage Valley Conference, the Squad ranked number one in school spirit. "We truly have the best squad in the DVC," said Sadie Roberts.

Whether posing as the 12th man for football or the 9th woman for volleyball, the Squad showed dedication by appearing at every sport. "When you're in the squad, it makes you feel a part of the team," added Jason Rehbock.

Ashley Jefferson

8 Singing Hearts. Rocking out to the song, "Hey Baby," played by the school band, Tim Loftus, John Kinsella, and Emily Roberts sing during a timeout on the field. "Singing to the band's 'Hey Baby' goes with the game. The band starts the song and the Squad finishes," said Loftus. During one game, 'Hey Baby' was played at least five times to lighten the mood in the stands when the team didn't win.

75 Minutes of Support

Every minute of the game is great. By waiting in the cold for the team to run onto the field and talking during halftime, every Squad member stayed to show his or her full support. Zach Mowen was in the Squad every game, with his body painted, screaming his heart out.

1 New Assistant Principal

With his head held high, Mr. Martino stands with Victor E. Wildcat. "I'm a proud fan of the Squad. They have been appropriate at every game," added Martino. Always with a rambunctious attitude, the Squad never let down its team.

12th Man Bulls

Squad members Kelli Grimm, Sally Brown, Kelli Koehring, and Lizzie Gola smile as the team makes their way onto the field. "I love being in the Squad. It's what I look forward to all week," said Brown.

3 Stand at Attention. Watching the clock, Alex Lima, Stuart Sankovitch, and Chad Driscoll anxiously count down the final seconds to victory. "I love being a part of the Squad. The energy keeps me alert and on my feet at all times," said Lima. Other Squad members agreed that the energy in the stands was so powerful, that sitting down wasn't an option.

2 Painted Hands. Blue and white hand prints split the face of Shawn Staton as she shows her spirit in the band. Since the band sat in their own section, many unfortunate musicians couldn't be a part of the Squad.

4 Foot Didgeridoo. Leader in and out of the stands, Jesse Hacker explodes with school spirit. "Being a Squad leader is great! I love going to the games, rain or shine, all out to support our team. It's great being able to see our student body support our team as much as they have this year," said Hacker. Dressed in homemade Squad apparel, Hacker walked on the wild side at every game.

6 Pearly Whites. Enjoying the Homecoming game, Michelle Blackman and Tara Breinig cheer on the varsity team. "We definitely make the game with our high atmosphere energy. No school has better fans than the Squad at We-Go," said Blackman.

2 Cupped Hands. "The Squad rocks. A lot of people cheering extremely loud really got us fired up when it came to game time," says Steven Romanelli.

1 1/2 Blue and 1 1/2 White. Expressing their love for the Squad, Kelly Loftus, Maria Sedjo, and Ania Skorupski cover themselves in blue and white paint. "Being a part of it, a part of the Squad, is the best part of the game," said Sedjo.

Homecoming Week brings out the best of all the students. With competitions between classes, everyone comes together for one week filled with pride.

The energy in Bishop Gym was contagious the day of the Homecoming Pep Assembly. "I love seeing all the school spirit during Homecoming Week," said Elizabeth Gola. As students walked into Bishop Gym, they received their first taste of the excitement. Participating in Olympic themed games and activities all week, students experienced the thrill of school spirit at its best.

The Pep Assembly was not the only event that caught the interest of the school. The Dodgeball Tournament, Powder Puff game and Homecoming Parade brought new and exciting activities.

The school enjoyed the unique games that represented Olympic cities played at the Pep Assembly. Ultimately, seniors "I love seeing all the school spirit during Homecoming Week!" emerged victorious.

During the Dodgeball Tournament, students of all classes battled for recognition. After two grueling hours of blood, sweat, and tears from the competitors, the senior team, Let's Get Physical, triumphed as the champions. Teammates Patrick Stremel, Clark Hudmon, A.J. Romanelli, Alex Puetz, Drew Bowker, Greg Vodicka, Ethan Burau and Brian Skrzypczak showed the school who's boss.

Powder Puff brought a new perspective to football fans when junior and senior girls faced off in Memorial Stadium. The two upperclasses clashed and after a hard-earned score of 42-28, seniors prevailed.

The seniors may have won the game, but Mr. Jennings thought differently. "I think the real winners of the game were any girls who came out to play," said Jennings.

-Madeline Warkins and Megan Ogorzalek

2 Trucks. Despite the two trucks designated for the volleyball team, Angelica Lomibao, Brenda Saucedo, and Lolly Valdivia march in their pink "Volley for the Cure" uniforms to represent the program. Time sped by as the girls chanted with pride the entire time of the parade.

42 Points for the Seniors. The Senior girls jump excitedly after emerging victoriously from the Powder Puff game. With 174 participants and 16 coaches, the Senior girls pulled ahead early to take the lead and win the game 42-28 against the Juniors.

82 Teams. The rush of adrenaline causes Curtis Salazar to play his hardest during the Dodgeball Tournament. Salazar dominated the floor throwing multiple players from the other team out.

22 Nominations. Instead of the usual 20 nominations, 22 lucky contenders compete for the Homecoming Crown. King Ivan DesFassiaux and Queen Ileana Tapanes were announced at a Friday Pep Assembly which jumpstarted a week of activity. "I feel honored and excited with Ileana Tapanes as Homecoming Queen. I wish everyone on court could've won," said DesFassiaux. Everyone on court waited with anticipation before the winners were announced. The crowd cheered wildly when Tapanes and DesFassiaux were declared as King and Queen in front of the entire school.

6 Knocked Down Pins. Taking the bull by the horns, Louie Diaz pushes Connie Tan down the court in order for her to knock down enough bowling balls for a strike in an inventive game.

Four Touchdowns. Throwing the ball towards the end zone, Elizabeth Bruce looks for an open teammate. Despite a Junior loss, Bruce was a threat to the Seniors with her accurate passes.

45 Minutes. Time flies by as the members of the boys' football team, including Jesse Rogers, walk in the Homecoming Parade. Taking part in the parade showed immense school spirit throughout the community.

246 Contenders. Throwing the ball with all his might, Michael Boegelein and his teammates push each other towards victory during one of the dodgeball games.

Homecoming Week

Traveling from Chicago's windy city to Tokyo's wild nightlife, the Wildcats cha-cha to Madrid and end their celebration at Rio de Janeiro's carnival for the Homecoming Dance.

No matter where the journey began, more than 900 students strolled into Bishop Gym on October 11th. The gym was transformed from an ordinary playhouse to a magical night.

As a week of dodgeball tournaments and powder-puff games ended, the biggest event still remained: the Homecoming Dance. With Olympic Cities as the theme, each class represented their metropolis' strengths.

As time quickly approached, dance-goers used every second on preparation. The girls sparkled in their new dresses, and the boys stood handsome in their shirts and ties. The gym swarmed with students ready to let loose.

"Homecoming is a rush. As soon as I hit the dance floor,

"Homecoming is a rush. As soon as I hit the dance floor, I want to get my groove on."

I want to get my groove on," said Anthony Quarto.

The night came to a halt when all eyes fixed on the Homecoming Court, led by King Ivan DesFassiaux and Queen Ileana Tapanes, as they walked through the dance floor. Students swayed with the music as they crowded the disc jockey.

The dance was full of unexpected twists and turns. "Homecoming isn't just the time to show your school spirit. It's a time to be with friends and have fun," said Alyssa Pierce.

At 10:00 p.m., the night had to come to an end. "The week before is really stressful and when you're at the dance, you can just let loose and think of how much the hard work to make Homecoming special paid off. It's really worth it," said Sara Lim.

-Megan Zajac

2 Raised Arms. Surrounded by friends, Devon Tuma begins dancing the night away by throwing up her hands. "The dance was great this year. I went with a big group of friends and we all had a lot of fun! This Homecoming topped the charts," said Tuma.

1 Special Moment. Caught up in each other's company, Kevin Hauber and Jocelyn Ortiz stay close while "I Don't Want To Miss a Thing" played. Couples made sure to endure the memory of being together as only two slow songs were played.

8 Elegant Ladies. With all the thrill and excitement of the night, Ana Carrillo, Cynthia Arellano, and Brianda Barrera head out of the sweltering Bishop Gym to take a water break and cool down.

3 Jubilant Faces. As Cody Hadley, his date, and friend Jaclyn Kostel break away from the crowd, they show off their best dance moves throughout the night. "Every song let me bust out my killer moves and show off on the dance floor. I came ready," said Hadley.

2 Tied Together. After being together and dancing all night, Eugenio Tirado and Angela Sarnelli take a quick break from the chaos to cool off, get some punch, and converse with friends.

Hours of Dancing

8 Dancing Machines. As the seniors take over the dance floor, Brian Skrzypczak, Blaine Flanagan, and Ryan Crawford grab hold of each other and take to center stage. They created a giant circle in preparation for their last hoorah. It was just like a giant party, and students definitely 'rocked the party, rocked the party.' As the last time around, the boys wanted to make one last good memory together. "Homecoming was great. It was the best one out of all four years and especially because we were seniors. I wouldn't have wanted to be with anyone else and it was a good way to put an end to our last Homecoming before we leave," said Crawford.

2 Restless Souls. Enjoying the sounds of the disc jockey at the dance, Gabrielle Repetto and George Asenov do not waste any time as they get right down to the beat and show off their moves.

2 of a Kind. Being welcomed to the dance floor, Molly Pfeifer and Scott Schoeller are seen as a new fun sized pair. "Senior Homecoming was amazing. I'm going to remember it forever," said Pfeifer.

1 Big Train. Traveling in numbers, freshmen dance their hearts out throughout the night. "I didn't know what to expect of the dance. But it turned out to be everything and more," said Alexis Micele.

1 Sweet Embrace. With warm welcoming smiles, Aaron Echols and his date bring an uplifting spirit to the dance floor. As the night ended, they walked out only leaving behind valued memories.

Have you ever taken a whole bowl of candy when you were only supposed to take one piece?

Taking the overflowing bowl of candy sounds like the lazy person's dream. They can get all of their candy from one house! I would definitely take the entire bowl just for the adrenaline rush!

— Chelsea Ross

Whether they dress as a black cat or an Oompa Loompa, students let their creative sides emerge on Halloween. It's the day when students have an excuse to dress in funky outfits and engage in a few pranks.

2 Elastic Straps. While some students dress as terrifying creatures, Elijah Asani dresses as none other than the unforgettable nerd, Urkel, from "Family Matters."

1 Silly Gown. While in Commons, Ms. Hafertepe enjoys the festive games. "Lady Macbeth is a creepy character and loses her mind in her sleep-walking scene," said Hafertepe.

3 Festive Sentences. During their last year of dressing up for Halloween, Jessica Bedard, Elizabeth Gola, and Ivan Des-Fassiaux go all out as their favorite cartoon characters.

I haven't taken the whole bowl of candy because I feel too bad about taking all the candy. So I limit myself to only taking half of the bowl so I don't feel as bad.

— Ashton Swinney

In the spirit of Halloween, I stole an entire bowl of candy. While doing a victory dance, the owner of the house discovered that I took all of their candy and chased me down the street!

— Kelsey Skogsberg

I have never taken the whole bowl of candy, but I have taken more than just one. I always felt bad for the kids after me that would be disappointed that there wasn't any candy.

— Mr. Engel

1 Epic Battle. In the middle of Senior Hall, Renee Cirone and Ashley Jefferson battle it out to see who has the best costume in the Senior class. "Magic vs. muscle, the competition was intense, but I was prepared," said Jefferson. Confident in her powers Cirone responded to Jefferson, "Don't get me wrong. Muscle is intense, but nothing can stand up to magical powers."

One Diehard Democrat. Casting her vote in the mock election for Barack Obama, Sarah Brown says, "He will lead our country in the right direction. He will get us out of the recession we're in."

One Supportive Freshman. Showing his appreciation for the victor of the Presidential Election, Barack Obama, Jeffery Martin says, "He will lead our country in the right path because he believes in change." Obama and Martin agreed on the issue of the War in Iraq as well as gun control.

Voting in favor of the winning candidate, students cast their vote in the 2008 Mock Presidential Election. Barack Obama achieved a local and national victory.

After months of debates, nail biting commercials, and acceptance speeches, the new president officially began his four year term in the White House on January 20, 2009. For a president to win the Electoral Vote, he needs 270 out of 538 votes to win, and Senator Barack Obama defeated Senator John McCain with an electoral count of 364 votes while McCain only received 174. "It is refreshing to have someone new in office," said Anna Hultgren. Obama replaced former President George W. Bush who served two terms.

Senator Joe Biden was elected as Vice President after serving as a Delaware senator for five consecutive terms. He had shown leadership through his experience in foreign policy and was a strong supporter for the middle class citizens.

Across the student body, people voted for the candidate they wanted as their next president on

"I like Obama because of his views on change such as withdrawing American troops from Iraq."

October 7th, 2008 in a school wide election. Illinois Senator Obama won by 72%, while McCain only received 22%. "I think the school made the right choice by electing Obama, and now there is hope for the future," said Hultgren.

November 4th, 2008 made history when the voters finally broke the chain of white male presidents when they elected the first African American as the U.S. President. The race between the two candidates became an easy win when all fingers pointed to Obama after winning major states like California, Florida, and New York.

The Obama campaign brought attention to issues such as: improving the U.S. economy, helping the middle and lower class families, and bringing American soldiers home.

"I like Obama because of his views on change like withdrawing American troops from Iraq," said Dillon Hall, an election judge for the mock election. With the American people behind him, Obama has been given the opportunity to make an effective change.

-L. Giordano and L. Hon

Four Ballot Distributors. During the final hours of the mock election, Jennifer Ramirez, Kathleen Mason, Elana Vangorkom, and Caitlin Shiga have a small conference with Ms. Willuweit, the organizer of the entire mock election. The election took up all six lunch periods on October 7, 2008, and tallied up to 594 votes.

One Reliable Voter. During his lunch hour, Scott Schoeller votes for the candidate of his choosing. Obama took almost 3/4 of the total votes from the school election, blowing McCain out of the water.

Overall Victor

22 Days Shy. If her birthday had been just 22 days earlier, Mary Ann Clabots would have voted for Senator John McCain in the 2008 Election. Although she was a fan of McCain, Clabots also agreed with a few of Ralph Nader's opinions on how the country would be run.

One Year Too Young. Pointing out John McCain's war experience, Matthew Ackerman proposes that he would have voted for McCain if he was old enough. However, Ackerman voted in the mock election because he and McCain agreed on many issues such as health care and the War in Iraq.

Four Happy Readers. After knowing the result of the Presidential Election, Kimberly Busch, Alexander Pirela, Natalie Stewart, and Casey Powrozek takes time from their lunch period to admire the historical news of the newly elected President of the United States.

One Volley for the Cure Fan. Showing his dedication to Barack Obama, Tyler Griffith attends the school-wide event for breast cancer, Volley-for-the-Cure.

594 'I Voted' Stickers. After voting, students walk by election judge, Dillon Hall, who hands out stickers showing they voted. At the election, four rolls of stickers were used.

6 Watchful Eyes. During their lunch hours, election judges Kathryn Bell, Ethan Dean, and Shelby Copple help voters. The mock election was posed after a standard election, with the same name cards and ballots that the election judges hand out. This process was meant to give a feel for what a real election process was like.

Once upon a time, 473 students walked into We-Go as unknowing freshmen. As the years progressed, the Class of 2009 grew, learning the ways of the halls, and matured into young men and women.

Chapter 1: Freshman Year July 29th, 2005

"Mom! I have to get a TI-84 calculator," complains Elizabeth Correa. "Elizabeth, do you need any crayons, scissors, or glue?" her mother asks nonchalantly. "No mom! I'm a freshman in high school now." Elizabeth is glad to finally be able to say she is in high school. Unfortunately, there are differences about the new school that a lot of freshmen, like Elizabeth, don't know.

Chapter 2: Freshman Year August 28th, 2005

On the first day of school, Cole Paler stands outside the school entrance, with a backpack full of every possible school supply known to man. Not knowing what is going on, Cole goes to his classes, unaware that he is a part of a freshman tradition, by sporting a classic freshman backpack.

Chapter 3: Freshman Year January 13th, 2006

"Oh, oh, oh," Ryan Krage excitedly raises his hand, knowing the answer to every question. From day one, Ryan shows his excitement in class. While the school year is almost over, Ryan has yet to learn that being the teacher's pet isn't necessarily a good thing. He still has a long journey ahead of him.

Chapter 4: Freshman Year May 23rd, 2006

"Save me a seat!" Elizabeth Gola runs for the bus, not knowing that there aren't any available seats left. It is hard to imagine that at one point, Elizabeth and her friends had been in charge of the bus, and now she has to reserve seats. Luckily, the year is almost over, and if Elizabeth is lucky, she can carpool with a friend.

Chapter 5: Sophomore Year September 4th, 2006

A few months later, the Class of 2009 walks into We-Go as sophomores. "I'm so glad I'm not a freshman anymore," says Ethan Woodbury. Ethan and his friends are happy they aren't the freshmen trying to find their way around. They finally understand what a joke it is when the seniors told them their classes are on the fourth floor. Now, the fourth floor joke is onto the next freshman class.

Chapter 6: Sophomore Year October 3rd, 2006

For the first time, the Class of 2009 stands proudly in the stands as a part of the Squad. "Oh my gosh, what should I put on my Squad shirt?" Finally allowed in the Squad, Servando Perez chooses his all important Squad name.

Years of Evolution

Chapter 7 : Sophomore Year December 8th 2006

In the early month of December, many students wait for the days of winter break. Margaret Polacek waits patiently for her birthday. "Gonna spread my wings, sweet sixteen. It's my time to shine, sweet sixteen. Discovering, sweet sixteen, so much more to life, sweet sixteen," sings Margaret. While picking out the balloons for her party, Margaret realizes that being sixteen is being able to have a lot more freedom in her life.

Chapter 8 : Sophomore Year January 25th, 2007

With the newfound freedom of a license, Sally Brown lounges around her car. "Finally! My parents don't have to drive me everywhere anymore!" exclaims Sally. Given the family Buick LeSabre for her first car, Sally is ready to hit the streets and drive around town. "Ha, ha sweet ride."

Chapter 9 : Junior Year November 5th, 2007

After being the underdogs of the building, Katrina Beedle finally feels the power of being a junior. "Woo, upperclassmen! Oh wait... Aww man, I still have another year here." Katrina prepares herself for an exciting junior year, not realizing the challenges that she unknowingly is about to take.

Chapter 10 : Junior Year February 27th, 2008

Not anticipating it to be a challenging assignment, Alex Lima stays up all night trying to finish his Junior Research Paper. After weeks of research and writing, all the dreading of writing the 11 page JRP is over. "What should I write about?" asks one of Alex's friends. "Wait, you haven't started? GOOD LUCK."

Chapter 11 : Junior Year March 30th, 2008

After buying her prom dress, Melissa Guillen stresses the details of the upcoming dance. "I hope he asks me. What if he doesn't? What if I don't have a date? What if someone else has my dress?" While her friends try to calm her down, she cannot handle not knowing the surprises ahead of her. "No, it is not just a dance. It's PROM!" In the end, Melissa finds out that the four hours at the Carlisle for the dance are definitely worth the long wait.

Chapter 12 : Junior Year April 14th, 2008

Anticipating the six-hour test known as the ACT, Elijah Asani worries about testing the entire night before it takes place. Who knew anyone could long to see the sun shining outside of the high school doors as much as the juniors did on that fateful day? For two days, the Junior class are cooped up in the Field House, with pencils and erasers in hand.

Chapter 13 : Senior Year July 13th, 2008

As the Class of '08 moves away, the Class of 2009 steps into their places. "Seriously Alex, we're seniors, I don't mean to sound so cliché, but dude, we rule the school. Since we can't pull pranks this year, we have to think of another way to be remembered," says Jesse Hacker.

Chapter 14 : Senior Year August 22nd, 2008

Every student waits for his or her turn to own the hall that represents a class for only one year. The hall that defines high school status is known as Senior Hall. "We have to get lockers next to each other!" says Talia Bangert. Many memories are made in Senior Hall, such as the Friday night 'Game Time' chant.

Chapter 15 : Senior Year December 16th, 2008

Democrat or Republican? The infamous Government Simulation runs all day, for four days, keeping Diana Martinez from leaving after seventh period for early dismissal. "Well at least I get to dress up," says Diana, who is glad to finally be able to participate in one of the best government simulations in Illinois.

Chapter 16 : Senior Year June 7th, 2009

"I'm finally free," says Alexander Pirela. Off to college, graduates walk out the doors of CHS for the last time. "I swear I'm never coming home, College is gonna be the best." Through four years of growing, the Class of '09 is able to walk away from high school with the knowledge needed to succeed in life.

Working diligently 365 days of the year, these individuals persist on succeeding at their desks and in their sports.

8760 Hours of Work

4,368 Miles from Home. Writing a six page essay about why she should go into the exchange program, Karin Fischer commits to learning a new language and a different culture. Selected to travel to America for only one year, Fischer took advantage of every opportunity that went her way. "Junior Statesmen of America was my favorite club! It is great how much people care about society," said Fischer. Along with JSA, she was also involved with Community Leadership and International Club.

24 Hours a Day. Making his way down the court, Elijah Asani dribbles toward the basket with the drive that he exemplifies in every aspect of his life. Committed to his high school career in basketball, Asani worked twice as hard when it concerned his education. Asani was an editor of "Mind's Eye" magazine, as well as a member of National Honor Society. "I always put my right foot forward, no matter what class or activity it is," said Asani. His dedication throughout the year proved he was more than just an average student.

One Jam-Packed Schedule. By staying focused on all of her schoolwork, Amber Del Rio aims to succeed in high school. By participating in athletics including basketball and soccer, Del Rio's schedule was hectic. With the support of her family who cheered on the sidelines during her games, Del Rio remained dedicated. While in sports, she learned valuable life lessons about teamwork. "I learned that I should get to know someone before I judge them," said Del Rio.

10.5 Hours a Day. While some students slack during the school day, Thomas Kaczmarczyk attends a Polish night school to learn about his heritage. In addition, Kaczmarczyk stayed busy with track, Scholastic Bowl, Key Club, Skills USA, and National Honor Society. Kaczmarczyk was influenced by his family, especially his father, to learn about his heritage. "My father came over from Poland, and has a very successful life. I want to follow his footsteps," said Kaczmarczyk.

Four Years of Success. From attending classes to doing her course work, Courtney Barrie proves that she is the epitome of a Wildcat. Despite facing a host of challenges during her high school career, Barrie graduated with her peers, demonstrating her resilience and strong work ethic. Her strengths inspired her peers, and many of her teachers described her as being among the best of the Class of 2009. "When my sickness kept me out of sports and other things I was not able to do, writing was my stress reliever," said Barrie, who continued to work hard no matter what obstacle presented itself in her path.

Three Rounds. Partaking in a club of knowledge, Deepan Patel participates in Scholastic Bowl, an extra-curricular in which students play a game similar to Jeopardy against other schools. "My favorite part of Scholastic Bowl was meeting new people and the competition of every round," said Patel. He was also a member of the junior varsity tennis team. With his positive attitude and ability to always perform his best, he motivated teammates and fellow club members.

Three Years to Go. Giving a speech to his teammates, Shea Rogers remains active throughout the school. Appreciating Mrs. Wood's recommendation, Rogers added Speech Team among the list of his other activities, such as Club Green and Scholastic Bowl. He really enjoyed being in Club Green because of his care for the planet along with his school involvement. "All students get involved with academic clubs so that they can busy their school lives," added Rogers.

7 Honorable Role Models

Teaching is not just a job for these educators. With their passion for learning, they truly stand and deliver.

Eight Hours of Work with Good Times. With a bright smile and quiet patience, Mrs. Deleon spends her time with sophomore English classes. After working at a private girls school, Mrs. Deleon came to West Chicago with a positive attitude. Working to keep students interested with hands-on activities, Deleon continued to enjoy her job and the classes where she taught. "My love of English and working with young students helps achieve the impossible," said Deleon.

206 Bones of Creativity. From computer graphics to painting, Mr. Exner teaches his students the value of creativity. When students entered his room, they felt the instant surge of energy from his personality. He contributed a great deal of time in decorating Commons with colorful banners that displayed upcoming events, such as We-Go to Africa fundraisers. Through his dedication to the school, Exner portrayed the perfect mix of artistic talent and a giving heart.

80 Years of Being In Touch. As a role model for students, Mrs. Laimins is an individual who puts smiles on faces. "Mrs. Laimins is an epitome of inspiration. She challenges her students to not only become better students, but better people," said Lauran Hon. Teaching World Studies and Psychology, Laimins taught students to better themselves. As head advisor for JSA, she exposed young minds to the world of politics. Laimins' goal was to prepare the students for the future.

A Privilege to be in a 100 Lives. After working as a doctor for 22 years, Dr. Murphy now teaches Human Anatomy and Physiology. Murphy was interested in teaching others how the human body works and how it interacts. When assignments were too difficult to be done, he changed them to be easier and explained them so his students could understand. "If you cannot achieve a task, then build a half step before getting to a full step," said Dr. Murphy.

56 Drama Plays Performed. With a love for education, Ms. Hafertepe dedicates her time to helping the drama program and Thespians, while still teaching English courses. "My work here was surrounded with three enjoyments: English, theater, and speech," said Hafertepe. Although Hafertepe's schedule consisted of papers to grade and plays to direct, she found time to be involved with other activities. Hafertepe supported her students by attending athletic matches, musical performances, and club events. Her love of teaching has grown over the past years 27 at We-Go.

Four Years to Change a Thousand. Every year, Ms. Daneels takes the time to raise thousands of dollars for schools in Africa. In the past, she spent her time helping build a school to help children in Angola. "I feel successful knowing we built a school in Angola and gave 500 kids a chance to read and write with the help of Wildcat students," said Daneels. In 2009, Daneels was able to raise additional money that raised health awareness in an attempt to stop AIDS.

One Class to be Fit. Physical Education is always fun with Mr. McLeland. He encouraged students to take risks and find activities that may be interesting to students. Not only a P.E. teacher, McLeland was also the head coach for cross country. It was not uncommon to see him running with his team in 90 degree weather. "I encourage them to do the right thing. They are good students and I enjoy coaching them, I enjoy being a coach, a role model, and an influence," added McLeland.

Freshman year is the time to come together to make friendships that will last for the years to come.

Entering the halls for the first time, the Class of 2012 did not know what to expect. After leaving middle school, the 574 students had to assimilate into a school made up of roughly 2,100 students.

As freshmen, the students prepared for a change of their norms. No longer the 'top dogs' of the school, the freshmen anxiously worked for their time to shine. "I did a lot of studying," said Jeff frey Pekosh. With the help of We-Go In With Pride, an assembly just for freshmen, incoming students felt welcomed.

In the assembly, the students met people they normally wouldn't have met otherwise. Taking the first step towards the rest of their lives, the freshmen made choices that would affect their future. Regardless if it was choosing an elective or talking to the quiet kid in class, these students began to form an identity of their own. With many memories beginning to form, they experienced the ups and downs of high school, but learned that this year would be the best of all four. "We have better opportunities as a freshman," said Guillermo Galvan.

Sarah Radloff

Steven Colmer

The One Perfect Act. Memorizing a whole play is not fun, especially not when it's an entire book long. Carly Tubridy and Jessi Bass diligently practiced for perfection.

Ten Pins to Overturn. Gliding across the floor on two mini-scooters, Troy Driscoll shows other students what he's made of by knocking down all but two pins. "I may not have come out on top but I helped show the upperclassmen what we freshmen can accomplish," said Driscoll.

2 Show Times. Performing at the Dance Production show, Alexis Micele flashes attitude as the music ends. "The mix was called Kiss Brits Boyfriend. It was my favorite dance since it was with my best friend," said Micele. Micele danced a duet with Keegan Johnson to an upbeat hip hop song.

One Heart Pounding. Being an optimistic student, Joshua Gimre does not complain while reading yet another book in English class. While managing his schoolwork, Gimre also participated in athletics.

One Perfect Date. Taking a survey, Margaret Brach wishes to find a date. Each girl had an opportunity to ask a boy she was matched with to the first Turnabout dance.

Three Amigas. The Mixer, a yearly dance that helps new students socialize with each other, is the topic of discussion among Yamely Galvan, Biridiana Rodriguez, and Francisca Perez. "I don't really talk to my old friends because the people at We-Go are much better friends," said Galvan.

Weighty Matters

"I have a big freshman backpack. It has dinosaurs on it. I feel bad because people run into it all the time."

-Marissa Caputo

"My backpack is a Mary-Kate and Ashley backpack that I have had since I was in fifth grade. I guess you can say that it looks like a freshman backpack."

-Katie Giordano

"My backpack is not that big, but other people have told me it's a freshman backpack. I don't see why."

-Noah Strayve

15 Pounds. Freshmen who use backpacks, like Aaron Varjan, generally do not go to their lockers throughout the day. It was difficult for the Class of 2012 to make stops at a locker with only five minute passing periods and a bad sense of direction.

Road to Success

"Right now I take the bus before and after school. One time a kid on my bus fell asleep before school and did not wake up and realize he was late until the bus reached an elementary school."

-Maggie Brach

-Brandon Jackson

"The good thing about having a senior brother is that he drives me to school, but he needs like four bagels every morning and makes me late."

456 Enthusiastic Freshmen. During We-Go In with Pride, members of the Class of 2012 are taught to embrace who they are. Chelsie Torres, Brenda Saucedo, and Kathy Rodriguez were a few of many students who took the speaker's message to heart and danced to their own beat.

8 Minutes of Fame. Choosing music and coming up with choreography is only half the work for Juliet Santelli, Lexis Sikorski and Alexis Micele's Dance Production performance. The three girls spent roughly 207 hours practicing for their dance to a mix of songs.

18 Holes. On Alex Marano's first swing at the ball, he gives it great distance on the fairway. He then landed his ball on the green and chose his putter to sink his ball into the hole. With his putter, Marano watched the ball inch closer to the hole and attempted to make par.

120 Yards of Grass. While gaining endurance by running up and down the field, Danny Ortega makes 15 new friends who are also his teammates. Each of the practices allowed these soccer players to bond, grow as individuals, and learn from each other during their 90 minute games.

Since at least two people read each yearbook, more than 2,700 people will read Challenge in one year.

Yearbook was not only a class, but a lifestyle. The yearbook staff devoted most of their time before, during, and after school to making the yearbook, Challenge, perfect. The three editors, Amanda Huey, Alyson Taddeucci, and Courtney Nesemeier, spent hours trying to make the theme, How Do You Measure A Year, present throughout Challenge.

The rest of the staff realized the book is one of the items that students cherish for the rest of their lives. In order to keep high school memories alive, the main goal was to try to make sure all 2,114 students appeared in the yearbook three times.

Students never stop to think how much work is put into making the book. They just grab their yearbook and open to the index to see how many pages they appear on. "One of my favorite parts is to be able to give students their books and see the smiles on their faces," said Ms. Santella.

For students on the staff, reasons for being in yearbook were much different than Ms. Santella's. "I wanted to take a class that was different, where I use my creativity," added Katelyn Casey.

Although the students did not have to be the most creative people, it definitely helped make a measurable yearbook.

Alexis Brunelli

28 Staff Members. On the third day of school, the Yearbook staff walks in the room and realizes that it is not going to be a normal day in class. "I have an announcement," said Ms. Santella. "Today the editors have a surprise for you. We will be going outside to blow bubbles for team bonding."

113 Editor Massages. Understanding the difficulties of being an editor, new staff member Ashley Jefferson works to relieve the stress off the editors' shoulders.

31 Bubble Bottles Used. As Kimberly Mengel shows off her beautiful bubble blowing skills, Kristina Oum watches in amazement. "It was so exciting. It was different from everything else and it was fun. I would most definitely do it again," said Mengel.

1,443 Bubbles Blown. Enjoying their almost once-in-a-lifetime reward of escaping from class, Assistant Editor Molly Pfeifer, Katelyn Casey, and Assistant Editor Maggie Polacek have a blast blowing bubbles. "Our field trip outside was fun. I kept trying to blow big bubbles, but I'm pretty sure there was something wrong with my wand," said Pfeifer.

Editors' Notes

"Yearbook haunted my dreams. I spent so much time working on the book that I constantly had nightmares about missing links and grammatical errors."

Courtney Nesemeter

"As an editor, I realized how horrifying Ms. Santella can be during deadline... just kidding."

Amanda Huey

"Aside from the frustration of deadlines, yearbook helped me grow as an individual and learn the importance of leadership and deadlines."

365 Days a Year

Editors' Page

With nine issues, the Wildcat Chronicle staff is always working to meet their deadlines.

A week before the Wildcat Chronicle arrived in Commons, the staff worked long hours after school, finishing their deadline. Throughout the year, the staff produced nine issues of the Wildcat Chronicle, including a senior issue. With 13 students, producing an 16-page paper seemed impossible. Luckily, every month they finished this feat, placing the paper in the hands of the readers.

Led by Ms. Kuehn, the Journalism teacher, the newspaper team went through many changes, such as new staff and editors. The leaders of the staff included Editor-in-Chief Gregory Vodicka, News Editor Jessica Bergmann, and Sports Editor Jacob Wucka. Other reporters included Sarah Berger, Megan Hernbroth, Amanda Rathe, Alexis Hosticka, Alex Lima, Evan Morgan, Megan Tennis, Payton Bayless, Jake Bradley, and Clark Hudmon.

The paper affected more than just the students, according to staff members. "We aren't treated like a school paper. Our readers branch out from outside the school and inside the community," said Vodicka.

The staff took pride in the Chronicle, having won many awards such as the Northern Illinois School Press Association's Golden Eagle. The publication demanded dedication from its editors and reporters. The Wildcat Chronicle was much more than a class for these students. It was a responsibility.

8 Years. Looking over the pages, Editor-in-Chief Gregory Vodicka gives others his expertise. With his experience from being on the staff for three years, Vodicka led the staff to making each deadline. "We all share the same responsibility, but it is my job to make sure the paper gets finished," said Vodicka.

48 Hours. With only two days to deadline, Senior News Editor Jessica Bergmann checks her schedule to see if there are any last minute events that the paper needs to cover.

856 Word Column. The staff is always trying to make the paper more flashy. Sports Editor Jacob Wucka tried to wake up the readers with his detailed section. Ways he spiced up the paper went from drawing political cartoon to finding a new layout for the sports section.

26 Eyes. All 13 staff members are focused on the computer, working vigorously to finish their stories and send the paper to the press. Alexis Hosticka put the final corrections on her big news story, about the mock school lockdown. Afterward, Editor Jessica Bergmann placed the column in the news section. Once everyone finished with the paper, they started the process all over again.

16 Pages Rev Issue

745 Morning Meetings. Sitting at a desk overflowing with students' work, Uriel Rodelo and Elizabeth Berg prepare to choose their favorite piece of art through a blind submission process. The artwork that was chosen not only expressed each student's individual talent, but also the dedication to the "Mind's Eye" publication.

One of Four Loyal Students. Organizing pieces for the magazine, Maria Galeana works to create the best issue yet. Having been committed to "Mind's Eye," Galeana helped design the layout for the magazine. She showed much determination, becoming an editor of "Mind's Eye."

More than 100 Submissions. Receiving over 100 submissions, Mrs. Wood looks over each piece to check for school appropriateness. Then Wood prepared the art for the "Blind Eye" process for her club members.

47 Creative Pages. As an editor for the magazine, Elijah Asani does his best to make sure that the artwork within the magazine represents the students' creativity. "It's no question that the magazine is an intense production, but the outcome is great," said Asani.

Within pages of the magazine, poetry, drawings, paintings, and photographs combine to represent the school.

"Mind's Eye," the literary magazine for the school, is a club for students to express themselves through pieces of art. The club is not like any other academic club but it is a club to release one's creativity. Poems, short plays, photographs, digital art, paintings and drawings combined to form 47 pages filled with fun.

Being in "Mind's Eye" means a student could either be a seasonal member, someone who submitted work, or a member of the staff who designed the magazine. Editors Maria Galeana and Eli Asani took care of most of the tasks needed for the magazine.

Having had a large number of the student body hand in submissions, staff members chose the art work that went into the magazine through a blind submission process. A blind submission process was the process in which the student's name was removed from the piece of art, so that no student picked his or her friend's art. The book consisted of the best art work of students around the school.

For years, students with creative outlets came together to create a magazine for the school. "If you have a creative way to express yourself, joining 'Mind's Eye' is a great place for you to fit in," said Mrs. Wood, "Mind's Eye" advisor.

During the Government simulation, Democrats use their persuasive abilities when trying to win votes in their favor.

153 Democrats

"Voting for English as the official language will actually incite more ethnic tension and make an already grueling citizenship process more difficult. A vote no for HIB 203 will help America stay the land of opportunity for all, no matter what language they speak."
-Ashley Michnick

War In Iraq. Speaking in support of ending the War in Iraq, Sarah Zaidi uses information and logic to support her stance. "We invaded Iraq in the first place with the hopes of finding weapons of mass destruction, even though the International Atomic Energy Association, the Nuclear Watchdog of World, told us there weren't any," said Zaidi. Even as the official clerk of the government simulation, Zaidi also gave speeches concerning English being the Official Language and Immigration Reform.

Immigration Reform. Trying to persuade the Republicans, Alejandro Garcia states his opinion about Immigration Reform, siding with his fellow Democrats. "I agree that there are too many illegal immigrants and not enough green cards are being distributed. I believe having an immigration reform will impact our economy in a very good way. I think having all the illegal immigrants paying taxes and claiming the taxes will be good for our country," said Garcia. Immigration Reform passed by few votes, giving the Democrats a victory.

Affirmative Action. After hours of debate time, students come to the subject of Affirmative Action. Democratic Representative Cody Weigand stated his opinion, attempting to win the Republicans' vote. "This bill will allow future generations to go to school. It will change the stereotypes that minorities don't want to go to college. It will help the future children of minorities become more eligible to go to college. This bill will help our society in the future, by raising smarter, and more educated people," said Weigand.

War In Iraq. Expressing his opinions during the heated debate regarding the War in Iraq, Sam Mercaldo speaks of staying on the defensive. "It seems to me very few people understand the true reason for why we invaded Iraq. Much of it does have to do with spreading democracy and freedom, but I believe that the real reason why we went into Iraq was because if we did not attack them they would have attacked us," said Mercaldo. In the session, Mercaldo was the assistant whip for Committee E of the Republican side.

Immigration Reform. In the simulation, Democrats vote in favor of immigration reform, and the Republicans against it. Although she was a Democrat, Jessica Bergmann sided with the Republicans on this bill. "Fining illegal immigrants should be done, but we cannot take their money and call it truce. We need to crack down on illegal immigration, starting at the border between the US and Mexico," said Bergmann. The bill almost died, but the last committee of the Republican party gave the bill a final push, passing it in the end.

Affirmative Action. The issue of Affirmative Action can be a very sensitive subject. Republican Mark Dean voiced his strong opinion in the matter. "I oppose this bill because it separates finances and gives all schools a set budget. It wasn't very well thought out because the majority of the schools will have less money than they have now. Smaller schools will have so much money and no place to spend it," said Dean. Affirmative Action failed during committee debates and in full session.

Learning formulas in both subjects, students test their knowledge through experiments and quizzes.

With 19 math and science classes for students to choose from, taking extra classes became a common practice. In the science department, Botany, Human Anatomy and Physiology, AP Chemistry and Biology were just a few choices offered to students. "I took Botany because it sounded like fun. It was a good choice because Mrs. Stieglitz was a great teacher and she made the class enjoyable. We did awesome projects like growing flowers and making flower arrangements. I would definitely recommend it to other students," said Julia Shuliga.

Meanwhile, when the bell rang at the beginning of the period, students entered their math course. The math courses provided were often difficult for students, challenging the knowledge they obtained throughout their lives. Many teachers tried to make the courses more fun, so the students could enjoy the class instead of feeling pressured by it. "Mr. Fox added graphics and sounds to the smart board. I liked when he did this because math was a tough subject for me and he made it easier to pay attention," said Lindsey Gehrke.

The math and science departments were filled with teachers that cared about the subject they taught and the students they were teaching...and it definitely showed.

-Ashley Dunn

Two AP Calculus Courses. Listening to Mrs. Arnold teach AP Calculus BC, one of the hardest math courses available, Marcos Hernandez writes notes in his notebook. "I enjoyed teaching a hard course because all the students who take it were clearly dedicated to learning," said Arnold.

3 Advanced Formulas. After learning about derivatives, Katie Bell completes her assignment. In Calculus, taking extensive notes was crucial to passing the tests and doing well in the course.

12 Labs. Chemistry is a course required for most students. "Chemistry included a lot of hands on labs and experiments. It was my favorite part of the class because the experiments were always difficult, fun, and interesting at the same time," said Emily Pashke.

6 Years. Teaching here for six years, Mr. Rice makes his chemistry class fun, but educational. "Students enter my class with little knowledge about the subject and leave with knowledge that will help them forever," said Rice. With a wide range of knowledge, Rice has taught many classes, including Biology, Chemistry, and AP Chemistry.

4 Fun Seasons. Teachers and students come together to celebrate the four seasons and many holidays in Advisory. These activities tended to be the students' favorites, putting a break in their schedules. "Winter is my favorite time in Advisory, especially when we watch holiday movies," said Kelly Leveille while watching Home Alone Three.

23 Minutes. Reading announcements is a daily occurrence in Advisory. Announcements allowed the students to become aware of the events at school without taking time away from class. "Without announcements there would be a lot of things in the school I wouldn't know about," said Francisco Correa.

34 Reading Days. On every Thursday of each week teachers plan to have their students read. Working on reading skills were not tedious for some, and most participated. "I don't mind reading, as long I have a good book," said Mary Connolly.

Two Activities A Week. Participating in an activity during 6B Advisory, Molly Castelvechi and Robert Windisch enjoy what Advisory has to offer. "I like to watch We-Go-Through-the-Tube and chill with my friends," said Windisch of his favorite aspects of the scheduled events.

With no assignments or homework, Advisory allows students to step away from the realities of school.

For the second year in a row, students found the split period of Advisory on their schedules. Originally, Advisory was meant to stop taking time away from teachers' curriculum because the announcements always took place during classes. It gave students a place to hear announcements and watch We-Go-Through-the-Tube.

This half period that occurred before or after lunch hours also had another purpose. For underclassmen, it was used to prepare for the ups and downs of their high school career. For the upperclassmen, Advisory helped with study habits and with plans of the future. "The Advisory Program provides an opportunity for all students to define, create, and sustain a culture of success at Community High School," said Mr. Covino, the head of the program.

While many people criticized the program, Advisory initiated the competition and compassion of each classroom of students. "A lot of focus is on getting to know each other and to reflect on the students' role in the community," said Ms. Brown, an Advisory adviser.

Whether it was designing the best door for Homecoming Week or helping out those in need, Advisory brought out the best of its students.

For the past 10 years plus, Steppers have tried to become a recognized activity. Now they are Diamonds.

Despite limited space and the need for two tryouts, the Diamond Step team was a diverse and united team. Striving to express spirit through rhythm and movement, the Diamonds added meaning with the high energy movement at every performance. Their movements may have looked different from one another, but they mimicked the beats heard inside the steppers' heads.

For the past ten years, the Step team has been in existence however they've been recognized as an activity for the last two years. Performing at the Pep Assemblies, Mr. Wildcat, and competitions, Diamond Steppers showed students how to stomp the yard.

First time Coach Amanda

Cordes learned and taught the meaning of dedication. "I made a lot of sacrifices for the team but it was worth it," said Cordes.

Captains Brittani Rollins and Ashley Jefferson agreed on the slogan, "Our only competition...perfection," would appear on the back of their T-shirts. "When I first heard it, it rang a bell. It said to me that no matter what place we take at competition our only true competitors are ourselves. Getting over the fear of being in front of people and coming together to sound like one was our competition. That was it," said Jefferson.

-Ashley Jefferson

2 Hands, 8 Sounds. "Hit, Snap, Clap" is a beat the Steppers made their own from the beginning of the season. "It's easy, 'Hit Snap Clap, Hit Hit, Snap Clap Snap, Hit Snap Clap, Hit Hit Snap.' Then you have to say what? It's fun and simple. Once you have it, it's impossible to forget it," said Hadama Thomson.

1st Time for Everything. Stepping for her first time, Alison Place makes it a passion of her own. "Once I got the different beats and dance moves, I loved it," said Place.

1 Devoted Captain. Practice makes an individual and a team better, and Brittani Rollins understands just that. "Coming in over breaks were not the best experience, but all the practicing overtime was worth it when it was time to perform," said Rollins.

2 Athlete Diamonds. Stepping doesn't limit you to just hands and feet when you are on the Diamond Step Team. Steppers Biridiana Garcia and Lisbeth Bernal were consistent with the jumps. Going up and coming down in unison. "We would jump, lay on the ground, use our partners and anything else within our reach to create a new sound and a different look," said Garcia.

Four Years in Africa. Teaching 26 students, Ms. Daneels loves to inspire them. "Leadership is influence. If you influence, you can be a leader," said Daneels. In Africa, Daneels realized that there was still much to be done. The We-Go to Africa project was one service that was expected to continue for years to come, because the class won't grow tired.

Seven Paint Cans. While painting the banner to promote We-Go to Africa events, Caitlin Shiga shows dedication to the class. "We-Go to Africa has turned into a legacy from the time I was a freshman until now. Our program has not only gained local recognition but international recognition also," said Shiga.

One Kind Heart. At the Rise Up event, community leader Kathleen Mason shows her kindness by serving others corn mush, beans, pineapple, chicken, and bread to each table for dinner. The meal was influenced by foods in Angola.

One Event. One Class. One Dream. Waiting for the Rise International Presentation to start, students of Community Leadership became anxious. "After I watched Rise Up, it made me want to work harder to achieve my goal of making a difference in a person's life," said Katelyn Petrusaitis.

Around the community, 26 students help others through service.

"Never doubt that a small group of thoughtful, committed citizens can change the world. Indeed, it's the only thing that ever has," said Margaret Mead in this quote that served as an inspiration for Ms. Daneels' Community Leadership Seminar. The 26 students involved in the seminar strived to make a difference one country at a time. Taking care of not only themselves, these students were also taking care of the less fortunate children in Angola. Working with Rise International, the company with which Community Leadership partnered to help Angola, meant attending Rise events. On November 8th 2008, some of the students of the seminar attended one of the biggest Rise events, Rise Up. At Rise Up, people from around the country walked though the lives of one Angolan child. Out of all the Children in Angola 60 percent are not able to go to school, but Rise and others want to decrease that number, so our school raised a significant amount of money to build a new one. Now 47,000 more Angolans have a place to go to school.

In addition to the Angola effort, this class also helped around the community. Each student in the class had to complete 60 hours of community service. These students worked at multiple places around the area to make a difference, from cleaning cages for animals to working with refugees. "Playing soccer with the kids at world relief was so amazing and helped me set my priorities straight. They have so little but are some of the happiest people that I know, I love working with them," said Ethan Dean.

10 Percussionists Members. The clock hits 7:30 pm, and right away the sound of the Marching Band's drums echoes throughout Memorial Stadium. To inspire the football players for battle, the drum line led by Brian Lustro, Nick Tedeschi, Kurt Johnson, and Joanna Wierenga played the traditional song "Cadence." A percussion based song, "Cadence" accompanied the warm-up song, "Down With The Sickness." With the beating of the drums, these band members prepared players and fans for the upcoming game.

180 Spins. During the half-time show, Carrie Liszka comes into Memorial Stadium field, along with her fellow Color Guard members and the Marching Band, preparing to perform a routine from the song "Mr. Roboto." According to Liszka, "It's hard not to think about the big crowd, but I just have to think about doing my best, and not dropping the flag."

6 Trumpet Players. For the fourth year David Lustro is playing the trumpet while in the Homecoming parade. "Every time I step out on the field, the cheerleaders shout, 'Go Dave!'" said Lustro.

3 Drum Majors. Drum Major David Hiltner leads the band during the Homecoming parade. For Hiltner, it was his third year that he had been honored to be the drum Major. Other Drum Majors included Brendan McCormack and Joseph Wais.

5 Wind Players. Performing a piece by Styx, Kelly Level, who plays the piccolo, marches in the annual Homecoming parade. Marching step by step, Level focused on keeping her steps to the beat of the songs that the rest of the Marching Band is playing.

4 Halftime Performances. After a show, the members of the Marching Band and Color Guard, including Kyle Hunter, David Clark, and Kelli Lyne, walk up to the bleachers next to the Squad and play songs for the remainder of the football game. Songs such as: "Hey Baby," "Ain't No Mountain High Enough," and "Hips Don't Lie" by Shakira, were all sung by the Squad members and rest of the home crowd.

2 Baritone Players. While marching in the parade, Jacob Kimball plays "Mr. Roboto" to go along with the rest of the marching band from the theme, Styx.

360 Twirl. After spraining her wrist early in the season, Stephanie Rogers makes a full recovery and performs in the Homecoming parade. Rogers was on the team since freshman year and planned to be on the team during her senior year as well.

55 Performers. Every year during Homecoming week, the Color Guard leads the Marching Band in the annual parade. The sign that Jake Neuman and Nathan Schweitzer held was bought by the Music Boosters ten years ago. The band continued to use this sign in all of their performances throughout the school year.

When 116 feet step out onto Memorial Field, with 18 flags and 40 instruments, the music from the Marching Band and Color Guard sounds perfect to the note.

On four Friday nights between the months of September and October, the Marching Band and Color Guard members marched their way into Memorial Stadium preparing to perform a halftime show inspired by Styx. During the summer, the Marching Band and Color Guard worked hard learning the 30 pages of drill sheets that they were given.

Throughout the football season, the Marching Band and Color Guard practiced every Thursday night. All the members of the band and Color Guard were required to practice before the upcoming performance. The band was made up of 40 musicians, including three Drum Majors, Brendan McCormack, David Hiltner, and Joseph Wais. The Color Guard was made up of 18 performers. "Performing pieces of music allows you to appreciate the time which was put into making it," said Kevin Szul, who played the trumpet.

Where the band played, Mr. Govertsen directed. Govertsen, the director, became the heart and soul of the group, according to several musicians who followed his direction. Every performer was certain that Govertsen would be heard with his megaphone on every Thursday practice. "My soul is owned by the West Chicago Band, and it's being held in the school's safety deposit box," said Govertsen. Along with Govertsen, the Color Guard Director Kathy Steere also played a huge part in the performances by choreographing the dances.

Despite the variety of instruments Band members play, they all share a common interest of producing beautiful music.

20 Songs Per Season. According to David Lustro, the band's songs include: "Hips Don't Lie," "Superstition," "Don't Stop Believin'," and "Centerfold." "I was a member of band for eight years, and I love playing the trumpet," said Lustro.

The Three Tubas. With talent, Jacqueline Leeseberg, William Heinze, and Jam Maguire play their instruments. "I've been playing tuba for eight years, and I enjoy it because it's a great way to meet people at school," said Heinze.

20 Buttons. Playing his saxophone, Anthony Nolzco concentrates on watching the drum majors so he can keep himself on beat. "I started playing the sax because my cousin played it. We were always close, and it looked fun," said Nolzco.

Two Drumsticks. Exercising his drumming abilities, Kurt Johnson keeps the beat for everyone to hear on his snare drum. "I really like playing the snare drum because it's a great deal of fun, and it can also be challenging," said Johnson.

70% Copper and 30% Zinc. Playing to music chosen by Mr. Govertsen, the school's band director, Lia Smith belts out her tune on the mellophone. "I joined band because I love music, and band was a way to be a part of it. Four years later, some of my best memories are from band," said Smith.

One Huge Clap. Keeping watch for the right beat, William Burke stands at the ready to bang his symbols together. Burke's sound with the symbols was essential in bringing the song "Mr. Roboto" and "Centerfold" to a tight and strong finish.

Two Eyes. Reading the music from her stand, Elizabeth Fortner contributes her part to the band's unique sound. Fortner put a lot of effort into her music and always tries her hardest while marching.

39 Flags. Showing off talent and dancing skills, Lorena Orizaba proudly wears her school's colors on her Color Guard uniform while performing to "Rockin the Paradise," as made famous by Styx. One of the fifteen flags Orizaba used also sported white and blue.

Four Beats per Minute. Counting out the beats, Drum Major David Hiltner keeps the members of the band on time and in focus with the song. "At first I felt awkward because I was a drum major as a Sophomore, but as a Senior, I feel strongly about instructing my peers," said Hiltner.

Three Terrific Tooters. Performing with flutes as one unique sound, Molly Valdez, Kevin Bicek, and Erica Smith all play the same notes to add that unique pitch to the band's many numbers.

With different choir classes, the difficulty of hitting the right note inspires these singers to sing their best.

As melodies fill the hallways, the Choir works to sing each song in perfect tune and pitch. Each year, new songs are given to the students to learn and sing in the seasonal concerts. Songs like "The Lion Sleeps Tonight" and "Hide and Seek" made Choir fun because they were recognizable songs.

A few students who were in Concert Choir were also in the Chamber Choir. To join Chamber Choir, a student needed to audition.

Few people were a part of the Chamber Choir because it was more work. However, the people that took the time to learn all of these songs and work hard were those who were extremely passionate about singing and would do anything to grow as musicians. Along with the 14 to 16 songs that the members were required to learn for Concert Choir, people in the Chamber Choir were assigned over 30 more songs.

While choosing the right music was always a difficult task, there was a method to choosing music that everybody enjoyed. "Mr. Fantozzi, our director, picked music that went with the theme of the season. We sing Christmas carols during the winter and fun, peppy music in the spring. It is always fun to get new music and it really puts you in the spirit of the holiday," said Chelsea Ross.

-Ashley Dunn

11 Seniors. Leading a class through difficult pitches and lending a hand to new singers, Allison Navadomskis, Katrina Beedle, and other seniors help Mr. Fantozzi at the concerts. "As one of eight senior girls, it has been a pleasure to be in Choir all four years," said Beedle.

16 Males. The baritones and tenors bring the music down an octave. Raymond Redmond, James Laiter, and Ethan Dean were three of 16 males that enriched the music.

1 Pianist. Every song that is sung for each choir is accompanied by the melodies of pianist, Mr. Benner. With the talent Benner displays, he inspires choir members such as Carrie Liszka, Rebekah Babis, Amy Ratliff and Kristina Kalin to perfectly match his harmonic songs.

1 Pitch Pipe. To begin every song that the Chamber Choir sings, a pitch pipe is used to play the first note of every song. By doing this, Chamber Choir knew exactly what pitch to sing and perfectly performed the song. "Without the pitch pipe, we would all be lost because we would all start on different notes and the song would end up sounding terrible!" said Emily Roberts.

8 Strings. Playing the bass, the deepest sound of the Orchestra, Zachary McNeil and Jesse Hacker concentrate on keeping in tune with the rest of the musicians. "I started playing the bass in fourth grade because all my friends and I were going to join, but I was the only one to follow through. I chose the bass because it was the biggest of all the instruments," said McNeil.

3/4 The Standard Size. Playing a smaller version of the 50-inch cello, Anthony Soliven and Anthony Hasbun wait for their cues to join into the harmony that has already begun. "I work hard for orchestra, I practice around three and a half hours every week," said Hasbun.

18 Hours of Devotion. Being a member of track, swimming, clubs, and volunteering, Kelly Loftus manages playing the violin into her schedule. "The only reason I can manage is because I love doing everything I do," added Loftus.

4 Eyes. Watching the instructor while playing, Raelene Struckmeyer and Katrina Turzinski concentrate on playing in harmony with the rest of the orchestra. After two postponed concerts, due to weather conditions, Struckmeyer and Turzinski finally played at their winter concert.

Despite snow storms and busy schedules, these students worked for perfection in every performance.

In perfect harmony, orchestra worked tirelessly to captivate the crowds at their concerts. With four concerts throughout the year and four to five songs to learn for each concert, the excellence they strove for showed their true dedication to music and fine arts. "I really loved the type of students I was able to teach; they were smart, motivated, dedicated, and above all good people," said Mr. Govertsen, the orchestra director.

With school and orchestra, many students had to find time in their busy schedules to finish their homework along with practicing their instruments. Music was more than another class for these students. "I love playing music. It brought new horizons. You don't just play the music. You learn about who wrote the music, and the history of what you are playing," added Ashley Michnick.

Playing from Bach to Tchaikovsky, these students not only expanded their levels of creativity, but also their need for knowledge of music and its past. While students can only take orchestra for four years, they are able to grasp concepts that will last for a lifetime. "Once, the stage lights went out and no one could see their music sheets. I learned from that we don't need lighting to perform. All we need to perform is passion, dedication, and cell phones," added Caitlin Shiga.

After weeks and weeks of preparation, the actors put their scripts to the test in the original comedy, All in the Timing.

Talent swept the acting scene in the comedy, All in the Timing. The play used classic puns and metaphors to create genius results. The sharp adaptation of David Ives' eight original skits bonded the unrelated acts together into one production. Lucas Valdez described the play as different, fun, and original. "I felt the play had such a unique twist," said Valdez.

One of the skits was known as "Universal Language." It starred actors David Hiltner and Rebekah Babis. The two tried to communicate with each other using a new language called Unamunda. It left the audience with a positive impression and confusion. "The combination of the acts worked well together, just like bacon and eggs," said

Hiltner.

After efficient work on the production, it was opening night on November 13th. Rehearsing for weeks, Chelsea Ross showed off her comedic chops when she portrayed the role of Jill, in "English Made Simple," with co-star Philip Lenertz. "This skit was great because it illustrated the normal party everyone has once been to," said Ross.

"It was great to interact with the audience and make them laugh. Being on stage was absolutely exhilarating."

The newest actors landed lead roles as well, like Demetria Demas, cast as Betty, a woman who met Bill, played by Tony Wondolkowski. In a coffee shop, they stirred up various conversations on topics that dealt with life and interests. "It was great to interact with the audience and make them laugh. Being on stage was absolutely exhilarating," said Demas.

The eight skits portrayed in the play were entertaining as well as funny. The cast and crew were satisfied with the ending reaction, from the auditions to roll call on the last performing night. "Nothing was a better feeling than having the curtains fall. We walked off the stage knowing that the show was an absolute hit and that our performances were our bests," added Wondolkowski.

- Lauran Hon

"Seven Menus!"

A circle of friends, including Rebekah Babis, meet up at a place for lunch. "I loved the audience's reaction when we switched places and each had their own story," said Babis.

A Single Pair.

"Sure Thing" draws the attention to Tony Wondolkowski and Demetria Demas who meet at a coffee shop. "I loved being in the act, and showing the possible outcomes," said Demas.

Simple as 1, 2, 3.

Rehearsing their simple dialogue, Jill and Jack soon find that it only takes three minutes to determine two people's lives forever. Chelsea Ross and Philip Lenertz were the night's rising stars in this scene of positive looks on life.

One Mystery.

Playing an oblivious inspector, Phil Lenertz tries to find the murderers of another character, played by Tony Wondolkowski. "The Mystery at Twicknam at Vicarage" is the classic murder mystery case," said Sarah Brown.

Final Act. There is nothing like a game of Clue for this investigation. Philip Lenertz played the role of Inspector Harry Dexter as the suspects, played by David Hiltner, Elizabeth Fortner, and Sarah Brown, tried to cover up the scene of the dead body. When the production came to a close, the cast and crew were rewarded with the applause from the audience. Director Mrs. Hafertepe enjoyed the play because the students generated the ideas and ran the show. "The one act plays provided many students the opportunity to the develop a character in a short amount of time and sell it to the audience," said Hafertepe.

Many Options. Choosing what they wanted to eat out of seven menus is a difficult task for Megan Tennis, Noah Strayve, and Angelica Nava.

Two of a Kind. Inventing an all new language is simple for David Hiltner. "It was so phenomenal," added Hiltner about the resulting confusion.

One Copywrite. Monkeys writing with typewriters is a classic skit of satire. Gregory Lyne and Anthony Soliven show the humor in all "Words Words Words" in this skit.

A Loaf of Bread. The creative Philip Glass feels like buying bread. Emma Roberts, Thomas Harms, Samantha Lauf, and Victoria Snell moved about the room rhythmically to his original musical compositions as it comically fed into the act.

Two Odd Worlds. The obvious city stereotypes are apparent when Bradley Cole and Lucas Valdez discover the Philadelphia attitude being completely out of the norm. "This skit was quite a unique scene. I really enjoyed the humor," said Valdez.

The winter play, Mrs. McThing, takes an interesting turn of events as Mrs. Larue, one of the main characters, receives a phone call from her distressed son.

As the auditorium filled, the actors ran through backstage applying make-up and putting on their costumes. The technical crew prepared song recordings and sound effects. The cast and crew of Mrs. McThing, directed by Charles A. Berglund, showed their talents on Thursday, February 19.

The play focused on a boy named Howay, played by Joseph Wais, and his mother Belle Larue, played by Emily Roberts. Act One started with Mrs. Larue talking to her maid Carrie, played by Abigail Contreras. When the audience first saw Howay, he was very prim and proper. Throughout the play, the audience learned that Howay was replaced as a stick because of the witch, Mrs. McThing, played by Nadia Pelletier and Kelsey Fiegle, who lived up in the mysterious Blue Mountains. The stick was there as a form of punishment to Mrs. Larue because she wouldn't let a girl named Mimi, played by Chelsea Ross, play with her son. Later,

"I had no idea what had happened. We went outside and waited for the firemen."

Mrs. Larue met with the real Howay and they became stuck together in the Shantyland Pool Hall. Mrs. McThing put a stick in Mrs. Larue's place to punish her further. From there, the play focused on their struggles living with three mobsters who own the place. In the end, Mimi helped the family back into their home.

In the closing scene of the play, the audience received an unexpected surprise when the school fire alarms started to ring. "I was midline when the fog machine set off the fire alarms. I had no idea what happened at first. Everyone had to exit. We went outside and waited for the firemen," said Ross. Sadly, the show did not go on. The alarms only interrupted the last two minutes of the play, and the audience didn't miss much.

The cast practiced every day after school. "Once during practice, I had techno beats stuck in my head, so I started dancing backstage. I hadn't realized everyone was looking at my booty shake. Every practice after that, I always did my booty shake. It was like our own little thespian tradition," said Wais.

-Ashley Troia

1 Picky Chef.

Taking names and orders, the waiter in Mrs. McThing, Noah Strayve reports to the chef who only takes a few special orders, James Alfaro.

2 Glaring Eyes.

Playing the part of the ugly witch, Nadia Pelletier bursts through a cloud of fog to reveal what the other characters were running frightfully from.

1 Kid, No Mom.

With the only song in the play, "Motherless Child," head mobster Anthony Wondolkowski explains to Joseph Wais the importance of having a mother who loves him. Later, Wondolkowski's two mobster companions joined in on the melody.

1 Distant View.

Pointing in the distance, Emily Roberts explains to Sarah Brown how a witch named Mrs. McThing lives up in the Blue Mountains. She also tells of how a little girl came down to play with her son, who acted more polite than usual with the young girl's arrival.

18 Train Cars. Playing the role of Howay, both as a stick and as a real boy, Joseph Wais explains to Chelsea Ross how he wants to be a part of the three mobsters at the Shantyland Pool Hall. Ross continually argued with Wais about how she liked him and wanted to play with him. On and off the stage, the actors worked together to make Mrs. McThing fall into place. "Dress rehearsal was the very first time I got to practice my costume changes. I was five minutes late getting onto the stage the first time. I didn't realize I really only had about 20 seconds to change into each outfit," said Wais.

1 Mother. Convincing Chelsea Ross that she shouldn't play with her son, Emily Roberts tries to explain why the two are a bad match for each other.

One Embrace. Excited about the new mob membership that Joseph Wais accepted, Tyler Austgen grabs the runaway in his arms to parade around the lunchroom.

2,000 Thoughts. Wondering where Howay is, Abigail Contreras is the only one that think something happened to Howay because he's not himself.

Three Mobsters. Making plans of their night to come, Jacob Kimball, Anthony Wondolkowski, and Tyler Austgen attempt to be sly and secretive. The plan was to sneak into Larue Towers, make it seem like they were helping, and run with the loot.

3 Sisters. Playing as the Loomis sisters in Mrs. McThing, Devon Tuma, Samantha Lauf, and Sarah Brown sit with Emily Roberts and Joseph Wais. The sisters gossiped and quarreled about how their neighbors looked and acted.

With a crash of drums and a flash of light, the cast of Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat and its four sold out shows amaze the audience.

On four consecutive days in May, audiences filled Weyrauch Auditorium to see the spring musical, Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat. Based on the biblical story, the musical shares the magical story of how a boy from Canaan brings together a family of 13 after a long journey of suffering, despair, and hardship.

Nikolas Kmiecik took the stage as Joseph, the boy who was envied by his 11 brothers for being the favorite son. When their hate for Kmiecik's character took over, the brothers, including Jeffrey Pierpoint, Thomas Harms, and Kevin Curda, beat up Joseph and sold him into slavery.

During the musical, narrators Carissa Gouskos and Megan Green led the audience through Joseph's hardships. "What I liked the most about the performances was the energy that the crowd had. It seemed like they really enjoyed the performances," said Green.

"What I liked the most about the performances was the energy that the crowd had. It seemed like they really enjoyed the performances."

After traveling through the desert, being sold to slavery, and then sent to jail, Kmiecik catches a break. The Pharaoh, played by David Hiltner, needed someone to interpret his dream, giving Kmiecik the chance to rise from the gutters of despair. When Joseph's brothers repented for what they did to their brother, the story ends with happiness and a final song.

Along with the 89 students who acted, composed, assisted, and danced in the play, seven elementary school children helped out. Singing along with the chorus, the kids acted as props and enjoyed the story unfolding in front of them.

"It was difficult having my siblings helping with the play because I felt like sometimes I had to babysit them, but the show really turned out well and we had a lot of fun," said Allison Navadomskis, a sibling to two of the elementary school children who performed in the show.

-Lisa Giordano

7 Elementary Students.

Throughout the musical, seven children act as props and sing along. Among them were two siblings to Allison Navadomskis.

2 Miscommunicating People Playing Jimmy Aramburu's wife, Rene Cirone, hide her desire for Joseph from Potiphar as she remains married to him.

1 Elvis Impersonating Pharaoh. Swinging his hips like no other, the Pharaoh, played by David Hiltner, wows the crowd. "I enjoyed playing Pharaoh. He switches personalities from a serious ruler to a swinging hipster," said Hiltner.

1 Favoring Father. Showing compassion for his favorite son, Jacob, played by Thomas Sanders, makes the other brothers jealous. "I enjoyed playing a father, but when I'm a father, I won't favor one child," said Sanders.

Four Sold Out Performances. Packing the auditorium on four consecutive nights, the cast of Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat wows the crowd singing the final song in the musical, "Any Dream Will Do." This year was the first year that a musical had a Sunday matinee, and the cast and crew enjoyed every second of it. "I hadn't done another show before Joseph, so I can't say if it would have been much different, but it was an amazing show. It was wonderful to see such a large crowd come out and see us," said Thomas Sanders, the actor behind Joseph's bearded father, Jacob.

11 Jealous Brothers. Sold to Egyptian merchants by his brothers, Nik Kmiecik's character is forced to live as a slave. "Betrayal is the lowest of low," said Kmiecik.

1 Wise Sphinx. As she questions Joseph's actions, the Sphinx, Sarah Brown, appears and disappears. "I enjoyed playing the Sphinx. I got a solo," said Brown.

2 Political Singers. After interpreting the dream that the Pharaoh, played by David Hiltner had, Joseph becomes the Pharaoh's second in command.

11 Sad Brothers. Expressing their sadness for the loss of their brother, Anthony Wondolkowski, Anthony Soliven, and William Heinz raise their berets. "My character was the oldest of the brothers, making him stand out," said Wondolkowski.

1 Infuriated Husband. Potiphar makes a mistake when he sends Joseph to jail without knowing that his wife was yearning for Joseph. "Playing Mrs. Potiphar, I stepped out of my comfort zone but I had a blast playing her," said Renee Cirone.

As an IHSA team event, Speech Team competes at a new, challenging level with their highest numbers ever.

With the largest Speech Team in seven years, the 30 members were debatably the strongest yet. The team placed in multiple competitions throughout the season, making a name throughout the DVC. Speakers participate in competitions including the We-Go Invitational in November, DVC Tournament in January, and Verbally Yours and the IHSA regional competition in February. The Speech Team is led by Head Coach Mr. Kling, but is also coached by Mr. Covino, Ms. Brown and Mrs. Wood. The team has four captains, Bill Heinze, Carrie Liszka, Katarzyna Grabiec and Sam Mercaldo. "This was the biggest team I've coached. It is the most balanced team in terms of upper and underclassmen. We had 11 events that made finals at IHSA Regionals. It was the most ever and was pretty exciting," said Kling.

At a typical competition, two members speak on three of thirteen events from Oratorical Declamation to Extemporaneous Speaking. The season started in October and continued through February with meetings every week, plus individual coaching times for each student's speech. The practices and coaching sessions paid off, with the team placing fourth at the DVC Tournament and tying for 4th at IHSA Regionals.

-Megan Ogorzalek

4 Big Tournaments. While preparing for the annual We-Go Invitational in November, Karan Panchal works on his facial expressions. The event was open to all students and parents to watch for no cost, and entertained audience members with colorful speeches and unique view points.

1 Captain. After two years on the team, Sam Mercaldo looks up to his coaches. "The coaches have been very helpful and encouraging. They excel at what they do," said Mercaldo.

30 Minutes. Each member of the team individually meets with a coach for a personalized time to work on his or her speeches. "These coaching times really help me get my speech prepared and helps me gain confidence before a tournament," said Veronica Salazar.

6 Concentrated Students. While listening to their peers' lectures, Speech Team members are expected to act professionally and respectfully, and sometimes offer constructive criticism. Shea Rogers, David Garcia, Kasha Grabiec, Carrie Liszka, and Sam Mercaldo listened intently while waiting to perform their own individualized speeches.

28 Helping Hands. While working with many others who contributed to the fundraiser, Ryan Crawford, Kyle Molskow and Colton Reif begin wrapping presents. They arrived early and worked with the 11 other members to finish the present wrapping in time for Christmas. FBLA's fundraiser was under the belief that no child, regardless of age, should go without presents on December 25th.

2 Determined Leaders. One of the newest advisors of FBLA, Mrs. Durbin instructs the members to wrap presents in time to send them out. While most of the members' time was spent preparing for competition, many of the members helped Durbin deliver the presents to children throughout Winfield Township.

4 Different Wrapping Paper. On a Wednesday morning, Dana Burgess goes into Room 210 to wrap presents with other FBLA members, Rebecca Cisowski, Stuart Sankovitch, and Jamie Roman, who collected used toys from the students.

27 Wrapped Presents. With continuing dedication, Matthew Zajac and Kyle Molskow receive instructions from advisor, Mrs. Wirth. The two wrapped as many toys as possible and gave them to Rebecca Cisowski to be shipped that day. The presents were given to less fortunate children on Christmas.

At all their competitions, the members of Future Business Leaders of America strive to succeed.

Every year the members of Future Business Leaders of America, also known as FBLA, meet to discuss current business topics. "FBLA increases your knowledge and mental strength, but it's not all work. It's also fun time to do activities, like the Variety Show," said President Rebecca Cisowski.

Members competed on subjects from business to career-related fields, focusing on the events in three categories: individual, team, and chapter. At the events, they gave speeches, debated, and talked business ethics. "I am really looking forward to working with excellent students. This year, I want to bring every student to state," said Mrs. Wirth. After working hard all year around, members participated in fun activities within the community. "Going on trips, staying at hotels with my FBLA club buddies was great. The best part was the FBLA dance," said Officer Ryan Crawford. Many of the activities included fundraisers like the Variety Show and helping out underprivileged kids on Christmas that don't get much. "This year was my first year working with the advisor and I was very excited to be doing the competitions and activities," said Mrs. Durbin. The hard work and determination prepared the club members for a future in the business world, in which, they were bound to succeed.

21 Pairs of Gloves. Finally reaching their destination at the Christmas Market, Carlos Aca, Ivon Ayala, Iveth Ayala, Rabely Bañuelos, Benito Gomez, Mariela Marin, Lucas Cruz, Teresa Martinez, Miguel Moreno, Guadalupe Mendoza, Jeremy Martinez, Paola Martinez, Paloma Reyes, Viviana Cuautle, Dr. Sanders, Yesenis Marban, Dulce Flores, Mayra Valdez, Jose Arguello, Monica Reyes, and Maricela Medina are eager to look at all the colorful Christmas lights and other decorations. While it was a somewhat cold evening, the group enjoyed each other's company while partying among downtown Chicago's decorations.

Five Cold Hands. Enjoying the warmth on the "L" train, Paloma Reyes, Paola Martinez, Monica Reyes, Viviana Cuautle, and Filiberto Toxtlo prepare themselves for the cold as they approach the Christmas Market.

5 Fun Facts. Anxiously preparing to board the train Guadalupe Mendoza, Iveth Ayala, Francisca Perez and Ivon Ayala, can't wait to reach Pilsen, and the National Museum of Mexican Art, the only national museum dedicated to Mexican art. "Learning about culture and all the historical events made me proud to be Hispanic," said Ayala.

Four Cups of Hot Chocolate. After they each drink two cups of hot chocolate, Ivon Ayala and Jeremy Martinez finally warm up. The two walked around with cups in hand enjoying the wonderful Christmas decorations at the German Market.

Two Years of Friendship. After a long, exciting day in Chicago, Carlos Aca and Rabely Bañuelos are ready for a delicious dinner. They hung out in the plaza as they waited for their friends.

Four Rosy Red Checks. After spending an exciting and cold day in Chicago, Iveth Ayala, Carlos Aca, Jorge Quiroz, and Miguel Moreno sit down to rest their feet and warm up their hands as they wait for the train to arrive. Taking field trips throughout the school year was one of the many benefits of being in OLAS.

27 Crafty Ornaments. Traveling to the German Christmas Market, Viviana Cuautle, Paola Martinez, Paloma Reyes, Monica Reyes, Angelica Perez, Maricela Medina, Jose Arguello, and Mayra Valdez plan to bring home colorful and crafty Christmas ornaments to their families. With all the field trips that took place, each and every student enjoyed having fun and learning at the same time.

Two Smiles of Success. Pleased with their success of this trip, Dr. Sanders and Mr. Poulterer taste their hot chocolate when they arrive at the Christmas Market.

Two-Tired Feet. After a long day of walking in the cold and switching trains constantly, Dr. Sanders stays comfortable on the train from the Christmas Market. Sanders described this experience as one of the best.

45 New Friends. Playing games and meeting peers is exactly what Angelica Perez, Iveth Ayala, Guadalupe Mendoza, Francisca Perez, and Ivon Ayala plan to do at the OLAS Mixer. "In OLAS, you go new places and meet new people. You have a chance to share ideas and hang out together," said Mendoza. With the help of Dr. Sanders, the students in OLAS made memories that will never fade.

OLAS, meaning "waves" in Spanish, lets these students learn about multiple cultures while making new friends.

Only meeting once a month, members of OLAS always stayed busy whether they were planning field trips and activities or making new friends. OLAS, of the Organization of Latin America Students, gave students an opportunity to meet and make friends with other students of any ethnic background. Students were introduced to cultural events in the nearby city of Chicago.

The Dalai Lama once said, "Old friends pass away, new friends appear. It is just like the days. An old day passes, a new day arrives. The important thing is to make it meaningful: a meaningful friend -- or a meaningful day." Dr. Sanders, advisor of OLAS, said that she believes that these words best describe OLAS and its mission.

Being able to travel to different places with close friends made the club fun for everyone. The first of the year involved a trip to Millennium Park to see the Whirling Dervishes from Turkey, mystical dancers who go into a trance as they spin to music.

Whether it was visiting the National Museum of Mexican Art or drinking hot chocolate at the German Christmas Market, the members enjoyed each and every experience with new and old friends.

1 Largo Group. In style and on time, Kyle Garramone, Amy Volk, Savanna Fulmer, Marilu Luna, Oscar Avila, Eric Anderstrom and Jessica Mitsch are the first group of students to arrive at the Holiday Pep Assembly. They waited in anticipation for the wild games of the winter assembly to begin. "The pep assemblies are good. There are always interesting things that happen. Like when the seniors usually win, that's great," said Anderstrom. Just like some of the other students who attended the assembly, We-Go Buddies had the privilege of sitting front row closest to the action.

8 Flags. During We-Go in with Pride, an assembly dedicated to freshmen, A.J. Trada completes his strides towards success. Trada paid attention throughout the assembly to successfully assimilate into the new school.

Four Friends. It is always nice to let loose and enjoy a day away from classes. During time with guest speaker, Eddie Slowikowski, both Jonathon Lopez and Marilu Luna showed off by participating in Simon Says, an icebreaker. Striving for greater and better opportunities, Lopez and Luna looked past the obstacles and shook loose with other incoming freshmen.

1 Mic. Standing at the microphone at Enchanted Castle in Lombard, IL, Anthony Leidig puts on a show for friends and staff to enjoy during their day of fun.

1 Seat Belt. According to Oscar Avila, safety comes first. Riding shotgun in the parade, Avila waved to the students he passed. "I had a great time seeing people wave at me," said Avila. "It was always a pleasure to get out and enjoy some sun."

250 Ford. During the Homecoming Parade Maxine Kennedy, Tatiana Ramirez and Amanda Hempe enjoy riding in the back of the 250 Ford. Partaking in the events made Homecoming week enjoyable for the We-Go Buddies. "Being in the truck was fun, I liked being a part of Homecoming Week," said Hempe.

6 Wheels. At the first pep assembly of the year, Kyle Garramone, Amy Volk, and Luke Varas enjoy the entertainment. "I may be one of the three students in a wheelchair at this school, but I don't look at it as a setback. It's nice not having to walk everywhere. I do get out and walk with assistance, but I've grown accustomed to my chair and it's not as bad as others may think. I'm always in the front. That is great," said Garramone.

1 Strong Bond. The time spent together makes each person in We-Go Buddies feel a connection. Hope Schmidt relaxed with Ms. Carlos at the Winter Pep Assembly. "It's nice to see Hope smile and know I'm part of the reason," said Ms. Carlos.

8 Letters. As the pep assembly begins, Shawn Kiser waits for the games to begin. Kiser wore his favorite t-shirt, CSI, hoping to one day be a part of the program.

12 Knights and 7 Ladies. Taking a trip to the past, these students visit the Medieval Times in Schaumburg, Illinois. There, they enjoyed a timeless meal with entertainment, watching as their knight faced off against the green knight. The time they shared together as the battle raged on left them with fond memories.

For these students, friendships and life long memories come from compassionate hearts.

The We-Go Buddies program started in 2001 and was first called Best Buddy, a universal organization designed to make the separation of general education students and special need students less evident.

The program provided an environment comfortable for students with learning disabilities by incorporating scheduled events for every month. The program wouldn't have been successful if it wasn't for the students who volunteered their time to be the buddies. "A buddy makes learning easier. It's like we make big problems to them small just by being there," said Jonathon Lopez.

With the impressive amount of time spent with each other, the members considered themselves a family. "When I'm at We-Go Buddies, I have fun. It's like a home away from home," said Raymond Redmond.

From bonfires to a trip to Enchanted Castle, the fun never ended. "We hope that the relationships created aren't just within the school walls. It's about getting the students comfortable with communicating with students that are different. It's become a passion of mine since I started," said Mrs. Cook. Starting with 43 applicants, We-Go Buddies was formed to help students that needed classes focused on individual need. Now, it is a friendship created while students learn at a pace that best suited them.

These competitors have more than what it takes to make it through the school day. They have LifeSmarts.

The two LifeSmarts Teams brought pride and nationwide recognition to West Chicago when they competed at the Ultimate Consumer Challenge in St. Louis on April 25-28. After taking 2nd in State and winning the Illinois State Competition, team members Steven Romanelli, William Burke, Diana Martinez, Rebecca Cisowski, Danielle Brown, Samuel Wais, Stuart Sankovitch, William Heinze, Ryan Stirrup, and Jonathan Kinsella rose to the challenge against 30 other states.

Coached by Mr. Zabelin, the team used their knowledge of financial management, technology, the environment, consumer rights, health and safety. These students participated in mock LifeSmarts games and put countless hours into preparing for the event. "The competition this year was more skilled and competitive. We had meetings, study materials, practice questions and practice buzzers to help the teams keep up with the competition," said Mr. Zabelin.

Other than putting forward their best efforts, the students actually enjoyed being a part of LifeSmarts. "Mr. Zabelin was a great coach and I got to bond with all my teammates. I learned a lot and it was a stimulating experience," said Jonathan Kinsella.

-Megan Zajac

6 Months of Preparation. To boost the team's morale before the competition, Mr. Zabelin gives team members Diana Martinez, Samuel Wais, Steven Romanelli, and Stuart Sankovitch a pep talk in which they discuss strategies on how to bring home a victory.

85 Questions. Before sharing her final answer with the judges and members of the audience, Diana Martinez takes a moment to make sure she has her thoughts in order.

1st Time Members. Being a part of the LifeSmarts team, Rebecca Cisowski represents CHS in a positive way. "A lot of the questions tested everyday knowledge, but you learned something new every practice. It was a lot of fun," said Cisowski.

5 Hours to St. Louis. With days and months of practice under his belt, Stuart Sankovitch is thrilled with the team's achievement. "Mr. Zabelin is a very driven individual. He worked us for hours, but it all worked out in the end when we won multiple state championships. We had a very balanced team which helped to work in our advantage," said Sankovitch.

12 Encouraging Students. Applauding the cancer survivors who were taking the first lap, Team Power Kicks stand with pride as they try to fight cancer. "As a team of friends, our goal was to help in any way that we could. We sold knick knacks to help raise most of the money," said Marcos Hernandez. Raising $100.00 through donations and sales, Hernandez felt proud of his team.

Three Hopeful Friends. Raising money, Jenny Goldsmith, Devon Tuma, and Andrea Siefert do their part to help out cancer patients. "I liked falling asleep in the middle of the football field at three for a great cause," said Siefert.

8 Years of Unbearable Struggles. Being diagnosed with cancer in 2006, Ms. Eichenberger speaks about her journey to recovery. Standing by her side for support was her daughter, Annette Eichenberger whose track team helped raise money in support of the fight against cancer.

Thirty Laps. Walking laps to fight back cancer, Brandon Castillo, Madeline Dall, Brodie Ruman, and Victoria Snell walk together to pass the time. "Walking with a group of my friends was a great way to pass the time. The later it became, the more grateful I was that I shared the experience with friends," said Castillo.

From six p.m. to six a.m., students, staff, and community members alike strolled to make a difference.

For the fourth year, the American Cancer Society takes over Memorial Field in its fight against cancer with the annual Relay For Life event. At the end of May, over 47 teams joined the fight with one goal, to make a difference. "Having everyone come together to fight back cancer was a great experience. It shows what a group of people can do when it concerns a great cause," said Ms. Laimins, who helped set up the event.

Starting off with a speech from Ms. Eichenberger, a cancer survivor and mother of Annette Eichenberger, the night took off. "Finding out Mom had cancer was life changing. I realized that life should be lived second by second," said the younger Eichenberger. During Luminaria, one of the Relay's events, participants like the Eichenbergers, shared a hopeful outlook for the future.

With a live band playing, face painting, and games, team members were able to fight back while enjoying the time pass. "There were so many things to do to have a great time. I chilled with Ms. Santella, walked laps, and went on the moonbounce with a few friends. It was an amazing night," said Alexis Brunelli.

With 47 teams, the 379 participants of Relay for Life raised a total of $52,343.25. The money that was collected was given to the Cancer Prevention Society in an effort to stop cancer from taking any more lives

One Night of Memories. On the night of prom, the Yearbook staff leaves behind the dance floor to capture the faces of the friends that they had come to know over the year. "Yearbook taught me responsibility among my peers. Because of it I'm so much closer to the people within the class, even the ones I didn't know," said Katelyn Casey.

23 Arguments. Giving a speech to his fellow teammates as well as the opposing team, Karan Panchal delivers his opinion with force. "Speech is more than just a club. It's a way to better yourself as an individual," said Panchal.

581 Possible Drivers

Driving is a very exciting part of a Sophomore's year, but it's only one of the events the Class of 2011 enjoyed.

The second year of high school brought excitement for sophomores. They walked through the halls with boosts of confidence knowing the hallways and faces of the teachers. "I liked being a sophomore because when I'm walking down the hallways and miss the stairs, I know where to go before I get lost. It's fun to see freshmen suddenly look around and just wonder where they are. I don't need to worry about that," said Mehak Damani.

Friends competed with each other about who would be getting their license first or who was a better driver. "The difference between having your permit and not is that when you don't have it, you really don't have a lot of freedom. When you finally get it, you realize how much fun driving is and you don't need to wake up for the bus early," said Christina

Deimling.

With the new Squad shirts, sophomores sat in the Squad section in Memorial Field and showed their school spirit like the rest of the upperclassmen. More memories were made during this time than any other. "We have fun. That's basically it. We just enjoy each other's company," said Guri Haxhiu.

It Takes Two to Tango. Having a blast at the Homecoming dance, Joseph Wais and Valerie Theiner dance and sing to the beat of some of their favorite songs.

Eight Teammates. Supporting her team Chocolate Thunder Two in the Dodgeball tournament, Gabrielle Repetto whips a dodgeball across the Bishop Gym court in attempt to hit an opponent and knock him out of the game. Although the team didn't come in first, they enjoyed participating in the competition.

Zero Hour. Showing off their creative costumes, Dillon Krotz and Lucy Fuentes make plans to go Trick-or-Treating on Halloween night.

Sweet Sixteen

"I went with friends to see the play Xanadu for my sweet sixteen. It was amazing because I love watching theatre and walking around Chicago."

-Jennifer Keilhack

"For my sweet sixteen, I had a bunch of friends over and we all hung out. Then, we played some intense games of Twister."

-Devon Tuma

"On my 16th birthday, I wanted to party it up with Justin Huey."

-Jeremy Plane

Sixteen Candles. Along with the responsibilities of driving, turning 16 marks a defining moment in a teenager's life. "My friends threw me a surprise party. My friend from Iowa came and surprised me by jumping out of a box!" said Brittany Parisi.

Weekend Warriors

"On the weekends, I'm at the mall hanging with my best friends. One time, we were walking around and a mall cop chased us. We drove away so fast that I couldn't catch my breath."

-Cristina Mendez

"I usually call a few of my friends over to my house, and they always go straight to my refrigerator to eat everything. I always had to explain to my mom about how a week's worth of food disappeared."

-Ivan Pani

"I went to a friend's sleep over one time. We were jumping on her trampoline, and because I jumped too high, I flew right into her. Since then we couldn't stop laughing about that day."

-Tracey Sanchez

One Celebrity: Singing to the world, Dillion Krotz enjoys dancing to Hannah Montana. "I picked up a copy of her CD and recorded a video of myself rocking to 'The Best of Both Worlds,' when my mom walked in. She wanted a copy for her," said Krotz.

Watching The Clock

"Not a lot of my friends have curfews. It's really annoying when I have to leave, and my friends get to stay out. I always have fun, and I usually never want to leave."

-Alicia Murphy

"As long as I'm safe, my parents let me stay out pretty late. I remember one time when I went out paint-balling in winter with my friends and I fell through some ice. It was hilarious."

-Brandon Fischer

"Sometimes my parents are way too strict about my curfew, and sometimes they're nice. When I'm with my cousins or I'm really close to my house, I think I should be able to stay out later."

-Alejandro Noceda

Eight Hours of Fun. Checking the time, Heather Ditlevsen debates whether she will have enough time to go out with her friends. "I think that 11:30 pm is a perfect curfew for 15-16 year olds. Most places aren't even open much later any ways," said Ditlevsen.

At the Podium...

"For my Sophomore speech I talked about Albert Einstein. The best part was I found an amazing Albert Einstein action figure with his famous crazy looking hair. I wanted to buy one to add to my collection of Batman, Iron Man and Jesus."

-Zebadiah McNeil

"I did it all at the last minute on the day before I was supposed to give my speech. The only reason why I messed up was everyone in my class made me laugh at the beginning, but then afterwards everything went well."

-Sandra Sanchez

"Before I walked up to the front of the class, I tripped over my own feet. Then right after that I began to speak and I choked on on my words forgetting everything I said."

- Christopher Bicek

Five Days Afterwards. Studying Hugh Hefner for her speech, Samantha Netisingha finds information that is useful. "I picked him for the controversy related to his magazine, work, and social life. The worst part was I kept slurring my words," said Netisingha.

It is the most crucial point in a football game, decider or momentum turner. And, at this stage in the battle, these players continue to fight for victory.

It may not have been the most successful season for the football team, but with their hard work, they demonstrated what it meant to be a team every time they stepped onto the field. As many players noted, their final record, 2 and 7, did not reflect their determination for success.

Under the direction of Head Coach Chiodo, the team turned a new page with an emphasis on discipline, tradition, and pride. "My favorite part of coaching football is seeing the kids grow and mature into men," said Chiodo, who has been involved with football for 36 years.

One of the traditions cemented into the program was the "Game Time" chant. This chant served as a Friday tradition for years for the Wildcats. It occurs at the end of seventh hour in Senior Hall, where players and fans gather to show support and pride for their program.

The coach and captains brought a swagger to the team as they stepped on Memorial Field on Aug. 29, ready for their opponent, the Evanston Wildkits. The team shut out Evanston in a one-sided victory, the final score 12-0, the first shut out in five years for the team.

On Oct. 17, the Seniors walked under the lights for one last time to play West Aurora. Offensive Leader Alexander Pirela, with 174 rushing yards and four touchdowns, led the Wildcat attack. The offense was clicking on all cylinders including a touchdown pass from AJ Romanelli, plus 110 yards and a score from Michael Dylla. The defense quieted the explosive Blackhawk offense, and helped the team to a victory of 42-28.

-C. Hudmon and J. Rogers

1 New Year.

Coaching for the first time at West Chicago, Coach Chiodo has new ideas to bring to the team. "It was a great year with a great group of guys and we had a lot of fun," said Chiodo.

14 Carries.

Awaiting the cadence, Michael Dylla prepares to take the brunt of the force from the Redhawks' defense. "For Homecoming, we didn't win but it was great seeing all of the stands filled with our fans," said Dylla.

2nd and Goal. The Varsity Defense keeps Naperville Central on the other side of the first down marker. Nick Hawko, Greg Vodicka, Patrick Stremel, Jamie Campos, and Drew Bowker prepared to put up a wall to keep the Redhawks from scoring.

8 Interceptions.

Forcing Naperville Central's quarterback to take a different approach, Cornerback Alex Puetz intercepts the ball twice to keep the opposing team on edge. "Alex did a great job this year, leading our team in interceptions and sparking the rest of us to do better," said Michael Dylla.

18 Senior Starters. With a desire to win, Preston Hauptman, Dan Martin and Brian Skrzypczak lead their teammates onto Memorial Field. These players and the ten Varsity captains, Drew Bowker, Danny Calabrese, Michael Dylla, Nicholas Henke, Clark Hudmon, Alexander Pirela, Alexander Puetz, Patrick Stremel, Greg Vodicka, and Tyler Wrzesinski, acted as role models for younger players. "It is our job to be a leader on and off the field. Leadership and performance will help motivate the future of this football program," said Henke, who received all conference honors.

797 Yards. First year starter, AJ Romanelli, leads the attack with a quick release and elusive moves. Romanelli created a plan to pass to one of the many receivers including Nicholas Henke, who was the team's main receiver.

22 Cleats. The boys in the blue dig into the ground as linebackers Patrick Stremel and Greg Vodicka blow past the offensive line. Naperville Central was silenced when Stremel and Vodicka brought down their attempt at a run with strength and determination. "I had a pretty good season as linebacker and had a lot of fun," said Stremel.

5 Linemen. Teamwork keeps the Varsity team together while each individual position plays a major role in each play of every game. Kenneth LeVey cleared an alley giving Mike Dylla and Jonathan White the opportunity to extend the play. While Dan Martin knocked over a rushing defensive end, AJ Romanelli had an opportunity to complete a pass.

48 Minutes. The tone of the game is set by the kick off by David Lustro and is then continued by the rest of the team. All the players on the Varsity team came together to battle the Redhawks.

8 Pints of Blood, Sweat, and Tears. Taking the Redhawks down one at a time is the goal of Patrick Stremel as he tackles a Naperville Central player before the first down line.

During the 60 minutes of playing time in every game, the girls' soccer team stayed strong with their positive attitude and teamwork.

To any spectator, it was a normal season game. However, to the members of the girls' varsity soccer team, it was an opportunity to win another game and to move closer to regionals. The team won a number of games but rounded off the season with a record of 8-9-3.

The varsity players were dedicated to starting a new season with the variety of ages. The team included four freshmen, seven sophomores, two juniors, and six returning seniors. "This team is unique because of how well we play together, even with all the different age groups. No one thinks they're better than the other and there's not a lot of yelling at each other which is usually an issue in sports," said Meagan Radloff.

Captains Kristin Day and Melanie Fischer motivated the girls throughout the season, even through the tough conditioning at practices. One of the captains' goals was to improve the strength and skills of the team, which was achieved through many practices. "A normal practice consists of a lot of possession and shooting games. Once in a while we'll have practices with really intense conditioning to help build our speed. These are a challenge but they have really made a difference," said Chloe Ellis.

"The girls did outstanding...I couldn't be happier with the team and the season."

Coach Cesar Gomez hoped for a season of change and improvement and achieved what he set out for. "The girls did outstanding. We did not win all of our games but I am still proud because we improved as a team. The girls all got along together and had great sportsmanship, despite the losses. I couldn't be happier with the team and the season," said Gomez.

Megan Ogorzalek

1 Goal. During the game, Meagan Radloff prepares to score a goal, just like in practice. "We try to make practice intense. We work really hard on the simple things because if we do that, we will do better in games," said Radloff.

60 Minutes a Game. With her head in the game, Kari Granados skillfully dribbles the ball away from her competition. The team worked on skills such as dribbling and shooting in their many practices, led by coaches Cesar Gomez and Raul Vega.

100 Yards. While dribbling intensely down the field, Rachel Thomas avoids her opponents in order to score a goal. "In some practices we have really difficult conditioning, but it helps build my speed and endurance to run more. The practices are definitely worthwhile and have helped the team improve as a whole," said Thomas.

8 Passes. Receiving a pass from a teammate, Mary Rojas works to keep the ball in her possession. As a sophomore, Rojas said she enjoyed her time on the team this season, despite their losses. "We weren't the best this year, but we kept a good attitude and I bonded with all the girls," said Rojas.

19 Teammates. With the clock counting down during half-time, the girls get together in a team huddle where Captains Melanie Fischer and Kristin Day motivate the team. "Melanie and Kristin are really amazing captains. They are awesome athletes and they really want the team to excel, which makes the rest of us even more motivated to do well. I couldn't think of better captains. They've really improved the team with their upbeat spirit," said Chloe Ellis.

11 Girls on the Field. While blocking a St. Francis opponent, Anna Mercaldo keeps her eye on the ball. "Soccer requires a lot of concentration, hard work and coordination. We have pretty good eye-foot coordination," said Mercaldo.

1 Steal. Sprinting down the field, Stephanie Salinas expertly dribbles the ball towards the goal. "This year has definitely been a great experience for me. We didn't have the best record but we still won games and had a positive attitude which shows how strong of a team we are," said Salinas.

4 Cleats. Powering down the field toward the competition, Jessica Quinn tries to get the ball in Wildcat possession again. "The rush of adrenaline during a game is the best part of soccer. I love when the crowd is involved in the games, it gives us more energy on the field and I think we play better. Our coaches also help motivate us on the field during easy and tough games," said Quinn.

1 Team Player. As one of the two Captains, Kristin Day prepares to pass to a teammate. "The best part of soccer is having fun with all the girls. We're all really close and love working with and helping each other on and off the field," said Day.

4 Saves. Preventing a goal from scoring, Kelsey Myers kicks the ball down the field. "Being a goalie is intense because everyone depends on me to block the shot and there's a lot of pressure," said Myers.

Four levels of 79 soccer players dribble, run and finish as a team. Two hours a day and six days a week, they work together to have a better season than the last.

Each day of school consisted of a similar schedule for each student: waking up, getting to school, going to class while talking to friends, and counting down the minutes until 2:58 p.m. For the boys' soccer team the day did not end there. After school, they headed to the locker room, put on their muddy cleats, and went to the field for practice.

As soon as the nineteen athletic boys set their feet on the field, all the memories and worries of the day subsided. On the field, only one thing dominated: soccer.

On September 25th, the boys walked on the field ready to prove to Wheaton North that playing the West Chicago Wildcats wasn't going to be easy. The game went on into the night while the score remained at 2-2. Jose Varsity Coach Steve Brugmann is an extremely hard worker and is always getting us motivated."

Padilla and Aldair Vega scored the two goals that kept the game close. The game trailed into overtime and neither team scored. After 100 minutes of playing, both teams decided on a tie. Padilla added, "It did not feel like losing because we played really well."

Dedication and pride shined from every aspect of the team. "Varsity Coach Steve Brugmann is an extremely hard worker and is always getting us motivated," said Christopher Quintana.

The love of soccer was evident in all players, throughout all four levels. The Varsity team went on to win first place in the Jacob Invitational. Throughout the season, all the boys showed an unlimited amount of determination, dedication and most importantly, love of the game.

First 40 Days

Every year a new group of freshmen join the family of the soccer team; each brings his own talents. Carlos Martinez illustrated his skills at dribbling the ball across the field and passing.

Four Years of Dedication

All through high school, Forward Eric Selcke has participated in boys' soccer. At the Naperville North game, he demonstrated his determination by racing his opponent to take control of the ball for his team.

192 Feet Squared. Being a goalie, Marcel Carrasco deals with the pressure of covering a goal all by himself. Diving for a ball, Carrasco saved the attempted score by Naperville North. "Every time I save a shot I feel good because I am helping out my team," added Carrasco.

12 Hours a Week

All the practice pays off when the team steps onto the field. Midfield and forward Alejandro Alcantar head-butted the game ball using just one of the many ways to pass to another teammate. After weeks of practice, the team was able to perform and effectively demonstrate their efforts. Game time was the true test of all the hard work.

One Team, One Goal and One Huddle. The varsity team huddles up with Brugmann before the much anticipated game against Naperville North. All the boys remembered the journey through the season while Varsity Captains Oscar Tupia, Matt Rizzo, and Ismael Sanchez brought a strong sense of leadership to the team in order to create a family. All nineteen of the boys on varsity soccer illustrated the same excitement game after game, creating a sense of brotherhood that was inseparable.

One of 14. Freshmen are scarce among the soccer players making them even that more special. Martin Orozco put all his concentration and energy into making a successful kick to one of his teammates.

Two Seconds Too Late. Jumping over Naperville North's goalie, Forward Jose Padilla attempts to kick the ball into the goal but misses it by a matter of seconds. Unfortunately the game ended with a loss of three to zero. Padilla stated, "We do not like losing but we fight through all our games." The teamwork of the varsity soccer team exemplified the main attribute to the team.

Five Ways To Steal. As a Naperville North player dribbles the ball down the field, Giovanni Gomez sees a window of opportunity to steal. Gomez dashed to steal the ball, using as much speed as he possibly could, in order to gain possession. Being aggressive was a key component in becoming a good player and creating a successful team.

156 Beats Per Minute. Hearts beat with anticipation as midfielder Luis Ortega competes with fellow Naperville North player to be first to the ball, having only a few seconds.

158 Feet Scramble. Heading straight into the heart of the enemy, Aldair Vega travels toward the goal of Naperville North. As he dribbled, he thought of a game plan for a successful goal.

6 Short Miles

The runners cover this distance and more. Determined to be successful, they never stop running and striving for glory.

An off-season does not exist for the girls' cross country team. Their goal was to run 300 miles before the school year began, and three girls proved it could be done. Their overall record reflected their hard work in the summer, and they placed 6th in the DVC.

At the Lisle Invite, the team finished in 5th place out of 47 teams. Kelsey Sayner received second place overall. Leslhy Luna, Annette Sanchez, Raelene Struckmeyer and Lucy Fuentes also had great races. At the Crystal Lake South Invite, they placed 5th out of 18th and received their first trophy of 2008.

Coach Maxson said he was thrilled about their great start. "We have a lot of new runners with a ton of potential and I know we are going to have a good season," said Maxson.

Sayner contributed by winning medals in nearly every race in which she participated. Leading the team were Captains Emily Hahn, Annette Eichenberger and Tanya Starkey.

The varsity team consisted of the top seven runners out of the 21 girls on the team. "We have top seven shirts that everyone wants, so we have a little friendly competition between all of us," said Eichenberger.

-Joshua Meissner

Thousands of Strides. Pushing herself to cross the finish line, Lucy Fuentes remembers her training. "I consistently got a 22:05 for the three miles. At DVC I finally beat my time by getting a 21:30," said Fuentes. Times like these allowed her to finish the season in the top seven.

19:20 Minutes. After concerns from an injury, Annette Eichenberger proves nothing can hold her back. Eichenberger beat the school record for the three miles.

One Final Mile. Running her hardest Emily Tennant uses all her drive to continue in the race. She contributed to the winning year by beating her previous times.

Two Fast Feet. "Coach wants us to visualize the course and to take deep breaths to prepare," says Tanya Starkey.

First in Seven Years. Lining up for the race, Annette Eichenberger, Tanya Starkey, and Kelsey Sayner prepare themselves mentally. Sayner was the first all-conference runner in seven years.

Two Fast Feet. Trying to improve on his previous times, Nicholas Miller runs his fastest and hardest during every race.

Over 1,000 Strides. Running in the varying terrain, DJ Muzzy takes long strides to quicken his pace. In the end, Muzzy's quick feet helped reach his goal.

7 Minutes of Drive and Focus. While correcting his form, Gunnar Sterne charges forward. His urge to succeed ultimately helped him improve his time.

14 Athletes to Lead. After four years on the team, Brian Mateas receives the honor of being a varsity captain. "Being a captain for the var- team allowed me to help the guys become the best runners they possibly can be in the DVC," said Mateas, who helped lead them to a record-breaking season.

The miles these runners cover during the summer is only the beginning. They refuse to stop before they reach the finish line.

The sound of the crowd cheering loudly filled the 5K course in which the Boys' Cross Country team worked hard to place in fifth out of eight teams in the DVC. Training and determination led this team to success during the 2008 season. The boys' team placed second out of thirteen at the Bartlett High School invite early in the season proving that they were very capable of a winning season. "That was the highlight of the year. Winning second place was a great way to lift up the team after such a dragged out start to the season," said Nicholas Miller. The team expected to be better and faster runners than previous years. "The thing that impresses me the most about our team this year is the work ethic. In past years there have been a lot of guys that didn't take the season seriously. Fortunately, this year there isn't any goofing off and everybody is working hard to be the best they can be," said Captain Doug Mateas. Although cross country does not seem like a team sport, the boys would not have been as successful if they did not have each other to depend on for support. Although winning was not everything to these group of guys, the races they won motivated them to work harder to prepare for the next one.

Pacing through four laps, the Girls' Track and Field team shows great effort as their times hit below the six minute mark.

The spring season mimicked winter's cold weather, but no matter what forecast, the girls' track and field team committed throughout the indoor and outdoor season. Even though they had a less than stellar record, the girls gave their best efforts from shot-put to the two mile relay.

According to Co-Captain Brittany Smith, who has been in track for four years, team support was necessary for a strong team. The coaches kept their spirits high and the blood pumping. Coach Petmezas said he believed in only one way to motivate the team of over 40 girls. "I encouraged the girls to always run the race like it was their last," said Petmezas.

At the Rolling Meadows Invite on March 6th, Maggie Tikka, Brittany Smith, Tanya Starkey, and Annette Eichenberger accomplished a great feat in the Medley Relay. Consisting of the 400m, 800m, 1200m, and mile run, they placed 8th out of 14 teams in state.

At the final DVC meet, which took place at Wheaton Warrenville South on May 7th, the team took 8th place. Reflecting on her team's progress, Co-Captain Katrina Beedle worked hard with the girls and was pleased with the season results. "We placed fairly well this year and I am proud of what we have accomplished as a team," said Beedle.

One Perfect Hand-off Pounding her feet down the lane, Co-Captain Brittany Smith takes the baton from a fellow teammate with sleek precision. "I believe the most important part of being on the team is to be a supporter by keep a respectful attitude and working together as a team," said Smith.

3rd Place In State. Earning a time of 2:14.4 in an 800m race, Annette Eichenberger places 3rd. "She improved a lot and we're very proud of her," said teammate Emily Hahn.

S Running Lanes. With just seconds to go, Catherine Vance pushes past her opponent and clocks a great time. After working hard at practices, Vance's time hugely improved.

26 Foot Shot. While practicing each day, Jessica Freeman's efforts pay off when she reaches her personal best in shot put.

1-2 Step. Tension builds up as the girls shoot up from their stances at the sound of the gun. With strong strides, Connie Tan pulled away from her fellow opponents and finished the race with a great time.

A Five Finger Exchange. Sprinting down the track, Trent Amey passes the baton to Alex Pirela in the 1600 relay. The baton exchange from hand to hand was crucial to win the race.

52 Muscles. Using 52 muscles in his legs, Matt Bannon clears a five foot bar. As he landed, Bannon beat his personal record.

Clearing Ten Feet. Using a 12 foot long pole, Jimmy Gelhaar vaults over the ten foot bar at Plainfield East. Rainy weather didn't stop Gelhaar from doing his best.

1 Baton. Taking off from the blocks, Nick Hawko accelerates to maximum speed in the four-by-two race. The team took first place in the race, as well as the meet.

Three Meets Late. Joining the team three competitions late in the season, Eder Gonzalez takes a varsity position by striving for his best at each competition. Gonzalez showed his coaches that he was top of the line material for the team by showing up to every practice and finishing the season as strongly as he went into it.

The boys' track and field team can run 1600 meters, or one mile, in an average time of five minutes and fifty-five seconds.

As the starting gun echoed in the distance, the runners leaped into motion. Their swift running and successful field events placed them in the lead against Plainfield East in the first invite of the season. Cold weather and snow did not affect the spirit of the team as they walked away from the meet with winning records. "Training at practice helps improve our overall performance at invites and competitions. By the end of the year, I plan to throw twenty-five feet in shot," said Matthew Kaczmarczyk.

The track members not only relied on their skills, but they also utilized the coach's contributions as well. Using Mr. McLeland's coaching and positive feedback, Derrik Pietrobon took pride in his favorite sport. Pietrobon and the rest of his teammates understood the importance of a cohesive team and worked hard to keep unity. "The track team is like a flower. The coach is the middle part and all the team members are like the feathery outside parts. When we work together, we make a beautiful, hardworking plant," said Pietrobon. The events during competitions included pole vaulting, distance running, sprinting, shot put, discus, and jumping. At the end of the season, the track and field team finished with a record of 3-15.

Victories

With each point scored and every match won, the girls who deliver the power behind each serve made every move count.

27 rackets flew through the air as the girls' tennis team prepared at each practice. Their mental and physical preparation helped them to achieve their final 7-15-2 record for the year.

From the beginning to the end of the season, the team made great improvements, with their volleying and overall attitude. "We've improved with our mind game. We go into each match with a positive attitude and try our hardest until the end," said Captain Leigh Martino. One of the team's goals was to make it to sectionals, which Rebecca Cisowski, Jamie Antczak, Madeline Urban, Hannah Taylor, Dana Burgess and Martino accomplished.

Along with all of the training the girls went through, Coach Moeaki helped them by encouraging them to try their hardest. He also gave motivational speeches before, during, and after their matches.

Overall, each of the girls reached her personal goal. At two matches in particular, the team did extremely well. At the Glenbard North Quad, the first doubles, Cisowski and Martino, took home second place. At the Glenbard East Quad, the entire team placed first out of four teams.

After making their coach and captains proud, the girls' tennis team proved to be true competitors.

8 Months of Rest

After taking a three month break from tennis, Dana Burgess hit the courts hard with her team to train for their upcoming season. "Over break, I only trained once with my brother for 10 minutes. I think it helped me because if I practice on my time off, I start to over think my technique," said Burgess.

5 Days a Week. Over summer, Captain Leigh Martino trains at the gym, with her travel team, and with a private instructor to keep her skills up to par.

4 Rackets. Since age four, Madeline Urban's racket has been attached to her palm. "Tennis is second nature to me since I've been playing so long," said Urban.

8 Wins. With each of her well-earned wins, Jamie Roman becomes more and more of a threat to each of her DVC opponents.

5 Years of Training. Since eighth grade, Rebecca Cisowski has commanded attention from her team and opponents. "I'm one of the most motivated people on the team. I keep my head in the game," said Cisowski.

Two Prepared Feet. Standing in the ready position, Jason Foreman is set to run to the net. "Before a match, I warmed up and smelled my awful smelling shoes before I put them on," said Foreman.

40-Love. Following through over his shoulder, Doubles Player Captain Jozef Pavnica returns the ball to make the score forty to zero.

One More Ace. Throwing up the ball for a serve, Second Doubles Player Preston Hauptman prepares to smash down the ball and ace his opponent yet again.

One Cross-Court Hit. Shifting his weight back to hit the ball, First Singles Player Captain Jose Padilla plans to hit it cross-court with a powerful backhand.

One Forehand. With perfect form, Third Doubles Player Michael Russo whacks the ball back to his opponent. "I have played tennis for a few years and have tried both singles and doubles, but I feel that I am better at playing doubles than singles, so I played third doubles this year with Karan Panchal," said Russo.

Combined with hard work and intense daily practices, the boys' tennis team gave 100 percent to prepare for sectionals.

Although the boys' tennis season started a month and a half before their first match, they practiced long and hard almost every day to warm up for their opponents. The team's season consisted of both wins and losses, but the team never gave up hope and always held their heads high after a loss. Even with a record of 3-9, the boys felt victorious and successful. Along with Coach Moeaki, Varsity Captains Jozef Pavnica and

Jose Padilla pushed the boys to practice long and play hard. "Before a match, I tell the players to go play their best and to not worry about what their opponent is doing. At the end of the match I want them to walk off the court saying, 'I gave 100 percent.' If they try their best and play hard, then I'm happy," said Moeaki.

Whether they played singles or doubles, the boys always motivated each other both on and off the court. As they split up to go to their different matches, the singles players calmed their nerves while the doubles encouraged and motivated their partners. "I played doubles because Jozef and I did amazing in a summer season together and we play well together. Also, the first singles players in DVC are ridiculous; I got rocked last year at first singles," said First Doubles Player Jason Foreman.

It's the distance these swimmers cover on each of the 95 days of their season. These six miles represent their hard work.

The girls' swim team competed with other schools in 17 swim meets, earning a final record of 8-9 in the DVC. Shawn Staton, a Varsity swimmer, was a part of the swim team for two years. "I think the best part about being on the team is being able to experience all the different coaches. You have the whole team supporting you with your decisions and swims. It's like the girls are your second family," Staton said.

Breaking three records, the girls were on their way to state by the second month of the season. Kelly Dunn broke three of the school's records including a 13-year old, 500 meter freestyle record which was broken on October 7th. The final score was 174-104.

"It feels really cool to have broken a thirteen year old record because I've been trying to get that record since last year, and it's nice to have accomplished another goal," said Dunn.

The girls' swim team, at both Varsity and Junior Varsity levels, consisted of 16 girls. The Wildcats practiced every morning and afternoon, in the pool. The head coach, Parry, set the standards and expectations for every practice: academics first, practice second. "The girls work extremely hard everyday. They just make practices and coaching a lot of fun," Parry said.

100 Coaching Tips. Coach Parry motivates state swimmer Kelly Dunn by joking and offering her constructive criticism about her swim techniques and habits.

100 Breaststroke. Competing in the 100 meter breaststroke, Caitlin MacDonald focuses on both hands touching the end wall in order for her to not be disqualified.

1 1/2 Pike Dive. Finishing her first dive of the season, Kelli Lyne practices in the pool for her dive in the next home competition.

200 Breaststroke. Being on the varsity team for the second year in a row, Shawn Staton, is competing in her favorite event, the 200 meter breaststroke. "I love breaststroke! It's beyond my favorite," Staton said.

One Creed. Splashing down the lane, Anthony Nolzco lives up to the team creed of giving his best effort. "As a team, our hard work paid off and the season definitely showed that," said Nolzco.

300 Kicks. Improving in every race, Neil Hummer demonstrates flawless poise in the water. The Butterfly Stroke was no easy task, but he ended the race strong.

100 Meters Left. Under great time, Rodney Nasir perfects the Breast Stroke. "I've been on the team all four years, and I've never regretted a second of it," said Nasir.

One Win. Making the race look easy, Tyler Murphy glides through the water effortlessly. "Making 4th place at DVC made this season memorable," said Murphy.

Two Co-Captains. Leading the team with Co-Captain Federico Garcia, Co-Captain David Peace gives 100% everytime he's in the water. Their focus and dedication truly benefited the team. "What I have learned from my four years on the team is if you want success, work hard for it, and you only failed if you never tried," said Peace.

For a few months, a swimmer focuses on one task only, getting in the water and performing with excellence.

The average student usually rolls out of bed at 6:15 a.m. For swimmers, the school day began by diving into the pool at 5:30 in the morning. There, they propelled down the lanes until the two mile warm-up was completed. "We swam about 4,000 meters every morning along with weight training. After school, we ran through strokes and worked on our techniques," said Co-Captain David Peace.

The season started with wins at St. Francis and the Bartlett Invite. The boys supported each other throughout the season. "The team was great. I really enjoyed being a part of it," said Thomas Hahs.

Meets were intense but the pressure never took over the swimmers' focus. At the Leyden Invite, Steven Balmer, Dillon Hall, Anthony Nolzco, and Neil Hummer took on the relay race. Suspense soared as Balmer and his competitor were neck and neck. Balmer won by 3 inches, ending with a close score of 93 to 92 points. At the DVC Conference the team finished 4th. With high expectations, they were not disappointed.

Coach Parry showed true leadership during his second year as their coach, and he often spoke of how proud he was. "The season went well. They worked hard to get better and it paid off in a big way," said Parry.

With a desire to win, the golfers return to the green to improve their skills and build new friendships.

Seven varsity players, three more than last year, lugged thirty balls and fourteen clubs onto the green for practice. As the practice began, they talked about their last meet and what exactly went wrong. Times like this were common among the girls' golf team. "The season went well. We had a lot of improvement this year," said Co-Captain Jessica Bedard.

Practices were held at the St. Andrews Country Club. Coach Cain and the two Co-Captains, Bedard and Kimberly Kleczewski, discussed with the girls how they could improve their playing, while still having fun. Even with a record of 1-14, both captains were proud of their team's hard work. Many of the players surpassed their own personal goals. "I definitely had a personal goal broken. I made it to sectionals this year and it was a great experience. Also, I know a few of the other girls had some personal bests this year too," added Kleczewski.

The girls agreed, it wasn't the mini golf games that etched themselves into each teammate's memories. The night games, stumbling in the dark by the light of a thousand glow sticks and the sunburn from practice and forgotten sun block, were the things that made all the other moments worth it. Those moments were the real trophies.

104 Shots Later.

With a player from Wheaton Warrenville South, Aubrie Sole takes a break on the rough. Even though the sport itself was meant to be competitive, Sole and the rest of her team always prided themselves for being friendly with all of the players from other schools.

5 Meets In All. Even with a busy schedule, Nadia Pelletier does her best to on the fairway. Pelletier played to her best for every meet that she attended.

5:30 Wake Up Call.

Even with early practices, the girls are on time. While it wasn't the most favorable job, it was up to Jessica Bedard to wake up Coach Cain.

55 Degrees. Despite the pouring rain, Karlle Becker continues to do well on the green even though the weather was bad.

Striding Solo. In the DVC meet, Kimberly Kleczewski walks up to the green with her Wheaton North opponents. As the only girl from We-Go to ever go to sectionals, Kleczewski proudly represented her school.

Three Year Varsity

Playing on varsity for his third year, Ryan Crawford lines the ball for his putt. As a co-captain, Crawford tried to be an example, demonstrating leadership during the season.

1 Swing. Following through on his swing, Nickolas Shurba watches the ball land for his next shot, hoping it leads him to a low average.

Consistent 40's. Getting a steady average in the mid-forties for each nine-hole game, Zachary Pazar trods on the rough towards the fairway.

76 Strokes. Hitting the ball with perfect form, Blair Skarin proves he deserves to go past sectionals. Of the team, Skarin had the lowest average at regionals.

4015 Days. After playing golf for over eleven years, it is no wonder as to why Steven Romanelli is a co-captain. With an average of 40.62 strokes, the lowest average of the team, Romanelli composed himself every time he stepped onto the green. "Romanelli was always able to handle the pressure well," added Coach Lasky.

Hitting this average, per nine-hole game, helps the boys' golf team make it to sectionals.

As the boys' golf team stepped onto the fairway, Coach Lasky and Coach Kempski spoke of how well their team played this season. For the first time in over twenty-five years, the team made it past regionals. "I think the one thing that makes me the most proud of this season was having my whole team advance to sectionals. That hasn't been done for as long as records show," said Lasky.

The range of students that played for the team made the season very motivating. "This year, the talent was more spread out from seniors to freshmen, instead of having just the juniors and seniors hold the biggest role," said Co-Captain Ryan Crawford. With a team consisting of six seniors, one junior, four sophomores, and eleven freshmen, many people were concerned that the team would not thrive. However, the team did exceedingly well.

Making it past regionals and into sectionals, the ten varsity players showed that they had what it took to compete in the DVC. "There was some good competition. A lot of kids advanced to regionals from our conference, showing that we were up against some of the top golfers in the area," added Co-Captain Steven Romanelli.

When playing multiple defenses, the Ladycats throw off the other team and shut down their opponents' offense.

As fourteen girls ventured onto the court, basketball season began with a victory. In the first game, the varsity team came out hard to beat Nazareth Academy with a final score of 50-42. Having a win under their belt, the girls continued to work hard in practices and during games to raise their intensity.

With only three seniors on the team, the girls had little varsity experience. Juniors, Sophomores and Freshmen had to step up their game to compete at such a high level. Team captains, Christine Rovtar, Lindsey Johnston, Margaret Polacek and Jessica Baidis, worked together to push the team through every game throughout the season "Being a captain takes a lot of work. You have to be ready every practice and game. Also, as a leader, you have to be able to help out your teammates at all times," said Rovtar.

Starting the season off "It's important to bond as a team off the court so that on the court we can work together as a team and not as five individual players."

well, it came time for the girls to play within the DVC. Glenbard East was first up. The girls came out hard and beat them with a score of 57-45, for the first DVC win. Wheaton North played a powerful game that proved to be an exciting match with a close score of 55-53. Going back and forth the entire game, it came down to the final seconds with only three seconds left on the clock, Elizabeth Reyes got a steal and looked right ahead to Elizabeth Bruce for a wide open lay-up to win the game. "We all made contributions to win that game," said Bruce.

Team bonding was a must every Saturday, when the team had breakfast and talked about what they wanted to accomplish for the game. "It's important to bond as a team off the court so that on the court we can work together as a team and not as five individual players," said Baidis.

24 Years of Experience. With tons of energy and knowledge, Head Coach Wallner leads her team to a regional victory. "It felt a lot like an NBA game, lots of time-outs and strategy at the end of the game. It ended up being the team that executed the best won," said Wallner.

4 Quarters. In her last home game, Christine Rovtar hustles up and down the floor the entire game. "It was hard for me to think about how I was never going to play on this court again," said Rovtar.

1 Fast Break. After a steal, Katelyn Staiton pushes the ball up the court for a fast break. "Running a fast break is exciting. It's an adrenaline rush. You're running as fast as you can trying to score before the other team can catch up to you," said Staiton.

10 Free Throws a Game. After taking the ball strong to the basket, Emily Paschke takes the first of her two free throws. "Free throws are so important in a close game situation and every shot counts. Every time I stepped up to the free throw line, I tried to block everything else going on out and focus on making my shot," said Paschke.

1-2-3 Intensity. The girls gather in a circle creating rhythmic beats on the ground to get one another pumped for each game. Words of encouragement from each player brought the game to life when it was time to play. "The inspirational words before games really allowed me to get my head into the game. It also allowed me to be more focused on the game," said Madeline Warkins. After words of encouragement were shared, the girls shouted their "1-2-3 intensity" cheer. Following the cheer, the girls ran to the sidelines for more words from their coach and were then ready for the game to begin.

15 Drives To The Basket
After working hard to gain position, Jessica Baidis takes the ball strong to the basket. "Every time I earned good position, I did my best to take it strong to the basket and make a good post move," said Baidis.

Ten Rebounds. Concentrating on getting a good position for a rebound, Elizabeth Bruce is always the first to box out and go to the ball. "Boxing out is really important. Everyone has to box out, not just one person. I really made an effort to improve that part of my game," said Bruce.

Two Free Throws. As warm-ups come to an end, Claire Monroe concentrates as she takes two more practice free throws. Making free throws can be the difference maker in the game. "You have to make the other team pay for their mistake of fouling you," said Monroe. Throughout the season, Monroe stepped up and made some key free throws.

One Protected Pass. On Senior Night, Margaret Polacek works to find an open teammate. "Senior night was an exciting night but it was also sad knowing I will never play on this court again," said Polacek.

Four Assists. Being a freshman on varsity, Elizabeth Reyes scans the court to pass the ball off. "I loved playing with the upperclassmen" said Reyes.

With 25 games of intricate plays and effective offenses, the team proves to be worthy of recognition in the DVC.

After a disappointing season in 2008, the Boys' Basketball team emerged more determined than ever before. According to the Daily Herald, "the West Chicago Boys' Basketball team, down on its luck the past several seasons, is beginning to show signs of a team that is ready to contend."

This season truly marked a change for the Wildcats. In a non-conference game against Wheaton Academy, the boys were trailing by double digits at the end of the first half. A steal and a shot by Guard Chad Driscoll caused an intensity in the second half that allowed the team to pull ahead to beat their rivals 49-46.

As a younger team, with three starting juniors, the boys succeeded with multiple victories. With the younger players it created a "well rounded team as well as increased the talent level," said Coach Kevin Gimre. However, all of the 13 players contributed to

"There was a fire in all of us and that was the determination to win" the triumphs of the season.

During this season, the improvements stemmed from practice, teamwork, and confidence. The level of play increased and led to wins against major competitors. With ten hours of practice a week, the team "stayed focused and prepared," said Forward Nicholas Henke, who contributed to the team's success.

"There was a fire in all of us and that was the determination to win," said Driscoll. Leading the team for his second year as captain along with Anthony Quarto and Henke, Driscoll witnessed the growth of the team.

With the effort shown, the team fought in every game and proved they could compete in the DVC. "It takes all five people to win," said Quarto. That teamwork guided the group to a successful season.

5 Timeouts.

In the late third quarter, Coach Gimre pulls his team aside to discuss their options. "The level of play was exciting to watch," said Gimre. After the timeout, the team continued to battle against WWS.

8 Opponents.

Fighting against the defenders' trap defense, Ryan Karg uses his strength to reach towards the ball. As a center, remaining strong under pressure was key to breaking press defenses and being successful.

90 Feet. Sprinting past defenders, Anthony Quarto beats his opponent down the floor. With speed unmatched by other players, Quarto was able to push the ball up the floor and hustle back on defense before anyone else. His leadership and skill on the court were a great asset to the success of the team.

15 Foot Jumpshots.

A wide open shot and two points later, Elijah Asani demonstrates his talent and quickness on the floor. His unfailing effort and constant hustle allowed the team to overcome many competitors. His fourth year in the program prepared Asani to help lead the team, "I enjoyed being part of a team that worked so well together," said Asani.

12 Offenses

32 Minutes. Before beginning a game filled with intensity, the basketball team prepares to face their opponents, Wheaton Warrenville South. "We had the mindset that we can win every single game we play. Our team is for real and we can compete with the top on the DVC and just seeing our team's potential helped us understand what we needed to win. Our seniors were awesome and they helped very much in the team's success," said Forward Charles Jacques.

3 Point Shot. Constantly shooting from the outside, Forward Charles Jacques aids the team as one of the five starters. Continuing the offense play, the team's patience and accuracy rewarded them with an open look for a basket.

8 Minutes. Running onto the court to his awaiting teammates, Alex Robbins prepares for the battle between West Chicago and Wheaton Warrenville South. Before every game, home and away, the support and cheering from the fans started every first quarter with intensity.

6 Men Deep. Every player on the bench remains focused on the game because at any moment a new player could enter the game. "What motivates me to improve is the fact that I'm competing everyday in practice for playing time, just like everybody else," said Jeff Robinson. Pushing each other in every practice kept the team ready to play.

10 Seconds. Racing against the clock to cross half court, Chad Driscoll pushes the ball up for a fast break. Looking for the open player determined whether or not the team will score.

2 Free throws. With poise and concentration Jeff Robinson begins to take his first foul shot, a crucial moment to gain two more points in the game.

With all of the practice balls flying everywhere, the only ones that matter in the end are the three game balls that allow for more points on the board.

Fourteen hard working volleyball players pushed through the pain of every practice to prepare themselves for every game. The girls practiced six days a week for two hours a day. Each Wednesday, the team scrimmaged the coaches adding extra time to each practice. Coach Hasty pushed the girls to improve on the previous season. They showed significant improvement over last year's season by earning a final record of 5-31.

Setter Kelli Grimm and Back Row Player Elizabeth Gola worked together as captains to push the girls through every up and down of the season. "As a captain I have to motivate myself as well as others," said Grimm.

The girls came out strong against Glenbard North. They won their first game and then lost the next. The third game was a fight, down by nine points the girls fought back winning 25-23 for their first DVC victory. "I try to motivate the girls through hard work and physical and mental challenges," said Hasty.

The team worked hard both on and off the court to better themselves and the community. The season brought a new challenge to the team, "Volley for the Cure." The team raised $2,500 for the Susan G. Komen foundation, a breast cancer organization. 471 pink T-shirts were sold to raise the money, that were sold for $10 each, "Coach Hasty knows that this issue affects every woman, and it's a disease we all work to defeat," said Connie Tan. During the game the girls wore pink jerseys and pink socks.

1 Ace. A freshman on varsity, Julia Conard, prepares to serve the ball over the net to Naperville Central. Her consistent effort and dedicated personality made her a sure leader on the court; she proved to be a force to be reckoned with.

30 Minutes a Game. All around player, Quin Gable is in position to pass the ball to a setter, "I try to remember to keep my shoulders out every time I pass the ball and hope it is good," said Gable. With that in mind, Gable improved her back row play.

5 Digs. As a defensive specialist, Connie Tan hustles all over the court to dig up every ball she can. "Being a backrow player is hard work. I have to get to my line and be ready for anything to come my way," said Tan, who stepped up to every challenge thrown at her and persisted.

6 Feet. Standing at the attack line, Middle Hitter Emily Paschke jumps high above the ground and slams the ball down for a kill against Naperville Central. "Being tall has its advantages in volleyball. You have to be able to block your opponent's hits and be ready for anything," said Paschke. Her ability to smack the ball down led to many points scored by the Wildcats.

14 Teammates. As game time approaches, Coach Hasty talks to the girls about what is expected for the match. Not only did Hasty tell them her expectations, but she tried preparing them for their future, "I want the girls to know that they are better people than when the season started," said Hasty. With that in mind the girls continually pushed themselves to their limits in both games and in practices. With the help from Coach Hasty, they worked on building their futures together as a team.

17 Sets. Being on a varsity team is never easy, especially as a freshman, but it proved to be nothing Payton Bayless couldn't handle. "When I have a good pass to me I focus on trying to give the hitter a great set," said Bayless.

1 Sisterhood. Ready for the game to begin, starter, Ashley Dunn runs out to shake the other team's hands and wish them good luck. "It's always inspiring to know that my teammates are there cheering me on throughout the game," said Dunn. Calling themselves a "sisterhood" was a true statement. Every player stuck together for all the ups and downs of the season.

4 Skills Per Game. For her first year on varsity, Kathy Fletcher has improved tremendously throughout the year, "I worked really hard in the off season to step up my game and prepare myself by playing club and going to all the summer camps our school provides for us," said Fletcher. Her hard work and dedication paid off, and she became a bright spot for the future.

8 Serves Per Game. Captain Kelli Grimm offers a perfect toss for a serve. "Serving is fun. It takes a lot of concentration," said Grimm. With that example, Kelli Grimm always was able to serve the ball over the net.

20 Passes. Waiting for anything, Katelyn Staiton gets low to react to the ball. "My mind focuses on getting the ball up as well as making it easier for the setter to handle," said Staiton.

In these displays of intensity and sportsmanship, the volleyball players bump, set, and spike their way to victory.

During the first round of conference play, the boys' volleyball team played West Aurora's varsity team. The match could only be described as a long and exciting match. The boys were down until the 20th point when Leo Bartyzel made a clutch kill. The boys took a normal 25 point game, all the way to a 33-31 win. In the second game the boys crushed the Blackhawks 25-16. It was the first DVC win for the team. "The match against West Aurora was one of my favorites from the season. Not only did we win the match, but it was the first time that we played as a team," said Alex Almaraz.

With over 25 matches, the boys' volleyball program showed significant improvement over the season. Having only three returning varsity players, Ryan Krage, Steven Romanelli, and Danny Calabrese, the team had to give it their all. The young team worked harder at the varsity level with their matching Wildcat jerseys, and practiced six days a week for over two hours. Two year varsity setter Romanelli and all conference libero Krage worked together to push the team to excel and perform in the weekly matches. "We work to push the guys to the limit, but at the same time still have fun," said Krage.

The team gained experience and the knowledge of what a varsity team needed. Before every match Coach Hasty always told her program, "If we sweep the team, steak dinners for everyone!" Along with the steak dinners, the team also has three team dinners throughout the season for team bonding. "Practice, eat food, and hang out with the teammates, it's a great combination," said Anthony Hasbun. Overall the team grew in many ways. They grew mentally in matches, physically with power, and worked together with their teammates.

- Quin Gable

15 Years as a Coach. During her 15th season, Coach Kris Hasty shows her players, in a time out, where and how they should look in a match. Before a match she went over what the team needed to do in order to add a victory to the record.

One Hand Pass.

As a first year varsity player, Alex Almaraz dives for a ball hit by Naperville Central and tries to pancake it up to save the ball. "Unfortunately that day I forgot to wear knee pads to the match. But im glad I got I got the ball up," said Almaraz.

One Libero in a Different Colored Shirt.

Four Bounces.

While bouncing the ball four times before his serve, Blaine Flanagan looks over to the coach to see the position to which he should serve. "I'm really superstitious, so I have to have the same serving routine. I always bounce the ball four times, then hit it on the floor, and finally spin it in my hand. It sets me up for a perfect jump serve," said Flanagan.

29 Matches

Eleven Players Battling for a Victory. During a time out called by Coach Hasty, Captains Ryan Krage and Steven Romanelli try to motivate the team by saying what is needed to have a victory. "Every time-out Steve and Ryan just say random stuff to get us mad right before we play. It really helps me kill the ball the next time that I am set," said Leo Bartyzel. Hasty also told the boys what positions are open to tip, and what hits the players should run. "The team huddle is the best place to be in a game point situation because it gives Hasty the opportunity to tell us what we need to do to win the match," said Mark Dean.

Two Positions. An all conference player, Ryan Krage plays the outside position for the first time in his high school career. "It was such a change for me to hit in a game. I actually jumped, blocked, and tipped in a match. It was awesome," said Krage.

45 Degree Angle. While staying low, Leo Bartyzel passes the ball to setter Steven Romanelli, out of the middle back position. Bartyzel not only played the middle back position, but he also was a main outside hitter for the varsity team. "During practice not only do I have to practice hitting from the outside position, but I also have to pass backrow," said Bartyzel.

Six Players on the Court at a Time. On the bench cheering for their teammates Danny Calabrese, Daniel Clarke, Anthony Hasbun, and Gordo Tirado, wait for a rotation where they can go into the match. "Whenever I am on the bench I do my best to cheer on my teammates, and when I go in, I try to only think positive thoughts," said Hasbun.

Five Middle Hits. A two year varsity middle hitter, Danny Calabrese calls out the hitters of the opposing team, Naperville Central. "I like hitting in the middle position because I get to block the other teams' hits," said Calabrese.

8 Tips. After getting set a quick ball in the middle of the net, Daniel Clarke tricks Naperville Central and tips over the middle of the block. "I don't like tipping, but it really messes up the other team's defense," said Clarke.

Team to Beat

After hitting, catching, pitching, and throwing the softball for three hours a day, it's no wonder why the Varsity softball team proved to be the team to beat.

Fourteen girls took the softball field with a new Head Coach, Emily Johnson, and wanted to prove that they were capable of beating their opponents. Their hard work from intense daily practices brought many victories, which led to high spirits and a season record of 27-6.

Although the team's season included both wins and losses, the girls proved that they were still the best by staying ranked at number one in the DVC for more than half of the season, and by making it to regionals for the second year in a row. "My goal for the season was for everyone on the team to learn something about themselves. I think we accomplished that. We ended the season putting up a fight, and I am confident that next season will be even more successful," said Coach Johnson.

"My goal for the season was for everyone on the team to learn something about themselves."

The players tried to be level headed and tried not to think about the game too much so that when it came to winning or losing, they were still playing for the love of the game, even when the pressure was high. "We came into the season with a breath of fresh air.

A lot was expected out of us, and we played to our fullest potential. I am so proud to say that I got to play with these girls. Everyone was so driven. It was inspirational. We learned a lot about our game and ourselves. I could not have dreamed of a better team to play with," said Courtney Macko.

After the regular season ended, the girls continued on to regional play. In the first game the girls defeated their opponents and went on to the regional championship game. Although they lost against Bartlett High School, the girls had a worthwhile and successful season.

-Katelyn Casey and Quin Gable

3 Up, 3 Down.

While pitching a strike past a fearful opponent, Mary Connolly attempts to pitch a perfect game. "Pitching can be really stressful at times, but not when you have a defense that gives you confidence," said Connolly.

1 Team.

Before the Naperville Central game, the team motivates each other by coming together in a huddle and yelling a cheer. "Screaming 'Fire It Up' at each other before the game starts is a great way to get your blood pumping," said Allyson Taddeucci.

1 Sprint To First. Batting second in the lineup against Naperville Central, Elizabeth Bruce makes it to first base, where Coach Johnson congratulates her for success. It was Coach Johnson's first year coaching the softball team at Gail George Field. Unfortunately the girls lost to the Redhawks 0-1.

6 Feet.

During her second time up to bat, Christine Rovtar looks over her left shoulder to the third base coach, who is giving her hitting signs. She then proceeded to hit a triple down the first base line. "Getting a good hit is like nothing else. As soon as your bat hits the ball, you know what's up. It's the best feeling in the world knowing that you helped your team," said Rovtar.

Menacing Looks. As the Naperville Central softball team warms up on the field, Baron, Taylor Kutilek, Courtney Macko, Danielle McAvoy, Jamie Dash, Taylor Dash, Jessica Wood and Elizabeth Bruce take a knee at the third base foul line to intimidate the players by watching them closely. "It's really fun to see how the teams react when we watch them warm up. We do this before every game to find out what strengths and weaknesses each of the players has so that we can strategize and plan out the best way to win. After the stake out, we always do our "Fire Up" cheer," said Macko.

1 Intimidating Helmet. After receiving a pitching call from her coach, Kaity Olson relays the sign to the returning pitcher, Mary Connolly. "I love catching for Mary because it's a great feeling when she strikes another player out," said Olson.

1 Freshman. As the only freshman on the Varsity softball team, Jessica Wood practices hard before the game against Naperville Central, to prove she belongs. "At first I was intimidated by the older girls but as the season went on, the girls became like sisters to me," said Wood. With great motivation, and a true love of softball, Wood was able to accomplish the goal of being the leadoff hitter.

7 Warmups. Before every inning on the field, Jamie Dash and Danielle McAvoy throw the ball to get themselves ready for the unexpected. "Before every game I listen to my iPod. I also like to imagine the other team's reactions when I come up to bat. My favorite moment from the season was when the Glenbard North girls had their heads in their arms when we beat them," said Dash.

1 Slap. With a running start for a slap, Molly Monroe shoots the ball past the third baseman on the opposing team. "Since I bat left handed, it's easier for me to get a running start to first on a slap, rather than on the right," said Monroe.

2 Quick Legs. Running in to field a ball, Taylor Kutilek prepares to throw the runner out at second. "Having to run for a ball is my favorite part of the game. I love running," said Kutilek.

Stepping onto the diamond, the team played as one unit. With the rise of success and the fall of defeat, they supported each other throughout the year.

As the new baseball team stepped onto the field, each player had his own idea of what the season would be like. Some hoped for a successful team season, while others pursued personal bests. All in all, the team had the common interest of trying to bring in as many wins as possible.

With an entirely new line up, the team worked through injuries and setbacks. Starting pitcher Jordan Long demonstrated his unique talents as he took the mound for the first time on varsity.

Also new among the team was Head Coach McCarthy, who helped the team stride toward numerous victories. "I enjoyed coaching because I liked helping the team grow into men," added McCarthy.

With a predominantly senior roster, the team wanted "There are a lot of memories that I made that I will keep with me forever."

to end their year playing with a bang. Strong hitters, such as Ethan Burau and Tyler Christ, stepped up to the plate, each with the desire to strike the ball over the fence. Christ, who had broke the batting average with a .460 average, also won All Conference as a result of his consistent batting and acrobatic catches in centerfield. "It was fantastic to play with everyone. There are a lot of memories that I made that I'll keep with me forever," said Christ.

While the season ended with a record of 12-14-1, the team walked off the field with pride. The younger players on the team were able to gain the experience necessary for their future seasons, while the graduating players had the opportunity to make their mark at the school.

-Courtney Nesemeier
and Amanda Huey

35 Years. Returning after a break from coaching, Coach McCarthy looks over his team. "They had to improve their mental approach to the game and not get down when things didn't go as planned," said McCarthy.

1 Backbone of Defense. Starting off the season with a homerun, Kevin Peterson scares his Glenbard East opponents and excites his team. As a junior, Peterson was the first baseman for the varsity team, and one of the most active players on the team.

4 Possible Baselines. Leading off on the baseline between first and second, Alex Robbins attempts to steal second base. Starting on varsity as a junior, Robbins was a consistent hitter and also supported the pitcher with a solid defense at second base. Robbins also pitched for varsity when the team needed him.

9 Homeruns. Stepping up to the plate, Tyler Christ becomes determined to crush the ball as far as possible to tack on another homerun for his team. Throughout the season, Christ hit the highest number of homeruns which made him an all-conference player. "I had a lot of fun in my last season here and that helped me to play my game and knockout some homeruns to help the team," said Christ.

12 Victory Huddles. After a 9-3 victory against Glenbard North, the Varsity team meets by the dugout for a winning huddle. Throughout the season, the boys had 12 similar huddles where they discussed what went well in the game and what they still needed to improve on. In the huddle, the team was able to grow as a whole. "Whenever anyone was hurt or couldn't play, another person stepped up so that the team could get the win," said Johnny Wehr.

1st to 2nd. As Johnny Wehr watches the ball fly towards him, he attempts to lay down a sacrifice bunt to advance the base runners. Despite not being an everyday starter, Wehr brought intensity to the dugout and always had a positive attitude.

2 Dirty Uniforms. Sliding headfirst into third base, Rhett Gunderson scores a triple and brings in a total of 17 RBI's for the season. Each game, Gunderson challenged himself to hit for a cycle, a collaboration of a single, double, triple, and home-run. Gunderson never let anybody get in the way of his goal. "Hard work and dedication equals perfection. You gotta take what's yours," said Gunderson.

7 Innings Pitched.

Being one of the six pitchers, Jordan Long averages 95 pitches a game and has been clocked throwing 85 mph pitches. Because his specialty throughout the season was pitching, Long was able to pitch all seven innings which included many shut-outs. "I love the intensity of being on the mound and having the fate of the game rest in my hands," said Long.

2 Specialties.

95 Catches Per Game.

With catcher's gear and a leather mitt, Matthew Matson shows his athletic ability as he proves he will not let a ball get by him. Matson had a positive attitude toward his team's defensive abilities.

6 Intense Minutes

With three two-minute periods in a wrestling match, wrestlers have limited time to take down their opponents.

With a record of seven wins and 12 losses, the wrestling team struggled to emerge on top in the DuPage Valley Conference. The team demonstrated tough perseverance and strong will throughout the matches. "One of my main goals of the season was to win most of our dual meets and keep the number of participants high," said Coach James Philips.

In wrestling, team members must have strength, stamina, and determination. Without these vital skills pinning an opponent is next to impossible. "To be a good wrestler you have to be really confident going into a match. If you see a kid that's bigger than you, psyching yourself out does no good. I found that going into a match with that mentality will help me end up on top," said Calvin Holt.

Although the victory in a wrestling meet is based on the amount of individual wins, the wrestling team worked together to finish the season. "The encouragement of each team member is really important because seeing guys that are much bigger than you can be very intimidating. Without the support of the team, it is really difficult to focus on what I am there to do: win," said Nicholas Carnot.

Ashley Dunn

7 Beatdowns. As the match begins, Preston Hauptman assesses the situation. "My experience on varsity worked as an advantage for me. I was able to react to what ever moves my opponent put on me and figure out the best way to get out of them and pin them as quickly as I can," said Hauptman.

8 Years Wrestling. After wrestling for three years, Nicholas Carnot demonstrates that he is determined to emerge victorious by bringing down his Redhawk opponent.

86 Falls. As the clock ticks, Trenton Amey fights out of a tricky situation. Throughout the match Amey's quick thinking and talented skills helped him win.

1 Victory. Preparing to pin his opponent, Christopher Pierce battles for his first victory of the night. "I try to predict my opponent's next move so I can do what I need to pin him and win," said Pierce.

One Game Saver. Blocking each flying puck, Goalie Kyle Obright never lets anything pass him. Obright's goal was to leave the opponents' team always wanting revenge.

Zero Players Open. Pushing the puck down the ice, Forward Jordan Rehak searches for an open teammate to assist in making another goal.

1 Opening. Finding a gap between the opponent's offensive players, Defenseman Jonathan Gilbertsen skates down the rink to shoot another goal.

Two-On-One. Being guarded by two defending players, Forward Benjamin Orr glides down the ice to steal the puck away from one of his opponents to score.

Three Schools, One Team. After the team's pep talk, Forward Gunnar Sterne is always eager to walk onto the ice. "Before every game, Captain Alex Ozols usually gives us a pep talk that actually has nothing to do with the game, but makes us laugh. I always look forward to what he has to say," said Sterne.

Though only 12 of the 30 players come from our school, their hard work and dedication make up a large portion of the team.

With students from Wheaton Academy and Wheaton North High School, 12 West Chicago players represented our school on the ice through the sport they love. Playing hockey on the same team as two rivalry schools was easier than people thought. The Wild proved this true by working hard and having determination and heart throughout the season. "I feel focused when I play. I let stress out," said Forward Luke Somen.

The Varsity team had a strong season with a record of 13-9-1, but Varsity Coach Dave Dyson and Assistant Coach Steve Meahger hoped to lead the Wild to a win at the IHSL Division Championship. "The best part of being a coach is continuing to stay around the game I love. It is satisfying to give what I learned over a lifetime to my players and have them take that knowledge and make it their own," said Dyson.

Even though hockey is a tough sport, one girl on the team proved that girls were just as strong as boys. "The feeling you get from playing hockey is absolutely incredible. Every single thing about hockey, from the big saves, big hits, and big bruises, to the road trips, tournaments, and important games, being a part of this sport is incredible. Nothing compares to the feeling you get when you play hockey," said Goalie Kathryn Bell.

Despite a rough start, the young lacrosse team practiced hard and never gave up in hopes of prevailing all the way to the end.

Going into their fifth season as a lacrosse team, the players set high goals for themselves and settled for nothing less. They treated every game like they had nothing to lose. "At the start of the season I knew we were coming into a young and rough year. Not because of the lack of talent but the lack of experience our players had. Our team didn't build on wins. We built on chemistry with each other to make ourselves better for next year," said Blake Zumpano.

With the help from captains Blake Zumpano, Brad Cole, Anthony Serrato, and Brandon Rhodes, Coach Pater motivated the team through their toughest games and pushed them to their limits during practices. "We worked hard during practices and spent a lot of time on improving our skills but the other schools in the DVC really stepped up their game and were difficult to beat," said Serrato.

The team held practices at West Chicago Middle School every day after school for two hours in order to improve their tossing and catching skills. It was also a time for the boys to bond together as a team and work one on one with their coach. "This year Coach Pater really wanted the relationships on the team to be strong to make the communication on the field better so we had a lot of team bondings and everyone became really good friends," said Brandon Cleek.

With only one returning senior on varsity, the young lacrosse team struggled through the season with a record of 0-13. The team gave their all and left nothing on the field at the end of the season. Even with defeats, each and every team member walked onto the field ready to play their part in representing the colors of blue and white with pride.

-Amber Weinmann

1 Goalie. After saving a goal from opponent Naperville Central, Brandon Rhodes prepares to throw it back out into the field. "It's been a tough season but we are keeping our heads up and improving with every game," said Rhodes.

5 Minute Pop Talk. During their time out of the game, Darrek Sams and Brad Cole reflect on how they have played and give each other advice on how to improve their game. Throughout the season the team formed a very strong support system.

1 Aggressive Teammate. During a close game, Brad Cole runs after a Redhawk with the ball to save his team from losing. "Our offense did well during this game but the other team scored most of their points using fast breaks, which messed up our defense," said Cole.

1 Loyal Captain. While playing against Naperville Central, Blake Zumpano, plays with a positive attitude and expects nothing less than a win from his team. Being the captain, Zumpano did his best to set a good example and motivate the rest of the team even during the toughest times.

1 Pregame Chant. During the last game of the season, the team gathers one last time to motivate each other and get ready for the grueling game ahead of them. Each practice that week led up to this final game and the boys hoped that their hard work would pay off when they left the field with a victory. "Varsity is a lot faster-paced and requires a lot more skill, so with a young team it was hard to compete against other teams in the DVC," said Stuart Sankovitch.

1 Defensive Player. In order to be in position to score a goal Ben Vanderle attempts to free himself from his opponent. "We faced difficult teams this year, but we went into the games with positive thoughts," said Vanderle.

3 Men In Masks While waiting for their turn to show off their skills on the field, Brandon Fischer, Nathan Olson, and Daniel Singer support their teammates who are already playing. "We knew it was going to be a tough season since we lost so many people but we are a young team with a lot of individual talent," said Singer.

5 Goals Scored.

On his way across the field Lukas Mackey has his sights set on scoring a goal for his team. "During practices we spent a lot of time working on all the skills for each position on the field. Such as passing the ball back and forth and scrimmaging each other," said Mackey.

15 Passes. After passing the ball to one of his teammates R.J. Kolburger hopes for a goal to bring his team one point closer to winning the game. Throughout the season, Kolburger was a consistent player and worked hard during practices.

1 Intimidating Glare.

After passing the ball off to his open teammate, Tyler Zanoni makes his way to the opponents' goal in the attempt to score a point and win the game.

In each one of the matches, these badminton players did more than smash and drop. They dominated the courts.

On the Saturday morning after Prom, Bishop Gym filled with badminton players warming up for their DVC matches later that day. Around the gym all of these girls used the shots they learned from practice including drives, mid-court clears and full-court clears, hoping to play their best at DVC and improve their record of four wins out of eleven games. Warming up for DVC, the team looked to their captains, Jamie Roman, Lia

Smith, Yesenia Geromini and Mariela Kruthoff, for guidance. The DVC competition came to a close, and the team worked hard. Although the team did not place, both Kim Kleczewski and Ania Skorupski won their singles matches.

"My favorite part about badminton is the fact that we have an amazing group of girls, and we're always there for each other whether we win or lose," said Kleczewski. At the Plainfield North Invite, they placed second. At the Dekalb tournament, they placed 5th, the double partners Jamie Roman and Hanna Colliander placed second and Virginia Mason placed third in singles. "In a regular practice we do a lot of conditioning towards the end and work on skills. Practices are very hard but they can also be fun," said Geromini.

Ten Rackets.

Huddling up before the match to discuss the game plan, Coach Nguyen gives a speech but the rest is up to the girls to get ready for their match. "I don't really do anything special before a match. I put on my uniform on and help pump up my team then I am all set to play," said Lia Smith.

One Point. Reaching for the birdie, Casey Dennis saves it. "Take chances, learn from your mistakes and when in doubt keep your racket held high," said Dennis.

Six Matches. Focusing on winning the point, Kim Kleczewski clears her mind and prepares to serve. Throughout the season, Kleczewski won six single matches.

Twenty One Points. Determined to win, Jessica Munoz keeps the birdie in play. With only 21 points every hit counts.

Doubles. Stepping on court Jamie Roman and Hanna Colliander are ready to play their doubles match. After all their hard work in practices, they placed second at the Dekalb tournament.

15 Matches

Despite snowstorms and busy schedules, these students work for perfection in every performance.

Focused Cats

18 Years. Being the only gymnast, Kristina Terry teams up with Wheaton North for practices and meets. Terry started gymnastics when she was three and fell in love with it. She spent all of her time practicing gymnastics when she was not in school. "My goals were to stay on varsity and learn a lot of new tricks. Overall goals are to get a college scholarship for gymnastics and to specialize in floor," said Terry, who thrilled We-Go with her outstanding gymnastic abilities.

One Game, Two Uniforms. During half time while the rest of the football team enjoys a break, Kevin Curda races back on the field to play the drums with the Marching Band. He was involved in football, Marching Band, jazz band and the spring play. Although Curda spent many nights at school, he wouldn't have it any other way. "Try something new, something you've never done before. It might just be one of the best decisions you'll make," said Curda.

Two Sport Captain. From sophomore football captain to sophomore basketball captain, Kyle Molskow balances his schedule by using his free time and staying focused. Molskow became involved in sports to have fun, meet new people and develop a good work ethic. "My goals for both sports I play are to work hard, win, and always do my best," said Molskow. Besides playing sports, he was in the Community Leadership class, volunteering the time he had to better the community.

Countless Laps. Swimming laps after school is routine for Kelly Dunn. She participated in the local swim team and the West Chicago Sharks, while maintaining a 4.0. Dunn's goal was to place third in state, and the only way she could do that is to continue to have fun. "I manage time by keeping my goals in mind. I have priorities. My family, friends and teammates help me use time appropriately," said Dunn, who was named All-Conference last year and All-American in 2009.

With more than just pretty faces, Varsity and JV cheerleaders spread morale to teams and fans with spirit and drive.

Both the Varsity and Sophomore cheerleading squads began their season in late June as they prepared for their trip to Northern Illinois University Cheer Camp. At the camp, the girls learned new stunts and dance moves to bring back home. "NIU camp is over a period of four days, and our squad was stuck together like glue. It was the place that let us bond and create relationships," said Brittany Parisi.

For halftime, the squads put together a new routine for each home game as well as raised school spirit levels. Under the leadership of Coach Terri Rohrdanz and Captains Molly Cody, Sara Lim, and Ileana Tapanes, the girls brought enthusiasm to the school, motivating everyone to strive for victory. Throughout the season, the squads grew to be more of a family. "We have a sister like bond. I can count on them for anything," said Erica Lange.

Practicing through sweat and pain, thirty six cheerleaders

"These girls have shown their true colors through the intense work they've done this season."

proved that they had the right to be called serious athletes. "As a squad, we have really put our best foot forward, worked harder, and really improved," said Kaity Olson. When the season came to a close, it was hard to say goodbye to the departing seniors. "We have shared so many memories together and will keep one another close to heart," said Ileana Tapanes.

No matter what the scoreboard read, the girls were always present, from the start of the game to the last second. "These girls have shown their true colors through the intense work they've gone through this season, and we've pushed through many obstacles together. The girls stayed motivated, which made our season a success," said Coach Rohrdanz. Constantly motivating our teams to succeed, this group of cheerleaders not only defined school spirit, but also true strength, unity, and teamwork.

-Megan Zajac

1 Close Coach.

After coaching cheerleading for more than ten years, Terri Rohrdanz accepts a bigger challenge. Taking on a group of thirty six girls, she offered more than just a helping hand, but also a caring heart.

7 Mounts.

During the Homecoming halftime performance, Varsity and JV cheerleaders formed a pyramid, enchanting the crowd. They finished the routine dancing to a mix of music that represented the Homecoming themes.

8 On Top. During timeouts, the cheerleaders throw up an effective stunt to entertain parents and students. "Now that we have our technique down, the basics have become second nature and now we get to work on harder stunts," said Stefanie Turzinski.

6 Eager Faces.

Despite what the scoreboard reads, our cheerleaders are always ready to cheer on our team. During a play of the night, the girls were caught in action showing their gratitude and spirit. It took determination to stand united, but they did it with a smile. "Being on the field by the players makes everything feel so surreal. It's such an experience," said Sara Lim.

36 Sisters

20 Red Bows. During the fall pep assembly, the Varsity cheerleaders go out onto the floor with smiles and pep. Performing to a mix of "Last Christmas," they perform their Christmas routine for the student body. The squad revived anticipation and excitement throughout the crowd. "Pep assemblies outlive any halftime of a football or basketball game. They are the most fun because you get to perform in front of the entire school and get all the students involved," said Molly Cody.

1 Mind-Set. Hitting every move with perfection, Kaity Olson perfects her performance. During the assembly, she excited the crowd with her spirit and attitude. "After years of cheering, there is still an adrenaline rush every time I perform," said Olson.

8 Sideline Dancers. During a timeout at one of the home football games, Brittany Parisi, Alyssa Santelli, and Ashley Jefferson dance to "Let's Get Loud" by Jennifer Lopez. The squad learned this new routine over the past summer at NIU to share with our fans. With the hard work, they demonstrated and brought to the sidelines the fun side of cheering.

1 Windy City. Walking in the annual Homecoming parade as a first time cheerleader, Alexa Jean takes to the streets prepped and ready to cheer.

With these dance numbers, the Poms have it made with the energy that they bring to every football and basketball game.

With a different routine to perform every Friday night, the Pom Pon squad dances their way into the hearts of the audience. Whether it is on the field or court, these sixteen dedicated girls showed all their hard work and love for dance every time they performed during halftime.

The season started with practices in early April before the school year even ended and continued everyday during the summer. The two hour practices were spent learning and perfecting skills for the season as well as teaching sidelines and the school song. Towards the end of summer the girls attended the Universal Dance Association summer camp hosted at Wheaton College. With the routine they brought, choreographed by Captains Abbey Mastroianni and Renee Cirone, the squad placed 6 out of 11 schools that attended. "Camp was an awesome experience because we met new people from other schools and learned to work together as a team," said Megan Ogorzalek.

When school started, the squad didn't only participate in other school events such as Relay for Life and Volley for the Cure. They also volunteered their time to the community raking leaves, helping out with the Fall Festival 5K run at the DuPage Convalescent Center, and making Christmas much more special for families with children with special needs.

"I really want the girls this year to participate in as much community service as possible because I am a big believer in helping out the community and it was also a good way for the girls to bond and work as a team," said Coach Devin Vassar.

"The girls showed determination and hard work through whatever routine or dance style we taught them that week," said Renee Cirone. For every home football and basketball game, as well as pep assemblies, the girls took the floor and performed with confidence in themselves and one another.

-Amber Weinmann

2 Pom Poms.

While walking to the beat of "Please Don't Stop the Music" by Rihanna during the Homecoming parade, Sarah Berger holds her poms firmly. Berger was a first year pom and brought her bright personality to the team.

1 Dancer.

As a second year pom, Jaclyn Coughlan expects nothing less than another great season. "I feel like this season we bonded with one another better through all the activities that we participated in which made us stronger," said Coughlan.

8 Seniors.

In the Homecoming half time show Renee Cirone, Lanie Sikorski, and Abbey Mastroianni wait patiently for their turn to represent their class's Olympic city through every move. "The seniors helped me a lot through my first year as a pom by encouraging all of us," said Janel Tomassoni.

16 Pom-poms. In a single file line, all sixteen girls stand united for the last time as a squad, while honoring the country during the National Anthem. "Senior night has always been a night I have dreaded because it meant no more halftime performances and bondings with the whole team. That night is always special because we reflect on the past season and remember all the good times we had together as a squad," said Captain Abbey Mastroianni.

1 Pose Struck.

During the first pep assembly of the year, Amber Weinmann waits patiently for the music to start. "Performing in front of the whole school for the first time was an adrenaline rush because I knew a lot of my friends were there watching. Poms has pretty much taken over my life with all the practices and games but I love to dance and we all get along pretty well so being on the team is worth it," said Weinmann.

9 Stripes. During the Christmas Pep Assembly Christina Jonas finishes the routine strongly and waits while the students cheer. This routine was full of circle kick-lines and cute dance steps to bring out the Christmas spirit. "Christmas routine was by far my favorite out of the season because it was easy and I had a really good time performing it," said Jonas.

1 For the Cause. While dancing at the Volley for the Cure event to the song "Truly, Madly, Deeply," Kim Busch finishes the routine strongly. "I was glad to be a part of the Volley for the Cure event since it was for a good cause and it benefited many people whether they had cancer, survived it, or knew someone close to them that dealt with this awful disease," said Busch.

7 Fearless Coaches

11 Busy Coach. Being the business manager is a great amount of work itself, but Mr. McCarthy takes on the role of being the head baseball coach as well. McCarthy served as the business manager for the last four years and next year will be returning to teaching business classes and consumer education classes. "Coaching has its highs and lows. I have always had a passion for it. I'm not in it for the money. I do it for the kids," said McCarthy.

15 Years of Coaching. Working as a special education teacher, Mr. Wheeler has also been coaching basketball for 15 years. In high school, Wheeler returned to his old junior high and started coaching there, and it never left his system. "Athletics gives players the opportunity to learn life lessons. Being on a team is something that you will always remember and take with you. It gives good experiences to look back on when things get hard," said Wheeler, who coached the sophomore boys' basketball team.

11 Love for the Game. Building a relationship with his players by teaching them not only tennis skills, but also life skills, Coach Moeaki shares his love for the game through coaching. "To motivate my team I just tell them to go out there and do their best. If they know they put 100% into their game, then they should be a winner no matter what. Winning isn't everything. Hard work is all I can ask for," said Moeaki. Other than being a coach, Moeaki was also a dean's assistant and a common figure in school.

2 Children, 15 Years of Coaching. Coaching both boys' and girls' volleyball for 15 years, Coach Hasty watches her players so that she can give them advice for improvement. While Hasty spent most of her time during the day thinking of game strategies and practice activities, Hasty also was a PE teacher for strength training and self defense. She spent countless hours giving motivation to her students and athletes as well as going home to her two children, Lauren and Collin. She also spent extra hours on organizing Volley for the Cure, a program to raise money for breast cancer.

4 Years of Success. Going from being a teacher to being the dean of students, Mrs. Rusin continues coaching girls' basketball for her fourth year. "In my first season coaching, we beat West Aurora. It was our first conference win, and we won by two. It was a close game the whole time. Everyone went crazy. It was like we had just won state. I will never forget it," said Rusin. Outside of school, Rusin was also a golfer and loved to spend time working outdoors.

19 Years. Other than being a full time dad to his four kids, Coach Gimre is a math teacher and has been coaching for the past 19 years. "I like to give the guys an idea of what they have accomplished and what they can do and to build on the past experiences to change things. I also like to build on past experiences to motivate them," said Gimre. When first starting out as a coach, Gimre was an assistant baseball coach and later became the varsity basketball coach.

42 Weeks of Tasks

With AP tests, ACTs, jobs, and sports, the Juniors manage to work toward Senior year.

Walking through Entrance A for the third time, the Class of 2010 knew what to expect for their junior year. Catching up with old friends, the junior class leisurely began their third year. Unfortunately, they had no idea of the challenges they were about to face.

During junior year, there were a series of obstacles, including the Junior Research Paper, ACTs, and AP tests. After only hearing rumors about the tests, the juniors studied harder and acted more responsibly to complete their work on time.

While junior year was full of tedious tasks, the new upperclassmen were able to participate in the Powder Puff game, even after walking away with a defeat. Other athletes competed on a varsity level, proving their dedication. "Playing on the varsity level helped improve my skills because I got to work with the seniors who have had an extra year on varsity," said Blake Zumpano. And of course, for the juniors, Prom was a highlight of the year.

Although there were numerous ups and downs of junior year, each student realized that this year was paving the way for years to come. The Class of '10 grew in maturity as they worked towards senior year and the places they were going after graduation.

-Connie Tan

"Varsity is a high level of competition, and to perform at this level, I know my skills must be as sharp as possible,"

-Chad Driscoll

Two Passionate Players. With only two juniors playing in the annual Students vs. Teachers basketball game, Lamar Moore proves that he wants the victory.

Three Touchdowns Away From Victory. Playing against the senior class in the Powder Puff game brings out the competitiveness in Eridanny Orozco and Ana Flores. After their defeat, the determined Junior Class remained proud of their comeback in the second half.

One Heart of Dedication. After catching the pass, Nathan Olson hustles down the field to make a touchdown. "The game against Glenbard East was legendary and I will always remember how well we played as a team. My friends, and even parents, in the stands were going crazy," said Olson.

First Rotation. Tossing the ball into the air, Danielle McAvoy hopes to serve an ace on Naperville Central. All the excitement and cheering in the crowd allowed the girls to play with passion.

Four Half Time Shows. With only four home football games, Kathryn Pusateri amazes the crowd by moving her colorful flags to the beat with the marching band.

865 Days of Speech. Although Speech team only lasts five months, David Garcia uses the communication skills he learned in his everyday life. "It's in 20/20 retrospective that we realize that the greatest leaders in the world have been the greatest speakers," said Garcia.

AP Test Prep

"I feel confident that I will be prepared enough to do pretty well on the test. I am not too scared, because I can take it again next year if I don't get the test score I want this year."

-Jessica Kassinits

"I am so tired of preparing for the AP Test, I would honestly rather be home sick with influenza than continue to write more practice essays for even one more class period."

-Amanda Rathe

"I am actually kind of excited about the test as a whole, but I really do not want to receive a bad grade, so I guess I'm kind of scared for that."

-Deven Lopez

Best Advice

"People have been telling me not to mess around and to do what I'm told. It sounds boring, but from my experience, in the long run, you'll walk away with a lot more."

-Tyler Griffith

"People told me to dress in what's in 'style' so I'm not considered the weirdo. That was probably the worst advice I've ever gotten. My advice would be to wear what makes you, you."

-Tegan Ballotti

"My friend told me that texting during school was easy to get away with, but I ended up getting my phone taken away. My advice: don't text during school."

-David Padilla

One student's advice. Before high school started, most students receive advice for their high school experience. "The advice that I got was that I should cherish the time I have and to have fun because you'll never have another experience like it," said Tegan Cejna.

ACT Crunch Time

"There was a girl in my room who finished her test early and fell asleep. She started making weird noises so the teacher in the room had to talk to her twice."

-Collin Wiersema

"While I was taking one test, someone in the room had a stuffy nose. It was disgusting and it made it hard to concentrate."

-Danielle McAvoy

"During the middle of the test, a girl wanted to copy one of my answers. I wouldn't give it to her so she threw a pencil at me."

Two Years of Varsity Experience. Attempting to use his fancy footwork to get past his opponent, Dorian Carrasco uses his second year of varsity experience as an advantage against the opposing team. Carrasco's foot skills came in handy throughout the entire season when he played the offensive position.

Two Teams, One Rivalry. During the Powder Puff game, Elizabeth Cortez catches the ball after running the play 32 Dive. Cortez was one of the few players that both played offense and defense during the intense game. Unfortunately the juniors lost all bragging rights when the seniors won the game.

17 Years of Dancing. While dancing to the song "I'll Be" by Edwin McCain, Alyssa Santelli and Molly Cody perform in the annual Dance Production performance. Other dances that Santelli was included in were The Junior Dance, The Quartet, The Duo, Opening, and Finale.

His Fourth Production. While performing in the second act of the winter play, Mrs. McThing, Anthony Wondolkowski, criticizes co-actor Joeseeph Wais. Other performances that Wondolkowski participated in are All in the Timing, Grease, and The Glass Cup.

Showcasing the talents of 23 performers, FBLA's annual Variety Show brings laughter and smiles to audiences.

When the auditorium doors opened, the audience filed in with excitement in their hearts. Butterflies filled the stomachs of the 23 people who were about to show off their various talents to the public. With the auditorium packed for both show times on November 20th, the audience quietly took their seats and patiently waited for the first act to start as the lights dimmed and the curtains opened.

FBLA hosted the show and spent many hours watching people audition. The FBLA members spent a long time preparing for the show, including the theme, "A Journey to the Wild, Wild West."

According to FBLA President and Emcee, Rebecca Cisowski, the show was the best the school has seen in years. "As the director of the Variety Show, it is always fun to see the final show. We had a lot of great acts this year, and the show was a success," said Cisowski.

Sara Smolucha and
"The Variety Show was awesome. It was definitely the best one I've been to."

Kelsey King opened the evening with an Irish jig, the opposite of Darryl Thomas's style of dance: break dancing. One of the most memorable moments occurred when Benny Orzo, one of the school's security guards, sang opera, a performance that many audience members called impressive. Jozef Pavnica and Jason Foreman did a John Mayer and Jason Mraz tribute. The last act in the show consisted of Brendan McCormack, Jack McCormack, Jozef Pavnica, and Joseph Wais, also known as Business Casual.

As the curtains closed, the audience rose from their seats satisfied. With many returning acts and a few new ones, the Variety Show was a huge hit. "The Variety Show this year was awesome. It was definitely the best one I've been to. I can't wait until next year's show," said Daryl de Leon, a spectator of the show.

-Alexis Brunelli

Double Whammy. Not only a member of Business Casual, but also a pianist of three years, Joseph Wais shows off his piano-playing skills, impersonates Elton John, and sings one of his melodies. "I really enjoy performing. It is so much fun and playing on stage just feels so natural," said Wais.

4 Years. Hitting a high note, Erica Smith sings "Got Me Going Crazy" by the Jonas Brothers. "I've been in choir for four years but I've always loved to sing. Obviously I feel nervous at first, but being on stage is amazing," said Smith.

2 New Players. As the lead guitarist of the band, Business Casual, Brendan McCormack rocks the show along with his fellow musicians. Also, two new members joined the band from the performance last year: Jozef Pavnica and Joseph Wais.

One New Band. For one month, Bassist Thomas Hahs and Drummer Steven Balmer have played in the punk-rock band Down Flow. Along with three college boys, the band played three head-banging songs at the Variety Show. "I have always loved music and performing, and being on stage is amazing. It is such an awesome feeling. It gives me a natural high. It's better than anything else in the world," said Hahs.

One Guitar Hero. Playing a soft melody, Colin Hale shows off his skills on his two-year old acoustic guitar. "The second song I created accidentally after about a year of playing. The night of the performance, somebody approached me and recommended the name 'Waves,' which is currently the name of the song," said Hale.

SS Keys. Swiftly moving her hands across the piano, Alexis Hosticka plays music by Mozart. "I'm used to performing because I've had so many recitals, but there's always a new kind of nervousness when I go on stage," said Hosticka.

One Song. Singing Jordin Sparks' "One Step at a Time," Precious Dannug sings her heart out. "I get nervous before performing, but when I step into the spotlight, it makes me more comfortable," said Dannug.

These nine seniors didn't simply entertain the audience. They captured the crowd with the true talents of the Class of 2009.

On March 6th, 2009, your "not-so-average" pageant showcased its version of talent, formal wear and . . . boys? Yes, nine of the senior boys battled it out on the stage for the title of Mr. Wildcat. The evening began with a group dance number followed by an individual strut across the catwalk where the boys modeled their Spring Break wear. The contestants needed to bring their A-games as their teachers sat in the audience and judged their efforts. Brian Skrzypczak started the spectacle off with a pow as he performed as a karate master who could break boards from head to toe. Following was Rhett Gunderson with a dance number, singing and dancing from Alexander Puetz, a drumming solo from John McCormack, a guitar and singing tribute to the Plain White Tees from Marco Favela and a rap to Fresh Prince of Bel-Air by Alex Pirela. There was also a comedic little person dance from Ivan Desfassiaux, an evolution of dancing by David Peace, and a crowd pleasing medley of songs sung by Jozef Pavnica. The contestants later participated in a question portion of the contest where we heard about being an assistant to Mr. Martino for a day, the current economic crisis, and going back in time. In the end, Pavnica won the heart of the judges and the crown. Mr. Kempiski, one of the night's judges, felt proud of the boys when the night was over. "Every Mr. Wildcat contestant should be proud. To stand up in front of your peers and perform represents more than just talent. It shows the other students in the school what it means to be a Wildcat," said Kempiski.

5 Whops. Dancing takes a lot of skill and effort, but Rhett Gunderson dances his heart out to amuse the group before him. "It was a lot more eventful than I planned. The guys rocked and it was the best Mr. Wildcat any West Chicago male put forth," said Gunderson.

Six Decades. With music like "Bye, Bye, Bye," "Jump Around," and "The Twist," David Peace shows the dance moves of many genres. "Mr. Wildcat was possibly the most fun I've had all four years. Dancing on stage was even better," said Peace.

1, 2, 3, 4. Strumming his guitar and serenading the crowd, Marco Favela sang to the Plain White Tees "1,2,3,4." With his soulful talent, he inspired the crowd with his performance. "I had a lot of fun. It was one of the best things I have done. Even though I didn't win, it was all worth it in the end. It was a great experience," said Favela.

8 Wishful Stars. Singing "Girl on TV" by LFO with his two backup dancers, Alexander Puetz is a stunning performer with a great talent. "Mr. Wildcat was a historic event. Working with all the guys was a blast. This could have been the best Mr. Wildcat ever and it was definitely one of my top high school memories," said Puetz.

Alpha Cats

2009 Winner. With the right attitude and much confidence, Jozef Pavnica takes to the stage as a true Wildcat. With his guitar in hand, Pavnica sang into the hearts of the spectators. He attracted the viewers by singing songs like "Umbrella," "A Whole New World," "With You," and "I'm Yours," which was performed for all ages. Gaining the votes of the judges and all the screaming fans, Pavnica was put straight through to the top. "I loved having fun and practicing with the guys, all of them were amazing. I had a ton of fun, especially with the talent portion, and I was totally surprised when I won!" added Pavnica.

90's Theme Song.

Bringing memories from the past with a very unique act, Alexander Pirela raps to the well known show, Fresh Prince of Bel-Air. "Mr. Wildcat rocked. I'm so glad I decided to do it. It was awesome and was definitely one of the best things I've ever done," said Pirela.

2 Sets of Drums.

Playing to his own beat on two sets of drums, John McCormack captures the mind of the audience. "Mr. Wildcat was an absolute riot. I loved working with the guys, modeling, and presenting my talent. I'll remember it forever," said McCormack.

One Exclusive Act.

With a very unique talent brought to the stage, Ivan Desfassiaux lights up the faces of all audience members with smiles and laughter. "With all of our different types of talents, we brought a new atmosphere to the show. It worked out perfectly. And I was shocked I came in second. Mr. Wildcat was great," said Desfassiaux.

4 Broken Boards.

With the help of Andrew Bowker, Brian Skrzypczak amuses the crowd by snapping board after board. "Mr Wildcat was an epic event. Our diverse group of guys came together, putting on an awesome show. I could not have asked for it to go any better. It is my most cherished high school memory, by far," said Skrzypczak.

To put on the annual Dance Production show, the dancers spend their time choreographing, practicing, and perfecting the dances.

As the maroon velvet curtains slowly opened on a Saturday night in January, the distinctive beats of the "So You Think You Can Dance" theme song blasted. The 30 dancers started off the show with a bang, as displayed by the opening dance, choreographed by Rachel Molinaro. With 27 dances in the 2009 Dance Production Show, "Stop, Drop, and Dance," it was full of variety and talent. Dance styles ranged from hip-hop to lyrical to Irish Jig.

The dancers had multiple practices after school and during winter break in addition to practicing every day in class.

However, the performance would not have come together without the help of tech crew. They controlled the elaborate lights and all the music cuts. The effects of the lights made the dances even more impressive. "We had a lot of new ideas which translated into terrific dances. One of my favorite dances was Hide and Seek, choreographed by Renee Cirone and Danielle Pacelli. I love how the dancers have used the pauses in the music in the choreography, their use of levels and the contrasting movements," said Advisor Mrs. Zmrhal.

"We had a lot of new ideas which translated into terrific dances."

An outstanding dance for the annual show was Senior Dance, choreographed by Abbey Mastrianni and Carissa Gouskos. "My favorite dance was definitely Senior Dance, because it's completely different from any other dance, and I also happen to be very fond of the choreographers," said Molly Cody.

-Amber Weinmann and Megan Ogorzalek

2 Duets. At the beginning of her duet with Molly Cody, Alyssa Santelli starts off the dance with grace. The duo performed a lyrical routine to the song "Slow Me Down" by Emmy Rossum. The dance not only consisted of lyrical moves, but it also showed off their tumbling expertise, displayed by Capezio and Aerials.

1 Dramatic Ending. Before the big finale, Rachel Molinaro performs a lyrical solo to the song "Hometown Glory" by Adele. "I can interpret this song in so many ways but what I felt was that timid and uncertain feeling that comes with leaving your hometown to start a new journey," said Molinaro.

7 Deadly Dancers. Once the lights dim and the music starts, the dancers prepare to tell a story. Choreographers Renee Cirone and Danielle Pacelli told their vision of the song "Hide and Seek" by Imogen Heap through every passionate move. "When I originally heard this song, it was like I was watching the dance in my head. The story told itself because the music was so emotional. It was scary to perform something so personal," said Pacelli.

85 Feathers. While performing a dance to M.I.A.'s "Sunshowers" with close friend Molly Cody, Renee Cirone brings out her inner bird. "We really wanted to do something fun and crazy, and since there were bird chirps in the song we decided we'd put on some feathers and act like birds," said Cirone.

5 Sassy Juniors. As the signature beats of "Just Dance" by Lady Gaga echoes through the auditorium, the Junior Dance begins. The Junior Dance, choreographed by Erica Lange, Allyssa Brinkman, and Kelsey King, contained sixteen dancers. Of all the dances, it was one of the more challenging to choreograph and learn due to the high number of dancers included.

8 Fresh Dancers. During the freshman dance, Juliet Santelli, Alexis Micele, and Lexis Sikorski arrange themselves so it appears as if they are one person. Throughout their mixed songs, the girls' synchronized dance moves and artistic abilities expressed Santelli's, Micele's, and Sikorski's individual skills.

One Match Made in Heaven. Two hours into the dance Leslie Filpo and Michael Garcia take a rest after showing off their moves on the floor. "I had a really good time with my date at prom. It will be a time that I will never forget," said Garcia.

Two Crowns. After anxiously waiting for the results since the spring sports pep assembly, all 10 of the Prom court nominees are brought to the center of the dance floor along with the royalty from last year. Only a few more minutes passed before the crowns were placed on Alyssa Pierce and Michael Bryant's heads. "It's an awesome feeling to be Prom King. I thought it was cool to just be nominated, but to actually win was amazing and it is something I will never forget," said Bryant.

On Prom night, Juniors and Seniors do not want to miss a moment of the festivities.

On a remarkable May 1st Prom evening, thousands of flashing cameras, hundreds of colorful corsages, numerous garters, and thousands of bobby pins holding the girls' hair together all captured the excitement of the big night. "As we were driving towards prom, all we could think about was how much fun we were going to have," said Kim Busch.

As the students began entering the elegantly decorated Empress in Addison, the excitement of the night to come filled the air. All the girls and boys continued to their tables and saw the many colored balloons. "It was a great night to be a Wildcat," said Ms. Santella.

After much anticipation, Alyssa Pierce and Michael Bryant were crowned king and queen. "Don't Wanna Miss a Thing" by Aerosmith began to play, and the newly crowned queen and king took the center of the dance floor to have their first dance as king and queen. Not soon after, the rest of the prom-goers walked on the floor and had the time of their lives. "Prom was amazing! I am sad that this is my last year to go, but I finally got Mrs. Rusin to admit we were BFFs! That made the night unforgettable," said Carly Abraham.

The dancing ended, and the night continued with festivities on the Odyssey boat at Navy Pier. The students were entertained with hip-hop dancers, music and photo booths.

From the photos to the Odyssey, all the prom-goers and even the chaperones made memories that will last them all a lifetime.

The Last Dance. As Bibiana Valenzuela and Miguel Herrera dance to the last song at Prom, they share a memory that neither one will ever forget. "I was excited to share my Senior Prom with my boyfriend. It was great to go with someone so special," said Valenzuela.

SOH!3. Although Michelle Memoli and her date are heartbroken that their final school dance is almost over, they don't let that bring them down as "Don't Trust Me" by SOH!3 filled the room. "Each year Prom marks a special moment in the lives of juniors and seniors, and this year was no exception," said Mr. Kempsey, adding that Prom 2009 was a night few will ever forget.

One Million Memories. As life long friends, Ashley Jefferson and Sean Tubridy decide to celebrate their special night together. The Prom represented the ending of their senior year, and they wanted to spend it together. "It was my first time going to Prom and I am really glad I saved it for my senior year. It was a once in a lifetime experience," said Jefferson.

Two Months of Searching. Two months before Prom even takes place Gina Stolzman's quest begins. She was determined to find the perfect dress for her last prom and refused to make any exceptions. After looking top to bottom in more than four dress stores, she finally spotted it, the dress she had been searching for. "When I saw my dress I knew it was made for me. It was everything I had been looking for and I could not believe it was finally in front of me," said Stolzman. Not only did she have a beautiful dress, but she also had an amazing night with her date Blake Zumpano. "Prom was great not only because of the dancing and the decorations, but because it was one of the last moments I shared with my best friends in high school. It was a night that I will remember for the rest of my life," said Stolzman.

These students have more than high grades. Working with other organizations, both in and out of school, they give back to the community.

National Honor Society, is a club for academically focused juniors and seniors. The students must apply to become members and maintain a GPA higher than 3.0. In addition to keeping their grades up, members have to be involved with their community.

Seventy-five members were inducted in November 2008. To continue in the club the following year, the required number of service hours was increased to 25 hours from the previous 15 hours. A limited amount of members traveled to Alabama over Spring Break to work with Habitat for Humanity. They restored and rebuilt homes destroyed during Hurricane Katrina. Many viewed these service hours as a way to contribute to the community. "It was an opportunity for the students to give back to the community, whether it was the school or the greater community by using what they learned," said Dr. Cheng.

Four students were chosen to take leadership roles for their senior year. President Caitlin Shiga, Vice-President Jessica Bergmann, and Secretary Anna Treudt helped Ms. Mallon manage NHS. "NHS allows me to surround myself with some of the most dedicated and intelligent students. Also, NHS encourages me to give back to the community and practice my leadership skill," said Caitlin MacDonald.

Multiple Projects.

Receiving her certificate into NHS, Lisette Dominguez is thrilled. "This outstanding recognition shows me that my teachers recognize my achievements. I appreciate their support. To be in NHS is to be a role model," said Dominguez.

Another Hour.

Shaking Mrs. Mallon's hand, Chad Driscoll becomes a part of NHS. "I got most of my hours by looking for opportunities around the school such as the Booster Club," said Driscoll.

801 Eligible Students. More than 120 students with high grades apply to be in NHS, but only 75 are chosen. To become a member, a student needed to participate in both extracurricular and volunteer activities. "NHS promotes volunteering. I participated in Relay for Life as a way to get hours and to support a wonderful cause," said Hannah Taylor.

Nine German Students. Speaking to the newest members of the German Honor Society, Tim Loftus inducts the students. He inspired students to keep working hard. Loftus's dedication to German gave him a chance to go further into studying for something he enjoys. "My dedication in German has given me a scholarship, where I can begin to start my future," said Loftus.

One Spanish Honor. Being called up to stand up with other Spanish speakers, Neil Hummer is named as one of the students that have done well and worked hard in Spanish.

One Last Oath to Keep. Standing at the podium, Donna Quiroz and Krupscaya Stevens recite the French oath to their many classmates. The oath was a promise to be dedicated to continue learning the French language and culture.

With a love of language and culture, these honor students dedicate themselves to see and learn about a new world.

The Foreign Language National Honor Society, or FLNHS, is filled with students who were dedicated to learning one of three languages. The students learning German, Spanish, and French were inducted after being in the course for at least three years and having an average of a 3.0 GPA. In April, more than 80 students were honored for their hard work.

Among the exceptional students, Tim Loftus and Anna Treudt both received scholarships for $17,000 a year. "I worked hard and it paid off. It was a huge cut on my tuition and it saved me a lot of money for college," said Treudt. In order to qualify, she watched a German film and afterwards told the story in her own words. Then, she met with a German professor, whom she spoke German with during a 15 minute interview.

Loftus received the Liedloff Scholarship to Southern Illinois University in Carbondale. "I knew of people who applied for the scholarship and I felt I didn't get it. I was shocked when I learned I had won," said Loftus. He wrote a letter of application and turned in two recommendations. Mrs. Strohm and Ms. Daneels wrote of his leadership and hard work. "I'm impressed with his German skills, but also his motivation and ability to achieve goals," said Strohm.

Katelyn Casey, who studied both French and Spanish in high school, received the Outstanding Achievement Award. "I was proud of myself for doing well in something I love. I had a smile on my face when I found out in the announcements that I received the award," said Casey.

Coming from different countries, these students have excelled at learning English as their second language.

Helping speakers who are fluent in Spanish and Chinese, the English as a Second Language Bilingual National Honor Society, or ESL Bilingual NHS, recognizes students and adults alike who are serious about learning a whole new culture.

The ceremony, which took place on May 27th, acknowledged these individuals for their efforts and dedication to the English language.

Giving a speech to the inductees, District 94 staff member Benny Orozco and student Angelica Perez started the night. Their speeches, primarily in English, welcomed those entering the ESL Bilingual NHS. Afterwards, Mrs. Stefancic, the head of the ESL Bilingual NHS, presented the awards to her students. Among the awards, two students were recognized as the bilingual students of the year. Benito Gomez and Liliana Perez were acknowledged for showing the most improvement throughout the year and received won the prestigious award.

During the ceremony, Raquel Rojas and Angelica Perez were given the Amelia Diaz Allmart Scholarship for having been the most productive students in their class. "Receiving this scholarship meant a lot to me. This is going to help me go to the college of my choice for next year," said Rojas.

15 Second of Fame. Standing in front of the whole auditorium, the bilingual students, including Yihao Chen, receive a round of applause for their achievements. "This past year with the kids in bilingual NHS has been extraordinary. They worked so hard to learn English and I am so proud of their success this year. It's amazing what kids can learn when they try," said Mrs. Stefancic.

Enlisting in the military is not a simple decision, but these four men have made the emotional choice to become soldiers.

Patriotic Leaders

Eight Years of Hoping. Since fourth grade, Bill Burke has aspired to be a member of the Army. When Burke realized his dream for helping the country, he decided he wanted to become a helicopter pilot. "I was inspired by my two grandfathers, who were in the Navy, and two uncles, who were in the Army," said Burke. Burke had already been given an initial rank position in the Army and a duty assignment which brought his dream of keeping our country safe to life.

One Life Long Dream. Being in the Army represents more than just a chance to defend our country for Cody Hadley. After enlisting, Hadley wanted to see different cultures and receive a new outlook on life. "Since I was a little boy, being in the Army has been one of my dreams. When most kids wanted to be firefighters, I wanted to become a soldier," said Hadley, who added that he wanted to become an Army Police Officer and follow in the footsteps of his grandfathers.

Two Inspiring Relatives. The death of Jonathan Birkey's relative in the Vietnam War and his uncle's devotion to the Air Force fuels Birkey's decision to join the Army. "I liked the idea of serving the country that has given me so much. I think every healthy man should spend some time fighting for this country," said Birkey, who aspires to be a combat medic and eagerly await to experience the culture, strength and brotherhood associated with the Army.

Nine Weeks of Basic Training. The uniforms and confidence are the main aspects of the military that Mauricio Garcia thinks about when he describes the Army. Although he dreamed of being in the Army since he was in middle school, the opportunity finally seemed right during his junior year of high school. "I wanted to join the Army in order to better myself. I got into some trouble my junior year and I wanted to learn discipline through the military," said Garcia.

As freshmen, we wandered through the halls. Now, we reminisce on the journey that we traveled together.

We had the chance to be leaders and that is what we were. We acquired the challenges that others let pass by. We motivated one another to progress through life. Aiming higher than ever before, we achieved our dream. The Class of 2009 made it to Graduation Day.

To walk across the stage in Bishop Gym as senior year ended was an honor. Moving the tassel from one side of our caps to the other means we have reached a new segment in our lives. Now, the future is what we look forward to.

We have sat back, looking in admiration at those above us, waiting for our time to shine. Young adults full of energy, life, and ambitions, we have grown up dodging failure.

We are the elite young men and women driven towards perfection. We have distorted what it means to be normal reaching above and beyond the stars

We are the winners, we are the dreamers, we are the successors, and we are the future. We opposed rejection and accepted the privilege of being at the top!

We gaze back to reminisce on memories. Enduring the here and now only to press forward for a superior future, we are the Seniors of 2009, and we did it. Congratulations!

7 Periods Not 8. Being a senior has its benefits, especially when a student has early dismissal. Ashley McNerney grabbed her homework before leaving school for the day.

Pink Times 8. Focused on something off in the distance, Joslyn Meissner, Katrina Beedle, and Nicole Kuhlmann sit outside enjoying the sunshine. "Off periods rock. I use to watch the seniors a couple of years ago and say to myself that I need to be outside enjoying the weather too! Now I can and I do," said Kuhlmann.

Wiskers. At times, Senior year can be intense, but Katarzyna Grabiec and Navy Neang find time to have fun. "I really like this year. I've gotten involved and created friendships I hope last a lifetime. Senior year rocks," said Neang.

Double Vision. About to stretch for Dance Tech, Brenda Almanza sees her past four years and all of her accomplishments. "All I can say is that I'm glad I made it through this year," said Almanza.

Channel 4 News. As Ron Burgundy from Anchorman, David Peace walks the halls shouting, "News team...Assemble!" Peace showed that even Seniors could stay classy.

Zero Thorns. Glowing with joy, Diana Martinez laughs as she grabs the roses given to her earlier that day. "Senior year has had its ups and downs, but the gifts I've received this year made my journey much better," said Martinez as she started giggling.

Weird Numbers

"I have never had to buy an ID. Whenever I don't have mine, I always just check one out or if it already is checked out, I check out one of my twin's."

- Virginia Mason

"I've probably painted myself 20 times, if you add them all up from the last four years."

- Stuart Sankovitch

"I have a whole drawer full of just Wildcat wear. Half are from cheerleading, some are normal Wildcat shirts, and the rest are from softball and volleyball. It comes out to around 35 shirts."

- Jamie Dash

I had several tardy passes, and freshman year alone I had four. Then I received a ton more when they switched passing periods to only five minutes."

- Samantha Curatola

Two Stylish Feet. Sitting on her front porch with her collections of shoes, Anna Treudt confesses that she doesn't even wear most of them. "I have 43 pairs of shoes and I just can't stop myself from buying them," said Treudt.

"The way you achieve success at West Chicago is by figuring out which teachers are your pals and which are your superiors."

- Courtney Nesemeier

"You know that your day was successful when you side track your teacher by having the whole class go off topic."

- Monika Parker

Four Bars. With a new electronics rule set in place, many students find difficulty in conversing with their peers. Others attempt to avoid the rule throughout the school year. "My day is successful when I don't get caught texting by my teachers," said Sarah Bicchinnella.

Marisa Carter

"Take advantage of every opportunity that comes your way. High school is about having fun and meeting people who will be your friends forever."

- Kelli Grimm

"You should not believe everything that you are told by people. Also, you should try to hang out with different people because it will make high school a lot more enjoyable."

- Yesenia Geromini

"Do not take it easy. Always work hard and take advantage of easy assignments and extra credit. Also always use your planner. It's a life saver."

- Brian Skrzypczak

"The changes are numerous. I've gone from being shy to the biggest social butterfly. Now, in my senior year, I'm full of school spirit, and it's the best feeling ever."

- Shannon Cassello

"Watch your back and don't talk back to Seniors."

- James Egert

"My parents, friends and the thoughts of college motivated me the most. My parents are always on me about homework and studying. My friends helped with making life easier outside of school."

- Corey Freebern

"I've grown up realizing people change and so do I. Taking time out of my day to concern myself with others won't put me any closer to my dream. Remember yourself before others."

- Ashley Jefferson

"My siblings motivated me the most through high school. They really messed up in school, and I learned from that. I had four sisters everyday telling me to keep my grades up."

- Alex Pirela

"My best memories of high school would have to be spending time in the Squad and cheering our football team on. There is nothing more exhilarating than getting everyone riled up."

- Emily Breitreitz

"Enjoy the four years you have in high school, take chances and have a good time. You don't want to look back and regret not doing anything."

- Margaret Polacek

"Enjoy your years in high school. Time goes past too fast and then you have to be an adult. So enjoy the time you have"

- Courtney Nesemeier

"Don't take a second for granted and enjoy every minute, because high school is the best time of your life and these four years go by way too fast."

- Molly Pfeifer

"Professor Eric Lasky motivated me throughout high school. He was the best golf coach to me. I am going to nominate him for man of the year."

- Jason Foreman

"One of my favorite memories was Operation Cloverfield. The Class of '09 worked together to construct a prank on the Senior Class of '08."

- Amanda Huey

"Do everything you can in high school because four years go by fast and you're never going to see a lot of people once you graduate."

- Pedro Perez

"Don't be scared of the upperclassmen. They just try to be intimidating. And keep school a main priority. Don't start to slack. It'll benefit you later on."

- Megan Zajac

1 Girls Game Time Chant. Just as senior boys do before every football game, the girls decide to have a Game Time of their own. "Everyone was screaming so loud! It was even better since juniors tried to do their own in math hall," said Carly Abraham. With victory under their football belts, the senior girls did a final game time chant, claiming their bragging rights for the rest of the year.

After four years of high school, Seniors are finally acknowledged by their peers for their unforgettable qualities.

A Years to Grow

As the final diploma is awarded, the Class of 2009 roars with excitement.

The eight semesters, over fifty final exams, four Homecoming football games, two fantastic Proms, countless homework assignments, and an endless number of pages of notes all led up to the final destination for 437 Seniors: Graduation.

On a sunny day in June, the Senior class entered Bishop Gym one last time in order to walk across the stage and experience the final event of high school. As the students received their diplomas from Dr. Cheng, the principal, and Mr. Jensen, the West Chicago School Board President, every Senior's eyes filled with tears. Each student realized that this day was the closing of a big part of life.

For Ryan Crawford graduation wasn't just a ceremony, but a major step toward becoming an adult. "Graduation was a moment of recognition for all the work my fellow classmates and I have accomplished over the past four years in high school. The presence of the staff and parents made the ceremony memorable and something I will never forget," said Crawford.

Through laughter and memories of the past years, Mr.

"Life is a gift of incomparable worth. We have all been given a gift of immeasurable value. What are you going to do with the gift you have been given?"

Jennings delivered an inspirational speech of the importance of high school and of the journey ahead. "Life is a gift of incomparable worth. We have all been given a gift of immeasurable value. What are you going to do with the gift you have been given?" said Jennings.

With a speech by classmate Ashley Jefferson, the Seniors reflected on the choices they've made. "We've heard time after time to make 'it' count. That 'it' is putting away childish things to accomplish greatness. It's demonstrating maturity, showing others exactly how far we've come. That 'it' is the dedication we've expressed in making it this far today. Let's make 'it' count one more time," said Jefferson. The memories established in high school will be cherished forever and serve as a way to grow for the obstacles ahead.

With the memories of the past four years ruminating through the Seniors' heads, they anxiously threw their caps into the air. The new West Chicago alumni walked out of Bishop Gym and into the sunlight illuminating their future.

-Virginia Mason
& Courtney Nesemeier

One Proud Student. As Amy Volk makes her way up to Dr. Cheng, each person in the audience can see the smile that illuminates her face. The accomplishment of finishing high school represented the beginning of a successful life.

5 Dollars. Beginning his speech by collecting a debt from Ethan Burau, Mr. Jennings recalls memories of the Class of '09. "You were given the gift of life, but gifts are best when they are shared. How will you share your gift?" said Jennings.

7 Revisions. Tweaking her speech to perfection, Ashley Jefferson spends days prepping for graduation. "I told myself last year I wanted the opportunity to give the speech. I was happy and nervous to give the farewell speech," said Jefferson.

437 Estatic Seniors. As the Class of 2009 shuffles into Bishop Gym, each student thinks of the feeling that will overcome him or her when they are finally free of high school. After waiting over an hour, the students realized that they had now become the alumni of the Class of 2009. As Dr. Moses Cheng introduces the graduating class, the students rose with excitement, flinging their caps into the air. "I was hit in the head with four caps at graduation, but I threw my cap just like everyone else did. There was something thrilling about knowing that I finally did it. I finally graduated. The cap was going to be thrown off. There was no way it was staying on," said Virginia Mason.

2:00 Commencement Time. As the parents and relatives watch their sons and daughters enter Bishop City, the room fills with the noise of clapping and cheering. The excitement of the big day buzzed from the parents in the stands to the students on the floor. All the students stood with carnations as they waited for the clock to strike 2:00 p.m. and for the ceremony to begin. The ceremony represented the end of high school, but also the beginning of a journey.

Extraordinary Student.

The achievement of Valedictorian commemorates the hard work and dedication that Ashley Michnick exhibited over her four years of high school. "I have been working towards being Valedictorian for so long. I am so happy I finally succeeded!" added Michnick. Walking off the stage with her acknowledged accomplishments, Michnick thought of her hard work paying off.

One Glistening Smile.

As Craig Epps makes his way up to the stage, he shakes hands with Mrs. Rusin. The accomplishment of finishing four years of high school, Epps received a congratulations by Rusin and made the moment even that much more special. The staff and students celebrated the special ceremony together and finished the year right.

On a warm June evening, the best and the brightest of the Class of 2009 celebrate four years of achievements.

People say high school flies by. Yet, for some students, these four years of memories are also filled with hard work and a desire for success. On the Friday night before Commencement, Senior Honors Night recognized these selective students.

The night of June 5 opened with Dr. Cheng, announcing the valedictorian, Ashley Michnick, and the salutatorian, Jozef Pavnica. Presenters then announced such awards as Citizenship Award, Academic Merit Awards, Illinois State Scholars and a variety of attendance awards. Joseph Serio was honored for attending every single day of his

Even in a group of such dedicated students, there are those that rise above

"I am so grateful for all my teachers because they have been there for me there through all of it."

their classmates.

Mr. Larson announced those students receiving the award for Outstanding Individual Merit. These honorees included: Katrina Beedle, Melissa Conway, Kelsey Davis, Mitchell Householder, Ryan Krage, Emily Laffey, Alexander Pirela, Caitlin Shiga, Lia Smith and Rafael Vasquez.

As the Class of 2009 proved, not everyone suffered from "senioritis." For those few that push beyond mediocrity, the time comes when those textbooks and endless nights become worth it. "I am so grateful for all my teachers because they have been there for me through all of it," said Michnick.

*-Ashley Jefferson,
and Virginia Mason*

1 Unexpected Award. It's one thing when you know what award you're receiving, but the Lions Club scholarship surprised Jessica Bergmann. "I was overwhelmed, but I can't complain at all," said Bergmann.

Post 6791. The Veterans' Educational Scholarship goes out to 13 students. Rhett Gunderson received one of those awards. "I was excited and relieved to know that I did my part in some way in order to get the award," said Gunderson.

4th in the Family. From home school to high school, Rachel Bass strives to beat all the expectations previously set. "I know my family expected me to achieve greatness, but I did all the hard work because I wanted to," said Bass.

J. McCormack

200 Exemplary Students. At the beginning of Senior Honors Night, Dave Hiltner, Sara Lim, Chelsea Wilbur, Chrissy Rovtar, Lizzie Gola, Taylor Turner and Mitchell Householder stand for the National Anthem. On this evening, the stage filled with students receiving awards including the American Legion Scholarship, the Daughters of the American Revolution Outstanding Citizenship Award, and the Houston J. Pineda Memorial Scholarship. "It's a night I'll always remember," said Hiltner.

6 Advanced Placement Classes. At the end of his four years, Jozef Pavnica receives many recognitions and awards. Pavnica balanced his schedule to participate in activities ranging from the Economics Team to being a Captain of the Boys' Varsity Tennis team and illustrated his versatility. "I was told I shouldn't limit myself, so I didn't. High School is only one chapter of your life, so why not take advantage of all the opportunities you can handle?" said Pavnica.

Two Hours South.

Throughout four years of high school, Caitlin Shiga participates in Orchestra, and for that Shiga receives the National School Orchestra Award by her teacher, Mr. Govertsen. The end of high school signified a time of celebration, but soon Shiga will travel south to Illinois Wesleyan University.

1 out of 12. With 3 years of perfect attendance, it's no surprise that Nicholas Henke is one of the twelve students that received Highest Honors. "I worked hard. Even when I didn't want to go to school, I still went. I made the grades and pressed forward to get exactly where I am today, I'm glad I accomplished so much in four years," said Henke.

How Do You Measure... Guidance?

132 teachers lecturing students about skills needed for the future.

1 German teacher tutoring her students to broaden their cultural experience.

86 electives opening up students minds to new ideas.

15 PE teachers encouraging their students to live a healthier lifestyle.

18 English teachers brainstorming new creative writing assignments.

2 librarians shushing students in the LRC.

-Maggie Blaack and Molly Pfeifer

With more than 2200 students, these teachers do more than grade papers. They change lives.

More than 200 faculty members showed intelligence, patience and a sense of humor on a daily basis as they instructed about 2,200 students throughout the school year. "Working in the ASC, I get the privilege of interacting with teachers from all departments, so I get the chance to see the wide variety of teaching tactics," said Mrs. Vondrak.

At the beginning of the year, teachers made it easier for the freshmen to adapt to high school life by giving them an overview of what goes on during school. The teachers put the freshmen into groups and helped them calm their jitters. "The teachers who were a part of We-Go in with Pride definitely helped out the freshmen make the transition into high school. They also helped make the unknowns become known and it changed their minds about high school," said Mr. Engel.

Two of the major events included the Volley for the Cure game, run by Ms. Hasty and the girls' volleyball team, and the anti drug operation, Snowball, run by Ms. Culbertson, Mrs. Winquist, and Ms. Thielberg. But whether teachers were running a special program or supervising Commons, students agreed that they made a difference at We-Go.

-Amber Weinmann

"The Faculty is a great group of committed professionals dedicated to helping each student learn,"
-Dr. Cheng

Parade. While walking in the Homecoming parade with the other foreign language staff Mrs. Govertsen smiles to the little kids as she enthusiastically hands out candy.

4 Who Make A Difference. Even the little events make a huge difference in the fight against breast cancer. Ms. Kavadas played a big part in that fight during the Volley for the Cure game by supporting those who have survived. The event was full of raffles, performances, and cancer survivor recognition.

Dribbles. While participating in the teachers vs. students basketball game at the winter sports pep assembly, Mr. Dalo dribbles his way to the basketball hoop. Dalo put in the extra effort in the attempt to defeat the students. The teachers went into the event hoping to leave with a victory.

1 Mentor. Surrounded by his athletes, Mr. Philips stares down the opponents of their challenging match. "Philips couldn't stress enough how the harder you practice the more it would pay off in a match," said Nick Carnot.

7 Coaches. Each varsity coach watches the football players run their plays on the field with great intensity. Coach Chiodo took on the task as the new head varsity football coach and taught them new tactics and prepared them even more for every game.

My Dog Ate My Excuse

"Once a student threw up on his homework, but he offered to bring it in."

-Mr. Reagan

"To get out of trouble a student once came to my office and tried to tell me that he didn't know it was inappropriate to have a teacher see him undress."

-Mr. Martino

"A student was late because he pierced his own ear during passing period and was bleeding everywhere."

-Mrs. Wood

27 Saturday Schools. Making sure students are on their best behavior, Mrs. Woodson sorts through the excuses, giving Saturday schools when appropriate. "A student said he spilled something on his bed and had to dry his sheets before school," said Woodson.

Years of Dedication

"I'm planning to go out on a school night without having papers to grade and without having an alarm go off at five a.m."

"I will miss watching students discover that they can find the answer using problem solving and logic."

-Annette Rubino

"The best years at Community High School were the years I was the Director of the Welcome Center. I'll also remember the years that my children attended this high school."

-Miguel Arroyo

34 Years. West Chicago's only German teacher retires this year after 34 years of teaching. Out of those years, Ms. Strohm spent 33 of them teaching German. "Every year has been a good one with its own unique rewards and challenges," said Strohm.

24 years and Counting. After teaching Spanish for 24 years, Ms. Junkroski has a routine that never grows old. With numerous classes, Junkroski adapted to the students. "No class is the same. They're kids with different personalities, so it's never teaching the same material," said Junkroski.

53 Performances with Weyrauch. With 27 years of experience at We-Go, Ms. Hafertepe teaches English, while directing musicals and plays. "No number could capture the level of satisfaction, fulfillment and warm memories that I gained inside Weyrauch Memorial Auditorium," said Hafertepe.

12 years. Keeping his school day open for students, Mr. Rau does his work after school. In the evenings he worked as the freshman football coach and ran Key Club. "My favorite part of Key Club is when kids volunteer for the community and find it more rewarding than they expected," said Rau.

As the Senior Class embarks on the next chapter of their lives, their parents remember them fondly. The growth of these students and support from their families prepares them for their futures.

Tara Bretnig

Once a princess, always a princess...

Dear Tara,

We knew on November 11, 1990 at 10:35 p.m. that someone very special had just come into our lives, and you have been proving it to us ever since! You are a spectacular young woman with a brilliant future just waiting for you. Go and get it! Remember that being "successful" isn't measured by your career. It's measured by your character, your personal integrity, the respect you have for yourself and others, your compassion, your ability to forgive with grace and your ability to love well and accept love from others. Tara, you are a success already! We are so proud of you. And we love you very much.

Congratulations, Baby!

Love,
Mom and Dad

Amanda Huey

Dear Amanda,

We are so proud of the child you were and the woman you have become. We can't wait to see what's next for you. You always make the right choices and good things are bound to happen.

Love,
Mom, Dad and Justin

Dear Courtney,
What a great leap from such a chunky monkey to beautiful and all grown up. Way to overlook the obstacles and plow forward to your future. It brings a tear to the eye. We are extremely proud of you!

Love,
Dad, Rita, Connor and Morgan

Courtney Nesemeier

Molly Pfeiffer

Dear Molly Dolly,
From little darling to all grown! The years flew by in a blink. I am so proud of you!
Love,
Mom
P.S. "Girls just wanna have fun!"

Dear Clark,
We've watched you grow from a jolly baby to a confident young man and we have enjoyed every single day! We wish the same success and happiness you enjoyed in high school at the next stage of your life.

All our love,
Mom, Dad, Jim, and Rick

Clark Hudmon

Dear Joslyn,

We are so proud of you

Virginia and Kathleen Mason

Dear Virginia and Kathleen,
Many of you know by now that Virg stole all the nourishment available from their mom during the pregnancy. It really wasn't her fault, but we all believe that's why Virg eats so much and Kathleen hoards food all day. Whether in New York City, Chicago, Fort Lauderdale, or Paris they have an infectious smile that's second to none and invites others with open arms. You bring so much happiness and joy to all who have the pleasure of knowing you. Congratulations to our girls.

Words Of Gratitude...

Ms. Santella for her many years of devotion to developing a top quality book. We will miss you.

Mr. Clark for giving us a mountain of CDs, for fixing the printer, and for helping with our many computer problems.

Mr. Martino, Mr. DelReal, and Mrs. Rusin for always answering all of our controversial questions.

Mrs. Campos for going beyond the call of duty to collect the scores for all of the games and matches.

Dr. Cheng for all of his help with the yearbook.

Mr. Helberg for helping us with InDesign and making sure our book was amazing.

Ms. Wallner for helping us contact all of the coaches and club advisors.

Mrs. Taddeucci for the many hours of fundraising for our book.

Courtney, Aly, and Amanda for picking up all of the loose pieces and making sure our book was the best it could be.

How do you measure a year?

Challenge

In our four years at Community High School, we entered the building as brand new freshmen looking forward to the years ahead, matured into sophomores and drove down our own paths, worked through our junior year JRPs and ACTs, and finally earned the right to say we were seniors as we took our place in Senior Hall.

Through all the days spent in class, we counted the minutes until graduation. Every moment was measured by all the little things we did each day. Every minute spent, every lesson learned, every game won, every picture shot, and every step taken transformed the time we spent together into lasting memories.

Our best memories were made within these walls. From the Game Time chant in Senior Hall to just talking to our friends in class, we will always have our place in this school, and we will forever be West Chicago Wildcats.

1,000,000 Memories. During the Homecoming Powder Puff game, where the senior girls play against the junior girls, Kevin Marano is hoisted on the shoulders of his fellow senior male cheerleaders. Marano was congratulated because he just asked Lindsey Gehrke to the Homecoming dance, and she said yes. "Well first of all I was in a woman's cheerleading uniform performing in the half-time show, and secondly I was being carried by a group of male cheerleaders. It all made a great night," said Marano.
